

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. PREFACE

It has been generally recognized by classical scholars of the present day that a knowledge of epigraphy forms an essential part of the equipment of a teacher of the classics, and that the subject itself has become so important as to justify its introduction, in elementary form at least, into the curriculum of undergraduate studies. Notwithstanding this general recognition, however, no work in the English language which would serve as an introduction to the study of Latin inscriptions has up to the present time been published. It is to supply this want that the following pages have been written.

The purpose determining the plan of the work has been to combine abundant introductory and explanatory matter with numerous examples for illustration and for practice in reading. The inscriptions, with the single exception of those from movable articles, have been printed in the type ordinarily used for Latin texts, since this form has been considered more satisfactory than any attempt at a typographical imitation of the original letters. Numerous photographic reproductions have been made from the fac-similes of Ritschl's Priscae Latinitatis Monumenta Epigraphica and from the exempla in Hübner's Exempla Scripturae Epigraphicae, in order to impress in some degree upon the student the original form and appearance of the inscription.

The debt of the author to the works of other writers is of necessity very great. Whenever another's writings have been directly used, acknowledgment has been made in the footnotes; but for assistance obtained from many other sources not noted, the author wishes here to express himself as deeply grateful.

The Cours d'Épigraphie Latine of Professor René Cagnat has been of the utmost service and has, in fact, formed the basis of this work in many particulars. The author has also relied for much of his information upon the Prolegomena of Professor Emil Hübner's Exempla Scripturae Epigraphicae and upon the same scholar's article, Römische Epigraphik in Iwan Müller's Handbuch der Klassischen Altertumswissenschaft, vol. i., 1892. To Professor Hermann Dessau the author is indebted for material obtained from his Inscriptiones Latinae Selectae, vol. i., and also for his kind words in regard to the preparation of this volume.

In passing this book through the press the author has been greatly aided by his friends and associates.

Professor Harry Thurston Peck has read much of the proof and has made possible the author's task by his encouragement and by his advice, so valuable because of wide experience.

Dr. Nelson Glenn McCrea has read the entire proof and has in many instances, in connection with this kindly service, given renewed proof of his scholarship. Mr. George Olcott, a Fellow of this College, has been of most valuable service, inasmuch as he has prepared and verified the Chronological List of the Roman Emperors. The index is also the work of Mr. Olcott.

The author earnestly hopes that this volume will prove to many the open door to a subject so remarkable in its influence upon classical and archaeological study and at the same time so interesting and attractive in its pursuit.

INTRODUCTION

To a beginner in the study of Epigraphy, the most important matters for consideration are the works which provide material for research, and the method which should be followed in approaching this material.

The great storehouse of Latin inscriptions is the Corpus Inscriptionum Latinarum,¹ which is indispensable for advanced study in this subject; but notwithstanding the importance of this great work, certain minor collections of inscriptions are more useful to the elementary student and for class-room use.

The first of these is the valuable Collectio of Orelli and Henzen:

Inscriptionum Latinarum Amplissima Collectio. Io. C. Orellius.

Volumen Tertium Collectionis Orellianae supplementa emendationesque exhibens. Ed. Guil. Henzen. Zurich, 1856.

The last volume contains indices to the entire work.

The most serviceable collection of inscriptions for general use is:

Exempla Inscriptionum Latinarum in usum praecipue academicum. Gustavus Wilmanns. 2 vols. Berlin, 1873.

For those who are unable to consult the Corpus Inscriptionum, a more recent work will provide well-selected inscriptions in greater number than the collection just mentioned. This collection is based upon material gathered by William Henzen.

Inscriptiones Latinae Selectae. Ed. Hermannus Dessau. Vol. I. Berlin, 1892.

Dialectorum Italicarum Aevi Vetustioris Exempla Selecta in usum scholarum. Vol. I. Dialecti Latinae Priscæ et Faliscæ Exempla Selecta. Pars 1. Engelbertus Schneider. Leipzig, 1886.

Fragments and Specimens of Early Latin. J. Wordsworth. Oxford, Clarendon Press, 1874.

Remnants of Early Latin. F. D. Allen. Boston, 1880.

For a presentation of the inscriptions themselves the student is referred to two great works, one of which gives inscriptions in facsimile, the other by "exempla."

The first of these is the large folio of F. Ritschl, containing inscriptions from the earliest period down to the beginning of the Empire. It is regularly denoted by the letters P. L. M. E.

Priscæ Latinitatis Monumenta Epigraphica ad archetyporum fidem exemplis lithographis repræsentata. Ed. Fr. Ritschilius. Berlin, 1862.

There are five supplements, which were originally published at Bonn in 1862. They are also found in Ritschl's Opuscula Philologica, vol. IV. 1878.

The second of these is:

Exempla Scripturæ Epigraphicæ Latinæ a Caesaris dictatoris morte ad ætatem Justiniani. Ed. Aem. Hübner. Berlin, 1885.

In this book there is a complete introduction in Latin, and over twelve hundred inscriptions with commentary. As the title indicates, this Exempla is a complement to the work of Ritschl, just mentioned.

As introductory to the study of Inscriptions, the student is referred to two short works of Emil Hübner: (1) The article entitled "Roman Inscriptions" in the Encyclopaedia Britannica, vol. XIII. 9th ed. This will form excellent preliminary reading. A résumé of the subject is presented in a form easily understood. (2) The article "Römische Epigraphik" in the Handbuch der Klassischen Altertumswissenschaft, Iwan Müller, vol. I. 1886, 2d ed. 1892. This provides a bibliography of the collection of inscriptions and an introduction to the subject more complete than the article in the Britannica.

This last work is also published separately.

The only complete introduction to Latin Epigraphy is:

Cours d'Épigraphie Latine. René Cagnat. 1st ed., Paris, 1886.
2d ed., Paris, 1890.

This is an exceedingly useful book.

Anleitung zum Lesen, Ergänzen und Datiren Römischer Inschriften. Karl Bone. Trèves, 1881.

This work refers in the main to Rhenish inscriptions.

For the study of Christian Inscriptions:

Edmond Le Blant. Paris, 1869.

Also, by the same author:

L'Épigraphie Chrétienne en Gaule et dans l'Afrique. Paris, 1890.

PERIODICAL LITERATURE

To study inscriptions properly, one must keep pace with the growth of the subject, as new material is constantly being added. To accomplish this purpose, familiarity with periodical literature must be maintained. The following are the principal periodicals bearing upon this subject:

- 1) A running supplément to the Corpus Inscriptionum Latinarum is published at intervals.
Ephemeris Epigraphica (Ephem. Ep.). Vols. I.–VIII. Berlin, 1892.
- 2) Mitteilungen des Kaiserlichen Deutschen Archaeologischen Instituts, Römische Abteilung. Loescher & Co. Rome, 1886.
This is known also as:
Bullettino dell' Imperiale Istituto Archeologico Germanico.
- 3) Hermes, Zeitschrift für Klassische Philologie. Kaibel and Robert. Berlin, 1866.
- 4) Rheinisches Museum für Philologie. Ribbeck and Bücheler. Frankfurt, 1833. Neue Folge, 1842.
- 5) Jahrbücher des Vereins von Altertumsfreunden im Rheinlande. Bonn, 1842.
- 6) Die Westdeutsche Zeitschrift für Geschichte und Kunst. Trèves, 1882.
- 7) Archäologisch-epigraphische Mitteilungen aus Oesterreich-Ungarn. Vienna, 1877.
- 8) Revue Épigraphique du Midi de la France. A. Allmer. 7 vols. Vienna, 1878–92.
- 9) Revue Archéologique.¹ Paris, 1884.
- 10) Mélanges d'Archéologie et d'Histoire Publiés par l'École Française de Rome. Paris, 1881.

- 11) Bulletin de Correspondance Hellénique. 1877.
This is the organ of the French School at Athens.
- 12) Notizie degli Scavi di Antichità Comunicate alla Reale Accademia dei Lincei.¹ Rome, 1890.
- 13) Museo Italiano d' Antichità Classica. By Domenico Comparetti.
Rome, 1885-90. Vols. I.-III.
This publication was discontinued with vol. III., and was succeeded by the Monumenti Antichi.
- 14) American Journal of Archaeology, and of the History of the Fine Arts. Baltimore, 1885.
- 15) For Christian Inscriptions:
Bullettino d' Archeologia Cristiana. G. B. de Rossi. Rome, 1863.
- 16) Dizionario Epigrafico di Antichità Romane. Hector De Ruggiero.
Rome, 1886. Thirty-two fasciculi have appeared.

BIBLIOGRAPHY OF THE COLLECTIONS OF LATIN INSCRIPTIONS

To obtain a knowledge of the history of Latin Epigraphy, the student is referred to the following:

J. C. ORELLI: Index Praecipuorum Librorum Epigraphicorum aliorumque inscriptiones Latinas continentium.

This is found in the first volume of the Inscriptiones Latinae of Orelli, page 21, and in the third volume by Henzen, page xv.

R. DE LA BLANCHÈRE: Histoire de l'Épigraphie Romaine, redigée sur les notes de Léon Renier in the Revue Archéologique, nouv. ser. VIII. 1886, page 46. Also in a separate volume, Paris, 1887.

Corpus Inscriptionum Latinarum. Prefaces to vols. II.-XIV.

G. B. DE ROSSI: Inscriptiones Christianae Urbis Romae Septimo Saeculo Antiquiores. Prefaces to vols. I.-II.

EMIL HÜBNER: 1. Bibliographie der Klassischen Altertumswissenschaft. Berlin, 1889. Part II., page 354.

2. Article "Römische Epigraphik" in the Handbuch der Klassischen Altertumswissenschaft. Iwan Müller. Vol. I. 1886. 2d ed. 1892.

J. P. WALTZING: Recueil Général des Inscriptions Latines, et l'Épigraphie Latine depuis 50 ans. Louvain, 1892.

CORPUS INSCRIPTIONUM LATINARUM

This great collection of Latin inscriptions, published under the supervision of the Royal Prussian Academy at Berlin, is arranged on a geographical basis in fifteen volumes. Each of these volumes with the exception of the first, in which are published the inscriptions dating before the death of Caesar, is assigned to the inscriptions derived from a certain portion of the Roman world. The general plan may be seen from the following:

VOLUMEN I. Inscriptions dating before the death of Caesar. Editio prima, 1863 (out of print). Editio altera, Pars prior, 1893. Tabulae Lithographae. Priscae Latinitatis Monumenta Epigraphica, 1862.

VOLUMEN II. Inscriptions of Spain, 1869.
SUPPLEMENTUM, 1892.

VOLUMEN III. Inscriptions of Asia (Egypt), of the Greek Provinces of Europe, of Illyricum.

Pars Prior: Inscriptions of Egypt and Asia, of the Greek Provinces of Europe, of Illyricum. Parts I.-V. 1873.

Pars Posterior: Inscriptions of Illyricum, also Monumentum Ancyranum, Edict of Diocletian de Pretiis Rerum, Diplomata Militaria, Wax Tablets of Dacia. Parts VI.-VII. 1873.

- SUPPLEMENTI Fasciculus Primus: Inscriptions of the Greek Provinces of Europe. 1892.
- SUPPLEMENTI Fasciculus Secundus: Inscriptions of Illyricum. Parts I.–III. 1892.
- SUPPLEMENTI Fasciculus Tertius: Inscriptions of Illyricum. Edict of Diocletian. Constitutions of the Emperors (Diplomata militaria). Parts IV.–VII. 1893.
- VOLUMEN IV. Inscriptiones Parietariae of Pompeii, Herculaneum, and Stabiae. 1871.
- SUPPLEMENTUM (in preparation).
- VOLUMEN V. Inscriptions of Cisalpine Gaul.
- Pars Prior*: The tenth regio of Italy, Venetia and Istria. 1872.
- Pars Posterior*: The eleventh (Liguria) and ninth (Gallia Transpadana, Alpes Cottiae et Maritimae) regiones of Italy. 1887.
- VOLUMEN VI. Inscriptions of the City of Rome.
- Pars Prima* 1876, Pars Secunda 1882, Pars Tertia 1886, Pars Quarta (1895), Pars Quinta, containing inscriptiones falsae, 1885, Pars Sexta, Indices (in preparation).
- VOLUMEN VII. Inscriptions of Britain. 1873.
- VOLUMEN VIII. Inscriptions of Africa.
- Pars Prior*: Proconsular Africa, Numidia. 1881.
- Pars Posterior*: Mauretania. 1881.
- SUPPLEMENTI Fasciculus Prior. 1891.
- SUPPLEMENTI Fasciculus Alter. 1894.
- VOLUMEN IX. Inscriptions of Calabria, Apulia, Samnium, Sabini, Picenum. 1883.
- VOLUMEN X. Inscriptions of Bruttium, Lucania, Campania, Sicilia, Sardinia.
- Pars Prior*: Bruttium, Lucania, Campania. 1883.
- Pars Posterior*: Sicilia, Sardinia. 1883.

VOLUMEN XI. Inscriptions of Aemilia, Etruria, Umbria.Pars Prior: Aemilia, Etruria. 1888.Pars Posterior: Umbria (in press).

The Accademia dei Lincei publishes supplemental volumes of inscriptions of Italy under the title Corporis I. L. Supplementa Italica, consilio et auctoritate Academiae regiae Lynceorum edita:

Fasc. I., Additamenta ad vol. V. Galliae Cisalpinae. Ed. Hector Pais, Rome. 1888.

VOLUMEN XII. Inscriptions of Gallia Narbonensis. 1888.VOLUMEN XIII. Inscriptions of the Three Gauls and Two Germanies (in preparation).VOLUMEN XIV. Inscriptions of Ancient Latium. 1887.VOLUMEN XV. Inscriptions of the City of Rome, Instrumentum Domesticum.Pars Prior: Lateres. 1891.Pars Posterior (in press).

The contents of the several volumes may be considered under three divisions.

I., Introductory Matter; II., Inscriptions; III., Indices and Tabulae.

I. INTRODUCTORY MATTER

At the beginning of each volume there is an Index Auctorum, which is an alphabetical list of the authors referred to throughout that volume, with more or less extensive biographical and bibliographical comment.

II. INSCRIPTIONS

A. False Inscriptions (indicated by an asterisk) are placed at the beginning of this division, and are arranged topographically, according to cities and towns, with a paging and numbering of their own. The falsae of vol. VI. are collected in Pars Quinta, and are arranged according to the names of the authors.

B. Valid Inscriptions are classified in three divisions.

1. Inscriptions in general.
2. Those connected with Viae Publicae.
3. Instrumentum Domesticum.

The main body of inscriptions is arranged on geographical and topographical principles, by provinces as in vol. II., or by regiones as in vols. V., IX., X., with subdivisions according to the cities and towns. The several more important sections capita, e.g. those assigned to provinces, are introduced by historical notes, and by a chronological list of manuscripts and other works containing the inscriptions of the district, together with biographical comment and estimates of the epigraphic authority of the various editors. The character of the inscriptions under the title Instrumentum Domesticum, can be seen from the following subdivisions from vol. XII.:

Tegulae, Lucernae, Amphorae, Dolia, Pelves, Vascula, Aequipondia, Statuculorum formae cretaceae, Signacula ex aere, Sigilla medicorum oculariorum, Anuli, Gemmae, Pondera, Tesserae, Vasa vitrea, Supellex aurea argentea, etc., Massae plumbeae, Fistulae plumbeae.

III. INDICES AND TABULAE

The Indices contain a classification of the contents of the texts of the inscriptions, the scope of which may be appreciated by the following specimen index from vol. XII.:

Nomina virorum et mulierum.	Provinciae, civitates, pagi, vici, fluvii,
Cognomina virorum et mulierum.	montes, praedia, rivi, similia.
Imperatores.	Res municipales.
Reges.	Collegia.
Consules aliaeque anni determina- tiones.	Artes et officia privata.
Honores alii publici populi Romani.	Carmina.
Res militaris.	Litterae singulares notabiliores.
Dei Deaque et res sacra.	Grammatica quaedam.
Populus Romanus, Tribus Romanae.	Notabilia varia.
	Recensus locorum recentiorum, by Kiepert.

Indices are at this time provided with vols. I., II., III., IV., V., VII., VIII., IX., X., XII., XIV.

Tabulae.

Maps prepared by H. Kiepert, giving the localities from which the inscriptions are derived, with names both ancient and modern, are placed at the end of vols. II., III., IV., V., VII., VIII., IX., X., XII., XIV.

GENERAL ECONOMY

Inscriptions Admitted.

All Latin inscriptions engraved upon durable materials, such as stone and bronze, and also those cut or impressed upon small movable articles instrumentum, no matter of what character or purpose, are included in this work. Coins, however, are given a place in the first volume, but are elsewhere excluded.

The work, as indicated by its title, is limited in its scope to Latin inscriptions, those of other languages, however closely related to Latin antiquities, being as a rule excluded.

Bilingual inscriptions in Greek and Latin, however, are given in their complete form, and certain Greek inscriptions appear among those of Pompeii (vol. IV.), and of England (vol. VII.). The limit of time as set by Mommsen in his letter to Borghesi (vol. X., p. vii), is the end of the sixth century, inasmuch as the Fasti Consulares reach almost to that period (541). In all cases of uncertainty as to date the inscriptions are accepted.

Christian inscriptions¹ are admitted, and are marked in the indices with a cross.

Criticism of Inscriptions.

The great object in the criticism of inscriptions has been to determine their authenticity, for it early became known that false inscriptions had been composed, so closely resembling those of antiquity that even the most skillful critics were deceived.

The first consideration in determining the validity of an inscription which exists only in a copy is the standing of the copyist, or of the author publishing it. The names of Ligorius and Pratilli are in themselves sufficient to condemn the inscriptions published by them alone.

The standing of the various authors can be learned from the Index Auctorum attached to each volume.¹ In the C. I. L., when the unreliableness of an author has been the reason for the rejection of an inscription, the fact is indicated by some statement; as quamquam fortasse genuina, suspecta tamen utpote a tali auctore solo relata II. 432*, or inter titulos suspectos releganda erant necessario propter auctorem fide omnino indignum II. 454*; also by simply attaching to an inscription the name of a well-known falsifier, e.g. Ligorius or Pratilli, X. 406*.

The science of palaeography is useful in the criticism of inscriptions as defining certain rules and usages, a violation of which leads to a suspicion as to the validity of the inscription. This method of criticism has to do with the external presentation, and is concerned with the types of letters, the marks of punctuation, the forms of numerals, etc.; also, if the inscription can be seen, with the nature of the engraving.

Such a criterion of criticism is indicated in the C. I. L., thus: puncta rotunda pessime facta ad imas litteras apposita sunt, XII. 145*; also titulum recentem esse cum litterarum forma tum spatia inter vocabula relictis punctis deficientibus demonstrant, XII. 305*, or vidi ego et medio aevo incisam intellexi X. 143*, or descripsi et damnavi V. 75*.

The last method of criticism has to do with the text itself. Violations of epigraphic laws, of established principles of the Latin language, or of well authenticated theories as regards Roman antiquities, should arouse suspicion as to the authenticity of the inscription or any portion of the same.

In X. 52*, for instance, the tribus does not hold its proper place; in X. 565* there is irregularity in the use of the nomina and prae- nomina; in V. 40* a munus senatorium is inserted among the equestrian munera, thus violating rules of the cursus honorum; in X. 629* Sylvanus is termed divus, and not deus, and in X. 506* appears the irregular expression sacra aedes.

Inscriptions have been invented to prove certain statements of classical authors, to account for the name of a town, or determine some disputed point in Roman antiquities or mythology, e.g. XII. 188*, where the comment reads facta ni fallor ad Annecy nomen explicandum. Antonini held that Paestum had been a municipality, and based his theory on two inscriptions, X. 109*, 110*. Pratilli declared that amphitheatres were consecrated to Hercules Victor, and used for this theory an inscription of the amphitheatre of Teanum X. 607*.

The unreliability of the source determines at once the authenticity of the inscription, when such striking support to a chosen theory is so readily supplied.

Other inscriptions, containing historical names and allusions to events of history, were undoubtedly composed for various purposes. Cyriacus shows an inscription from a statue in honor of Cicero, dedicated by the people of Arpinum, X. 711*. Antonini publishes an epitaph of a tomb raised to a son by M. Lamponius, general of the Lucanians in the Social War, X. 91*; the comment here is ut M. Lamponii in bello sociali Lucanorum ducis gens in lapidibus quoque reperiretur.

Methods of Presentation.

Preliminary to the text of the inscription, information is given as to where it was found, its location in antiquity, and at the present time. In some cases the nature of the monument is described, as basis statuæ, tabula marmorea. The text itself is printed in Roman capitals, even if the original was in cursive letters. Imperfect letters are represented by type broken in such way as to indicate what remains. Ligatures are shown, also accents and punctuation marks of various forms. The lines of the inscription are reproduced in the text, but the words are always separated, even if they are united in the original. With the text is also given a brief description, printed in small script, of any design appearing on the monument. Thus with the inscription on a sarcophagus,

C. I. L. XII. 1587.	mulieris imago cum volumine in manibus in clipeo quem duo genii sustinent,	pueri imago cum tunica laticlavata et volumine

PART I

THE LATIN ALPHABET (HISTORICAL)

For its civilization Rome was greatly indebted to the Greeks. Its philosophy was transplanted from Greece; its literature was an imitation of the literature of the same people. The resemblance between the alphabets of the people of Italy and those of the Greeks proves that for the source of the Italic alphabets we must look in a similar direction. A careful study shows that it is to the Chalcidian colonies, such as settled Cumae on the west coast of Italy and Naxos in Sicily, that the Italic alphabets are to be traced.

The origin of the Greek alphabet is the Phoenician. Tradition, of however little authority, supports this theory. Herodotus, V. 58-59, states that letters were introduced into Greece by Cadmus, a Phoenician who came to Boeotia. Pliny, N. H. VII. 56 (57), 191, repeats a similar tradition, adding that Cadmus introduced sixteen letters, $\alpha, \beta, \gamma, \delta, \epsilon, \iota, \kappa, \lambda, \mu, \nu, \omicron, \pi, \rho, \sigma, \tau, \upsilon$, and that Palamedes and Simonides each supplied four more. Tacitus, Annales, XI. 14, offers an interesting theory, tracing Greek letters through the Phoenician back to the Egyptians, assigning their introduction to Cadmus or Cecrops or Palamedes, but the addition of new letters to Simonides.

The early Greek and Phoenician characters show a marked resemblance in form, and stand in similar alphabetical order. Knowledge of the order of the Phoenician letters is obtained by a reference to the order of derived alphabets, such as Hebrew. The order of the Greek alphabet is known from an abecedarium scratched on a vase found at Formello near Veii in 1882.¹ The civilization of the Greeks is younger than that of the Phoenicians, and the names of the letters are Semitic, not Greek; hence the inference that the Greek alphabet is Semitic in its origin, derived from the Phoenician.

The Phoenician alphabet was not in all respects adapted to the phonetic requirements of the Greek language. First of all, there were no letters to represent vowel sounds. This want was supplied by the use of aleph, he, yod, ayin to represent a, e, i, o. Vau F may have supplied the u, the semivowel, but a new sign was invented to provide the vowel u, V or Y. There appears to be a resemblance between the Vau of the Mesha (Moabite) stone and the Greek Y upsilon, but Kirchhoff believes this likeness merely accidental.

The sibilants abounded in the Phoenician alphabet, and were beyond the needs of the Greeks. In consequence of this, much confusion has arisen as to the history of the Phoenician sibilants in the blending of the two alphabets. These Phoenician letters were zayin=dz, samekh=s, tsāde=ts or ss (lingual), and shin=sch (palatal). Of these, tsāde appears to suggest the name zēta, while zayin resembles it in form and holds a similar place. Some declare that zēta obtains its name through analogy owing to its proximity to zēta and θēta. Samekh seems to have supplied the sound of s and perhaps its name, while shin has given the form ς or Σ of the Greek sigma. In some Ionic inscriptions samēkh is found equivalent to ξ . Again, there are inscriptions in which the sign for sigma is M, the Phoenician tsade, and it has been suggested that the Greeks had in some alphabets a fourth sibilant san of this form M equal to s, while others had sigma ς , Σ .

Another difference between the Greek and Phoenician alphabets consists in the use, in the former, of additional characters to represent ps or pha, kh and ph. In the early inscriptions, such as those of Thera, Melos, and Creta, these phonetic values are expressed by the actual combination of the already existing letters.¹ The appearance of the new characters X (+), Φ , \Downarrow (Ψ) in the alphabets of Chalcis and the Chalcidian colonies leads to the belief that they were introduced before the eighth century B.C.¹ Various theories have been proposed as to the origin of these letters, but none has been found worthy of acceptance. W. Deecke² considers them Cypriote, arguing from the phonetic values of Cypriote syllabic characters, $\Upsilon = u$, $\Psi = pu$ and phu, $\times = ku$ and khu, $\rho\omega$, $\Psi = se$.

Kirchhoff has classified the Greek alphabets prior to 403 B.C. (the archonship of Eucleides) in two divisions, —

1) The eastern alphabets, which are those of the Aegean Islands, Asiatic coast towns, and certain places in the mainland of Greece, as Corinth, Argos, Attica.

2) The western alphabets, which belong to the Euboean cities Chalcis and Eretria, to Sicily and the Greek colonies in Italy; also, on the mainland of Greece, to Boeotia, Locri, Thessaly, Western Peloponnesus.

The order and value of the purely Greek letters, those newly added, determine the difference between these two classes. The eastern alphabet shows the order Φ , X, \Downarrow , with X = ch and \Downarrow = ps. The sound ks (ξ) is expressed by Ξ or H samēkh seen between N and O.

The eastern alphabet became the recognized Ionic alphabet after certain changes had taken place. The chēth H used at first as spiritus asper became long \bar{e} . The O was differentiated to produce $\Omega = \bar{o}$, and placed in the last position. The use of the F digamma and the ϑ koppa as letters had ceased, and the F = 6, and the ϑ = 90.

The western division retained the Ξ (or ⏊ in the Formello alphabet) as a numeral in the same way that F and ϑ were used as numerals in the Ionian alphabet. The order of the letters was X, ϕ, ↓, with X = ks, ϕ = ph, ↓ = ch. For Ψ = ps, πσ or ϕσ was used. Besides these peculiarities, C, D, v are found for Γ, Δ, Λ, also H with the value of spiritus asper, also the older form of mu, w.

The different Greek colonies entering Italy brought with them their own alphabetic forms, but the Chalcidian colonies provided the alphabets for the people of Italy probably previous to 600 B.C. The proof of this derivation rests on the similarity in the forms v and C (gamma) in the Italic and Chalcidian alphabets, for the appearance of these characters in the same alphabet marks it as Chalcidian.

The Italic alphabets arrange themselves in two classes. The one class contains the Etruscan, the Umbrian, and the Oscan; the other the Latin and the Faliscan. The distinguishing character is the form 8 found in the first class with sound of F.¹ The Latin and Faliscan not possessing this letter used F (vau) in place of ϕ disregarded.

The Etruscan alphabet was found north of the Tiber, the Oscan in Campania, the Umbrian east of the Apennines, the Latin and the Faliscan between the Etruscan and the Oscan.

Etruscan. — This is evidently a Chalcidian alphabet, since it shows the use of ↓ and ϑ. The X, which in the Chalcidian alphabet = ks, is in the Etruscan a numeral. The tenues were originally all in use. K is at first found, then disappears, while ϑ supplies its place, giving up the value of g, media. The other mediae, B and D, are not found in the oldest inscriptions. The ϑ is found only in the earliest remains, and soon falls out of use. There are two forms of the sibilant, M and z or 2, used side by side. The prevailing form in the inscriptions is 2; z seldom occurs. Two forms Q and ϑ with value r are found. The vowels are a, e, i, u, with o wanting. The Etruscan is always found written from right to left.

Umbrian.—All the aspirates are wanting save one, Θ , which is itself rare, and does not differ in value from the T. Of the mediae C and D have disappeared, and in consequence the K is still in use. The φ is not in use, perhaps was never adopted. The Umbrian, like the Etruscan, has no o, but possesses the other vowels, a, e, i, u. The peculiarities of the alphabet are Θ appearing as \ominus , and the new letters \P and \mathfrak{d} , which, with \S found in Etruscan, have been added to the Greek alphabet. The first, \P , is a by-form of the Etruscan \mathfrak{C} , but it does not have the same value, being equal to rs.¹ Hence it takes a different place in the alphabet. The \mathfrak{d} serves for the sound, peculiar to this dialect, of k before the vowels e and i. The Umbrian is, as a rule, written from right to left.

Oscan.—In this alphabet there are wanting the vowel o, $\chi = ks$, $M = s$, and φ . The d was at first disregarded, and the form \mathfrak{C} was assumed by the r sound; so that when the need of a media was felt, a modified \P , i.e. \mathfrak{R} , was used, which may have taken the place of d in the alphabet. Need of O was felt at a later date, hence the modified u, i.e. \mathfrak{V} , changed to $\check{\mathfrak{V}}$. The letter next to the last is a modified form of l, i.e. \mathfrak{t} , which, with $\check{\mathfrak{V}}$, naturally assumes a place after \S , as neither appears on the older Oscan coins. The order of writing is from right to left.

PLATE II.

COLUMN I. The Greek Alphabet as found on the Formello Vase. This is the Greek Alphabet as it was written in Italy, and is the link between the Western Greek Alphabets of Euboea, particularly of Chalcis, and the Italic Alphabets. These letters have been traced from Plate 6 of Mélanges de l'École Française de Rome, vol. II., Bréal.

COLUMN II. Etruscan alphabetic characters traced from representations given in Die Etrusker. C. O. Müller and Müller-Deecke.

COLUMN III. Umbrian letters traced from Les Tables Eugubines. Michel Bréal.

COLUMN IV. Oscan letters from fac-simile inscriptions, in Inscriptiones Oscæ (Tabulae). J. Zvetaleff.

COLUMN V. Latin archaic letters.

COLUMN VI. Faliscan letters from Inscriptiones Italiae Mediae Dialecticae (Tabulae). J. Zvetaleff.

Faliscan.—This alphabet possesses peculiarities that lead to a classification with the Latin. It differs from the Latin in the disappearance of the B and Q. The K also is wanting. The vau F is represented by the form \uparrow . The old form \pm and the position of the Z show the early adoption of the alphabet. The order of writing is from right to left.

All these alphabets, together with the Latin, are evidently derived, directly or indirectly, from the same Greek alphabet. The test characters are $\downarrow = ch$, $X = ks$, C gamma and V lambda. The Oscan and Umbrian people obtained their alphabets through the Etruscans, while the Latins took their letters from the Chalcidian colonists.¹

Latin.—The following peculiarities mark the Latin alphabet as distinct from those mentioned above. It has a complete vowel system, so that O is found as well as A, E, I, V. It employs vau F for the sign 8, which does not appear at all. The V serves the purpose of both vowel and consonant. The K has really disappeared from use, except in a few words and abbreviations, and C has taken its place. To provide the guttural media, C is made into G by a mark of differentiation, and the new letter assumes the position of I (Z), which early goes out of use. In the time of Cicero, I, the old zeta, and Y, upsilon, were taken from the Greek alphabet and placed after X (ix), and the former appeared in the shape Z. The Greek aspirates did not become letters in the Latin alphabet, but were used as numerals,² Ψ or \downarrow , the Chalcidian ch, = 50, \odot = 100 (probably), \mathcal{D} = 1000. The Q remained in use, but gradually lost ground in later days. The mark of differentiation was added to the P to form R when the letter P began to have a form nearly closed.

The original right to left direction of the writing is found generally in the dialect alphabets of Italy, save those of the Romans and Volsci, a fact which assigns the adoption of these alphabets to a period prior to the change in direction in the Greek parent alphabet. The medium of change from the original order to the left-to-right is the "boustrophædon" method, which combines the two

Modifications in the Latin Alphabet.

C. This letter is the curved form of the gamma of the Greek alphabet. Its value at first was that of the Greek letter, but afterwards it had the sound of k (surd guttural), a value it assumed in the period preceding the decemviral legislation (451 B.C.).

G. This letter finds its origin through the process of differentiation in the letter C. The modification was due to the confusion arising from the use of C as the sharp guttural k and as the flat g. In the Duenos Inscription virgo is spelled virco (some read vir cosied), while in the word feced an attempt has evidently been made to change a K into a C, but the K still remains in pakari. Plutarch, Quaestiones Romanae, 54 and 59, declares that Spurius Carvilius Ruga, who opened a school in Rome about 523/231, invented this letter. Mommsen (Unterital. Dial., p. 33) shows that Spurius Carvilius did not invent the letter, for it appears in inscriptions before his time. He may, however, have been the first to teach its use at his school, or he may have given it the position it still holds in the alphabet.

before 485/269, then in inscriptions in the epitaph of Scipio Barbatus, who was consul in 298 B.C. The epitaph appears to be less archaic than that of his son, who was consul 259 B.C. Ritschl has set the date as not later than 234 B.C. The words in the Scipio epitaph in which G appears are Gnaivod, prognatus, subigit. It is found also on paterae from Tarquinii in the name Gabinio, the date of which is supposed to be about the same as that of the Epitaph.¹ Again it is found in the decree of the Senate "de Bacchanalibus" of 186 B.C., in the words magister, magistratud, magistratum, gnoscier, figier, agro.² The letter G does not appear, however, in the inscription of the Columna Rostrata, which, though dating originally in the time of the Epitaph, was renewed, with a combination of modern and archaic forms in the Empire, perhaps under Augustus.³ This character probably did not come into general use until a period much later than the time of its introduction, for the archaic form C is found long after the invention of the G. A trace of the early use of C is found in the abbreviations C for Gaius and Cn for Gnaeus.

l. This letter served as both vowel and consonant (semi-vowel). In the time of Cicero a double l is found indicating the semi-vowel; thus Aiiax, Maiaa, aiio, Troiiam, are mentioned by the grammarians Quintilian, I. 4, 11, Velius Longus VII. 54, 1, and others, and in the inscriptions are found cuiius, eiinus, plebeiinus.⁴ This doubling of the vowel for such a purpose did not come into general use. In inscriptions of the imperial period the tall letter l stood between vowels as the semi-vowel, though ATELIO and ELVS are already found in inscriptions of the late days of the Republic.⁵

It should be remembered that J was not specialized as a letter until the fifteenth century A.D. At first the letter l, initial, was changed to J by being curved to the left, the original shape still serving as the medial letter. As the initial I was usually the semi-vowel, the initial shape became identified with the letter J.

³ It may, however, be an inscription of the days of Augustus, with imitation of archaic forms.

K. This letter, in the earliest period, served as the sharp guttural (k), but was afterwards replaced almost absolutely by the letter C, which, at first equal to the sonant g, was relieved of this double service by the use of the differentiated C, i.e. G. K is found in "shefhaked" on the Fibula Praenestina, which probably belongs to the sixth century B.C., and is apparently altered to C in the Duenos Inscription, dating about the beginning of the fourth century B.C., so that its disappearance from general use must have taken place at a comparatively early period. Its appearance in Latin orthography is confined to a few words for which it was the common abbreviation, as Kalendae, Kaeso.¹

V. This letter, originating in the Greek upsilon of the form V, served the purpose of both vowel and consonant (semi-vowel). The differentiation of the vowel and the consonant did not occur until about the tenth century A.D.

X. This letter, which Quintilian calls nostrarum ultima, was the last letter in the early alphabet of the Romans. In inscriptions of all periods after the Senatus Consultum de Bacchanalibus 568/186, which has, e.g., the form EXSTRAD for extra, xs are found for x, perhaps because the X is regarded as equal to Greek X (ch), and then naturally s is needed. The attempt to express the sound of c followed by s led to such irregular orthography as ucxor, vixit C. I. L. V. 5735, iuxta C. I. L. VI. 14614, and visit C. I. L. VIII. 67.

Y. This letter, in reality the Greek upsilon, was employed in the days of the Republic to represent the Greek υ, for the Latin V corresponded more nearly to Greek ου. Before the use of Y, the Greek υ was represented by Latin V or at times I. (Cf. Cic. Orator, 48. 160, where Ennius is said to have written Burrus for Pyrrhus and Bruges for Phryges.) Ritschl, P. L. M. E. 124, states that, with one exception, there is no instance of the use of this letter until the seventh century of the City.

Z. This letter belonged to the earliest Latin alphabet, in which it probably had the place which the letter G afterwards assumed, since this is the position of the ζ in the Greek alphabet.

In the Duenos Inscription it is believed by some to occur in the word dze for die, although the letter may be l, or a V forming part of the word Duenoi. It is found in a fragment of an old priestly prayer, Carmen Saliorum, given by Varro, L. L. VII. 26 (M).¹ It appears on a coin of Cosa dating after 273 B.C.² taking the place of S in the word Coza(no), and is also seen in the transcription of an Oscan Law of the time of the Gracchi.³ After this we have no trace of the letter until the time of Sulla, when it reappears as representing the Greek ζ, for which, when initial, S had been used, or, when medial, SS.⁴ Cicero (Orator, 48. 160),—Nec enim Graecam litteram adhibebant, nunc autem etiam duas,—probably referred to Y and Z. It should be remembered that Z, when reintroduced, was a Greek letter, and was so recognized in the first century A.D. Z took the last place in the alphabet.

Various attempts were made to add to the Latin alphabet. Verrius Flaccus, of the Augustan age, suggested a mutilated M, i.e. N, to take the place of M when final.⁵ No trace of this has been found, so that it evidently did not come into use.

of bs and ps, and the Greek spiritus † for the sound intermediate between i and u. Claudius wrote a book discussing the need of these letters, and, when emperor, ordered that they should be introduced. This was done in state documents, as senate decrees, such as Tacitus saw (Annales, XI. 14), also in the mandates of magistrates and of priests. The most common of these letters is the inverted digamma to indicate the consonant V. There is no certain example of the use of the antisigma Ϝ. The letter † for the middle sound between i and u is found in inscriptions of the time of Claudius to express a Greek upsilon in the words Aeg†pti, Bath†llus, C†cnus, G†conis, M†ro, N†mphius, P†lades, Zop†rus. It also occurs in B†bliotheca and once in G†bernator. It answers to the i or u before labials, which occurs in the superlative terminations, as opt†mus and max†mus. This letter may have had the value of the French u or the German ü.¹

In the early period, to represent the Greek φ, χ, and θ, the Latin employed P, C, and T just as S and SS had been used for ζ, and V or more rarely I for Υ. About the close of the second century B.C. the aspiration begins to appear, and for the following fifty years the usage varied between the aspirated and unaspirated letters, until finally the aspirated form prevailed.² In inscriptions of the imperial period, however, there are found P, C, and T, instead of the aspirates, and in the later imperial period F for PH.

Double Consonants.

The introduction of double consonants is commonly assigned to Ennius (239–169 B.C.). This usage, beginning about the end of the sixth century of the City (150 B.C.), did not become common until the middle of the seventh century of the City (100 B.C.). The double consonant is seen first in the decree of Aemilius Paulus, dating 189 B.C. (See page 359.)

Marius Victorinus (p. 2456) and Isidorus (Orig. I. 26) refer to the sicilicus 3, which was placed over letters to indicate double consonants, thus SE²LA, A²SERES. The occurrence of this sign is uncommon, the period of its most frequent appearance being the early days of the Augustan age.

Double Vowels.

The tragic poet, Attius, 170–94, introduced the double letter to represent the long vowel.¹ Ritschl shows that this usage appears in Latin inscriptions from the time of the Gracchi up to the Mithridatic war (75 B.C.). The first instance is in the word paastores on the miliarium of Popilius, dating 132 B.C. This doubling was employed in the vowels A, E, U, but not O.² Thus we find faato, haace, Iuulius. Reference has already been made to the doubling of the l, not for the purpose, however, of lengthening the vowel, but to indicate the consonantal l.

CHAPTER II

THE LATIN ALPHABET (MORPHOLOGICAL)

THE early writing of the Phoenicians, Greeks, and Romans, shows a uniform style employed for both public and private use. Similar forms are found on the various materials used, such as clay or wax, and metal or stone, since there is only one form of writing. This uniformity is at first interfered with by reason of the difference in materials. Letters made in soft substances naturally display curved and easy lines, while stiff set forms are found on the hard surface, as the cutting of letters on metal or stone demands greater and more laborious toil. This difference in style is still more marked after the introduction of outlining in crayon or chalk, and of drawing letters in colors with a brush on such surfaces as walls and board tablets, finally in the use of ink and pen on papyrus or parchment. The Greeks appear to have used, for the most part, similar styles of writing for both public and private documents, and for inscriptions on monuments, down to the time of the Macedonian supremacy. In like manner the most ancient remains of Roman writing show a style uniform even in its rudeness. This style was not changed until the sixth century of the City, when there was introduced from the Greeks the custom of adorning buildings and monuments with inscriptions, the letters of which were made with regard for beauty and elegance.

ARCHAIC ALPHABET

This early uniform writing of the Romans may be designated as the Archaic Alphabet. We know from Dionysius of Halicarnassus (Antiq. IV. 26 and 58) that the Romans used writing very early in their history. The treaty of peace made by Tarquinius (Superbus?)

with the Gabii was written on an ox-hide γράμμασιν ἀρχαῖκοῖς and stored in the temple of Sancus.¹ A treaty made by Servius Tullius with the Latins is said to have been cut in bronze (στήλην χαλκῆν).² Cicero (pro Balbo 23. 53) refers to a treaty of alliance between Rome and the Latins engraved on a bronze column, and Polybius III. 22 mentions a commercial treaty made between Carthage and Rome in the earliest days of the Republic, likewise engraved on bronze in the temple of Jupiter Capitolinus.

The oldest Latin inscription extant, that on the golden fibula of Praeneste,³ dating possibly in the sixth century B.C., shows letters which are really Greek in form, and which bear witness to the Greek parentage of the Latin letters, and to a period when the Latin alphabet was in a transition state, not fully naturalized. Very old forms, showing Greek influence, are also found in the Duenos Inscription,⁴ which dates perhaps in the early part of the fourth century B.C. Besides these, there remain to us inscriptions on coins, mirrors, boxes, and vases. This archaic alphabet is found in the inscriptions given by Ritschl. P. L. M. E. plates I.–XVII. The marked characteristics of this alphabet are, first and mainly, the near approach to the parent alphabets, the Greek and the Phoenician; the lack of uniformity in the various forms of the same letter (see A), also the oblique lines (as in N); together with general irregularity and unevenness. Such archaic forms as Λ, Α, Α, Β, Δ, Π, Ι, Λ, ΙΙΙ, Γ, Ϛ, Ω, Ϟ, ϟ, indicate a period prior to the Second Punic War.

MONUMENTAL ALPHABET OF THE REPUBLIC

The employment of inscriptions on great monuments led to an improvement in the style of the letters. This can be seen by examining the monuments of the last three centuries of the Republic.

The earliest of these are the dedicatory inscriptions from the grove of Pisaurum, and the most archaic of the tituli sepulcrales from Praeneste.

Monumental inscriptions of the seventh century of the City show marked improvement in the forms and details of the letters, the exactness and beauty of which increase with the growth of the custom of erecting, and likewise inscribing, large architectural monuments, whether sepulchral, dedicatory or honorary. The fully developed scriptura monumentalis belongs to the days of Augustus and to the early Empire.

MONUMENTAL ALPHABET PERFECTED

The letters cut in stone and appearing on large and impressive monuments represent the standard of this fully developed alphabet. It is the scriptura quadrata or lapidaria of Petronius (29. 58).¹

This standard scriptura monumentalis was mainly the work of the professional stonecutter, who made the letters with exactness after a pattern previously outlined in color or crayon. There is no adornment, such as extended or added lines, apices, cornua. The letters are square and exact. Whatever variation is found in this alphabet is due to the skill and care of the stonecutter, and is shown in the depth of the cut, gracefulness of form and exactness in detail. It must be remembered that these forms were not confined to stone, but were used on other material, such as bronze.

Although it is not known when she died, the inscription may with probability be assigned to the earlier part of the reign of Augustus.

While this scriptura quadrata is strictly the alphabet of great monuments during the early Empire, yet other forms more or less ornamented, showing the influence of the lettering of the acta and of the more ordinary alphabets, are found in monumental inscriptions

DOCUMENTARY FORMS OF THE LETTERS

Reference has already been made to the influence upon the forms of letters due to the materials used. This is seen most clearly in the formative period before the alphabet has reached its full development, but subsequently another principle supersedes the former. The character of the subject-matter determines the style of writing, and letters are made with a certain design and according to what finally becomes a fixed custom. The effect of this influence may be seen to some extent in the days of the Republic, as in the writing on the bronze law plates, but in the time of the Empire the alphabets as employed for various purposes can be plainly distinguished.

In contrast, then, to the letter system of the great architectural monuments, the letters of which were carefully outlined and deeply cut, a more simple style was employed for the more ordinary inscriptions. This style, differing at first merely in size from that of the monumental, gradually assumed its individuality, and finally developed along two general lines, namely, the forms of writing employed in public documents, scriptura actuaria; and again, but more widely, the cursive writing used in ordinary life, as on wax tablets.

In the early days of Rome public announcements were made by painting letters with ink on the walls or on white board tablets. Such were the declarations of the priests as to the feriae and prodigia, also the publication of the names of the magistrates, and the historical notices known as Annales Maximi. By the same method advertisements of various kinds and information as to contracts and sales were later on placed upon the walls of buildings. This use of the brush had its influence upon the forms of the letters, and a style which was an approach to the alphabet of the pen, and which after became the book-hand, was used for public documents, acta, cut in bronze. The curving of the oblique lines of the letters A, M, N, and of the transverse strokes as in A, E, F, H, I, T, the extending of the tails of L, Q, R, and the diminution in the size of the upper part of the B and R, mark this writing of the acta.

No exact or set lines can be drawn defining the use of this alphabet, but its letters are found in stone inscriptions also, and this form of writing, scriptura actuaria, became the system used in inscriptions in general after the fourth century A.D.

The following inscriptions will illustrate the alphabet of the acta as engraved first of all on metal and then on stone.

CURSIVE LETTERS IN THE INSCRIPTIONS

Naturally letters made without any regard for elegance or even moderate adornment or clearness of outline present the same variations which are found in the rapid and inartistic writing of common life. Early Roman capitals made rapidly and carelessly are the predecessors of the cursive letters of the first three centuries of the Christian era. In the early *vulgaris*¹ lettering we find such forms as A, H, I, Q, K, which, in modified form, are prominent in the cursive alphabets shown on pages 44 and 46.

Cursive writing² is that found on wax or on clay before it is baked. It appears on the wax tablets of Pompeii and Dacia, on the wall inscriptions of Pompeii and other cities, on tiles marked by children, and on vessels for domestic use made of gold, silver, and clay. As with the writing of the acta, this cursive style cannot be set within well-defined limits, for it is found in the laws and invades the dignified inscriptions of the monuments. Even as early as the first century of the Christian era, cursive letters are found in the monumental inscriptions, and in the course of time some of its forms supplant the more regular types.

UNCIAL LETTERS IN THE INSCRIPTIONS

A form of script used upon papyrus and parchment, consisting of rounded forms with vertical strokes somewhat curved is known as uncial. From the close of the fourth century these letters appear in inscriptions cut in stone, mainly in the acta and in carmina of a dedicatory character.

A few inscriptions, however, have been found in Africa, which may be assigned to the close of the third century, of which all the letters are uncial in character. The following is a portion of one of these.

METHODS OF MAKING INSCRIPTIONS¹

To study properly the forms of letters, and appreciate the changes which they undergo, it is very essential to consider the methods by which these forms were imparted to the various materials used.

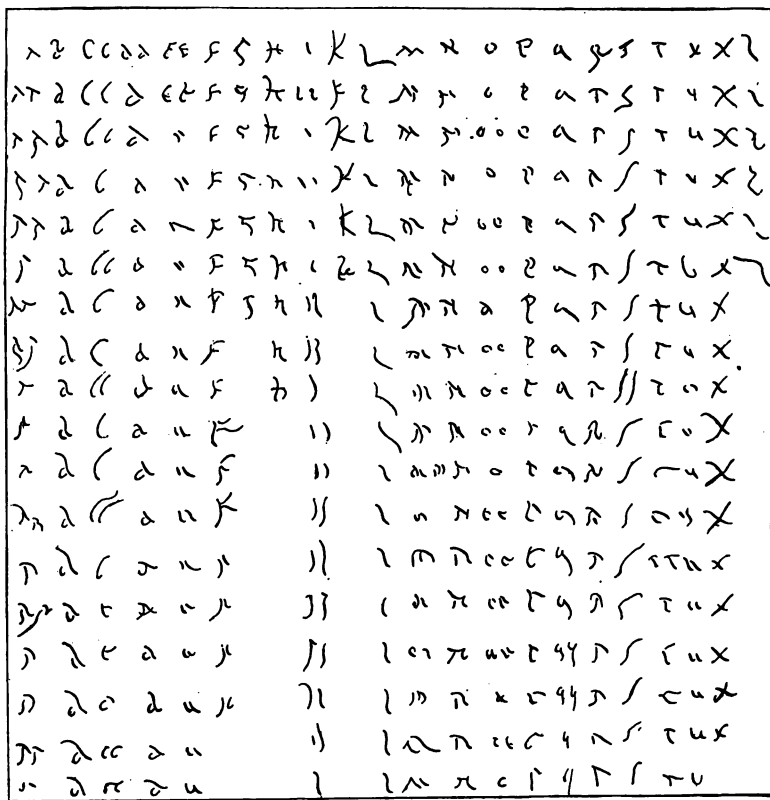

Statements of ancient writers, also terms used in literature and in the inscriptions, as well as a careful examination of existing remains, provide us with information as to the art of engraving letters.

The exactness with which letters were inscribed on stone and bronze bears witness to the existence of a custom of outlining in crayon or chalk, or of painting in black, red, or white color, as preliminary to the work of the stonecutter or engraver.

There is every reason to believe that the practice of giving exactness to lettering in stone by means of patterns prevailed generally at all periods. The effect of cutting after a pattern made with the brush is seen in the later tendency to imitate painted letters in the inscriptions.

PLATE VI—CURSIVE OF DACIA

The custom just referred to originated in the earlier usage existing among the Romans of painting inscriptions, a practice derived, in all probability, from the Phoenicians and Greeks, and found also among other people of Italy, such as the Etruscans and Samnites, who made sepulchral inscriptions in this manner.

Some of the earliest of the Roman tituli sepulcrales on the Scipio sarcophagi show letters painted in minium. Reference is made in the Lex Acilia Repetundarum 631/123 to the custom of painting on board tablets.¹ Fasti have been found at Rome painted in red or black colors on the walls of buildings. In like manner registers of officers of the year 707-708 A.U.C. were painted in black upon buildings of Pompeii built of light colored tufa. Amphorae of various kinds show many instances of this custom. How widely the practice extended can be appreciated by considering that a number of painted inscriptions exist to-day, though such a preservation is remarkable.²

Letters Cut in Stone.

The next operation in the preparation of inscriptions, after outlining or painting of patterns, was the work of the stonecutter (mar-morarius, lapidarius), which consisted in the cutting (sculpo, scalpo, insculpo) letters out of stone with the use of tools, principally the chisel (scalprum), and the hammer (malleus). Other tools of which we have knowledge from representations in the inscriptions³ were the regula, compasses (circinus), used also in the pattern-making, square (norma), level and plumb-line (libella et perpendicularum), the scalpellum, dolabra, and ascia. The form of the cut is that of an inverted isosceles triangle , hence angular and not oblong nor curved. This shape has been useful in determining the genuineness of inscriptions, for it is an evidence of antiquity;¹ and the additions of modern hands can thus be recognized. The smoothness and evenness which it displays testify to the perfection attained in this art.

As we infer from the perfect and exact form of the letters that they were outlined before being cut, so the evenness and regular order of words lead us to believe that lines of direction were marked upon the stone, probably by means of a cord covered with minium. Naturally these have disappeared. In one of the Scipio inscriptions lines are plainly seen which were marked in the stone (see page 240). After the letters were cut in the stone they were frequently colored with minium, litterae rubricatae,—a practice which belongs to the more recent inscriptions, as well as to those of the most ancient period.²

In addition to these methods, it became common in the days of great architectural designs and ornamentation to form letters out of some material such as bronze or lead, and insert them in the stone by means of rivets set into holes previously prepared, or to fasten them upon the surface. The architraves of temples, gates, porticoes, and public buildings, particularly in the Province of Africa, were adorned by these letters in relief (litterae incrustatae or caelatae). Pavements were inlaid with bronze and lead, and bronze plates were inscribed with letters of silver; on vases of silver letters of gold appear, while bronze weights were thus marked with silver.

Letters Engraved on Metal.

As stone was the material used for monumental inscriptions (tituli), so bronze was employed for documents (acta), such as leges, senatus consulta, edicta, etc.

The cutting of letters in bronze was the work of the aerarius or caelator. This operation is referred to by ancient writers under the word incidere.³ The difference in material required different methods of treatment, lighter and smaller tools, and work more minute in detail. Hence we find a style of writing related to that employed on board and wax tablets.

As can be seen from the bronze plates given in facsimile by Ritschl (P. L. M. E.), in the laws of the Republic the style of the letters is that of the early cursive writing with space between lines, giving evidence of a rapidly moving scalprum. Later documents (acta), show that great skill and facility were attained by those who prepared bronze tablets in the time of the Empire (see page 42).

In addition to the documents which were engraved on bronze, inscriptions appearing on various objects of various materials show the use of a similar tool (scalprum), and a similar style of lettering. Such are the thin bronze plates (laminae), placed on the bases of statues and altars and attached in different ways to votive offerings.

Bronze vases and figures, likewise ivory and bone tesserae, and, in a more recent period, consular diptychs, were engraved with a tool similar to that used in making the acta, and show, in consequence, letters of the same or similar character.

In addition to the ordinary methods of engraving or scratching letters upon metal or other materials, at times the lines were made by a succession of points cut in the surface. Letters of this character are found to some extent on gold and silver, but frequently on bronze paterae, tabellae, and shields.

Written Inscriptions.

The two forms of inscriptions described above, namely, those on stone and those on metal, show letters deeply cut with a graving tool by professional workmen.

Although not the technical term, the word scribo was used in reference to this engraving on stone and metal, but applied more exactly and consistently to inscriptions which may be said to have been "written," inasmuch as they were made without the formal, artistic work of the lapidarius or aerarius, but as the writing of ordinary daily life.

These inscriptions show a style of writing of the character of that looked for on wax tablets or on papyrus. Of such a nature are the inscriptions cut with a large stilus (graphium), in such material as the lime or clay of house walls, or on earthen vessels used for various purposes.

in cursive style cut or scratched with a graphium are found also at Rome, as, for example, on the walls of the guard-house of the seventh cohort of the Vigiles.¹

On clay vessels lettering was made either before or after baking. In the former case, as the material was soft, the lines are curved, while in the latter they are angular, as cut in hard material with a sharper stilus. Tiles were also thus marked with cursive lettering before or after the material had been hardened, and were used for educational purposes, often containing alphabets and verses, also for memoranda of various kinds, such as directions to workmen in the brickfields.² Very early examples of these scratched tiles have been found in Etruria, containing sepulchral inscriptions with Etruscan words written with Latin letters.³

It is not upon such surfaces alone that these scratched (scaripho), or written letters, are found, but metal which was soft enough for the purpose was also used as material for what may be termed "written inscriptions." There exist to-day vessels of silver, such as drinking goblets, and patellae, inscribed thus in cursive style with the names of the maker and the weight. Bronze tablets were thus inscribed with maledictory inscriptions (devotiones), written in a cursive or semi-cursive style. Lead, as being a softer metal, was freely used for these devotiones and for sepulchral inscriptions, but specimens are rare, as the material was easily destroyed. A very early example of the use of lead for inscriptions is the dedicatory lamina given C. I. L. I. 196.

Unscientific Cutting in Stone.

The different methods of making inscriptions described above do not include the unscientific cutting (sculpo) of large letters with a scalprum by those ignorant of the art of engraving or careless in their work.

A peculiar style of lettering, which approaches the cursive, resulted from this amateur inscribing. It has been termed the scriptura vulgaris.¹ Ritschl² has shown that traces of this style are found in the most ancient inscriptions. The imperial period, however, provides much more numerous illustrations of this vulgaris writing, which may be regarded as the epigraphic cursive style. Inscriptions with this lettering were cut without the assistance of outlines, in a careless and hasty manner.

Hence we should place under this classification inscriptions found in quarries and on blocks of stone which were inscribed before their removal to the place for which they were designed.

Inscriptions are also found cut in the natural rock which show an irregularity due in some measure to the hardness of material and inconvenience of location. A very early illustration is the sepulchral inscription from Pescina, dating about the time of Sulla, which is given below. The letters are monumental, but show in some particulars a cursive tendency.

Another method of making inscriptions which is different from any mentioned above, and which was employed in the main upon the smaller articles classed in C. I. L. under Instrumentum, given at the close of each volume, is that of impressing inscriptions upon a soft substance by means of stamps of hard material.

The greater number of these inscriptions stand forth from the surface in relief, and were produced by stamps upon which letters were deeply cut. There have also been found inscriptions pressed into the softer substance, which are distinguished from cut inscriptions by the shape of the impression, which is curved or square rather than triangular.

These letters in relief appear on various remains. Such are the lamps made of clay or terra-cotta upon which the names of the potters are pressed, also vessels of every kind, such as large Roman amphorae, upon the handles of which these stamped letters are found.

Household utensils of metal are also marked in relief with the names of the maker. So arms, metal ornaments and equipment show the name of the aerarius imprinted upon them when in the mold.

In addition to these, pigs of silver, bronze, and lead, found in the mines of England, also the lead water pipes (fistulae plumbeae) and lead missiles (glandes plumbeae), lead tabellae or tesserae which have been cast, show these letters in relief (litterae prominentes).

The most interesting of these inscriptions impressae are those made upon tiles from the numerous tile and brick kilns (figlinae). See page 269.

These inscriptions in relief which have been imprinted by means of stamps are seen also on glass vessels.

INDIVIDUAL LETTERS

The various forms of the letter A may be classified with reference to the three following types:

1. A, with transverse. 2. A, without transverse. 3. A A, with pendant. A. This is found in the earliest remains with the position of the transverse varying in its relation to the height of the letter.

It is also the monumental form, but with the position of the transverse fixed midway between the top and bottom of the letter. Little ornamentation is attached to this standard letter.

À Á Â Ã Ä Å. In the imperial period ornamented forms showing additions (cornua) and extensions of certain lines become prevalent. It is noticeable that the extensions are regularly to the left.

Λ. This form is due at first to the negligence of the graver. It appears in the smaller letters of the instrumenta of the Republic and Empire, but belongs to the cursive writing of inscriptions of all periods. Λ Λ Λ, more rarely Λ, are of Latin origin, and belong in the earliest period to the vulgaris, and later to the cursive writing, both of the Republic and Empire.

The rounded form of this letter is the one in ordinary use in all periods. B, the angular shape, is rarely found in early inscriptions, but occurs in letters cut in lead in time of the Empire, the form being due to the material. The variation in the forms of this letter depends upon the relative sizes of the lobes. Inscriptions in vulgaris lettering on pages 53 and 56 show a form in which the upper lobe has entirely disappeared. Compare with this the cursive letters, in which further modifications are seen.

< (Ɔ are the archaic forms. In early inscriptions the only point of difference is the breadth, but the full rounded form belongs to the best period.

D

▷ ▷ ▷ are the archaic forms, the first recalling the letter of the old Chalcidian alphabet. Like C, this letter varies merely in its breadth, and the form of the best period is full and round. ▷ ▷ ▷ occur on the metal plates containing leges of the republican period.

Ǝ Ǝ Ǝ E II are the archaic forms of this letter. The monumental form of the best period has three equal parallel horizontals. A similar shape belongs to the days of the Republic, though it is very narrow in the leges on the bronze plates, but the letter of the Augustan age is well proportioned. A diminution in the length of the central horizontal gives evidence of a period later than the Augustan age.

II. This form is very general in its occurrence, appearing in the archaic alphabet and among the cursive forms of the Republic and Empire. It is not a form belonging to the City either in origin or use, although in the imperial period it is familiar in all regions and is found in stone inscriptions. Zangemeister suggests that IΞ, I: are transition forms from E to II. Hübner supposes that II = E is analogous to I' = F, and that the latter I' is developed from F through the medium of V or some one of the numerous cursive forms in which one transverse is wanting.

Є. This curved form, due to Greek influence, appears on a coin and on a jar of Praeneste of the republican period, and about the beginning of the second century A.D. is found in inscriptions which have cursive letters.

^ F F I' are the archaic forms of this letter. The monumental form of the best period has two horizontals equal and parallel. Narrow shapes are seen in the law plates.

F. This form with the second horizontal shorter than the upper is rare in monumental inscriptions until the fourth or fifth centuries. I' I' V' Γ I' are the vulgaris and cursive forms which appear in inscriptions of the later Empire, particularly those of Gaul and Germany. I' has been referred to in the account of II under E, with which its history is connected.

Like T and P, F often overtops other letters, particularly when it is initial in the line. This custom dates from the second century A.D., being found mainly in inscriptions of Italy and the provinces, and becomes prevalent in Rome after the third century.

G

The earliest form of this letter is G, in which the line of differentiation rises perpendicularly from the right-hand corner of the letter and terminates in a head scarcely perceptible. This is the general form up to the second century, although ζ is occasionally found.

6. This curved form is found at times in the first century, but becomes more common in the second and third centuries, particularly where smaller letters are used or where patterns have been drawn before the cutting of the inscription. It is very general in its use in City inscriptions of the third, fourth, and fifth centuries.

ζ ζ ζ ζ are the cursive forms which consort with Λ Π Γ Γ and later appear with uncials. In the latter part of the second century they appear on the smaller monuments with monumental letters, and become common in the fourth and fifth centuries.

H

\mathcal{H} . The earliest form of this letter, coinciding in fact with the early letter in the Phoenician and Greek alphabet, is seen on the Fibula Praenestina. A similar form is seen in the other Italic alphabets.

The main points of variation in the different forms of this letter are the breadth and the position of the transverse.

The standard monumental form of the early part of the first century is broad, and the transverse occupies a position at half the length of the shaft, but in almost the same period the letter is found narrow and with transverse higher up.

I

\mathcal{I} . This, the most ancient form of the letter, in which there is neither head nor foot, was the prevailing shape even in the early part of the imperial period; but during the first century the ornamentation of head and foot was added, particularly where painted patterns were followed. From the time of Sulla a tall \mathcal{I} is found taking the place to some extent of the more ancient \mathcal{E} \mathcal{I} which had been used to denote the long vowel. Thus in P. L. M. E. we find CHIL \mathcal{O} , MAGISTR \mathcal{I} , PRIMVS. It occurs very commonly in the word DIVVS, also in the genitive case DIV \mathcal{I} , again in the dative case, third declension, CAESAR \mathcal{I} , in dative and ablative plural of the second declension although more rarely, GRATIS, also in MEIS, HIS, and in the accusative plural of the third declension SAECVLARIS.

The tall letter is also used in certain positions as an additional form, and as representing merely a custom in writing. Thus it appears as an initial letter at the beginning of words and lines, from the Augustan period. The words ITEM and IN have a tall initial letter of which there appears to be no explanation save that it is a mere custom, originating in the tendency to ornament an inscription by the simple modification of certain letters. The form IMP (= imperator) is common in inscriptions from 10 B.C.¹ At the close of the second century the tall letter denoting the long vowel disappeared from use, but the graphic tall I seems to have been very common during the second and third centuries.²

The form J found at the end of words in the latter part of the second century is due merely to the caprice of the graver and has no additional value.

The point over the I is not of ancient origin, but appears about the fifth or sixth century A.D.

K

k. The ancient form of this letter belongs to the time of the Republic and Empire as well. In the earlier period the transverse lines are very short; after the first century, however, letters are found with one or both lengthened. In case of one being lengthened, the preference is in favor of the upper.

Occasionally K overtops its fellows.

l l l l l. These are the archaic forms of this letter. The most ancient form l, the same as the Chalcidian prototype, gave way, by degrees, to the rectangular shape, and disappeared from use about 200 B.C.

² For the tall letter used as the semivowel, see page 26.

⏏ ⏏ P P. These are the archaic forms, the first being due to the retrograde direction found in earliest inscriptions and, like the second, recalling the Greek prototype.

The standard letter of the monumental alphabet is the curved and open form. The closed letter is a chance occurrence in republican days, appearing on glandes plumbeae and tesserae. It is rare in the imperial period until the second century; but from the third century it is found in inscriptions of the City and provinces. In Germany, however, it appears as early as the close of the first century and afterwards with greater frequency than elsewhere.

This letter originates in the Greek koppa, hence its earliest form is Ϟ. Q Q Ϟ Q are other archaic forms.

The types of the Republic and Empire vary merely as to the tail, which is either short and straight or long and curved. The short and nearly straight projection belongs to the latter part of the Republic, while in the first century A.D. the tail is lengthened and curved, the abridged form becoming rare.

q. The oldest form of this letter as found in the Duenos Inscription is like the Greek original.

R R R R are other archaic forms. After the R attained its normal curved shape, its form depended upon the relative sizes of the upper and lower parts, as in B, also upon the length and shape of the tail and the manner of its union with the upper part.

The early letters have a full circular form with the end of the circle at times withdrawn from the shaft, while the tail originates at the shaft or close to it. The standard letter of the monumental alphabet of the Republic and Empire was marked by the fully rounded circular portion whose circumference terminated at the middle of the shaft. A diminished circle with circumference ending above the middle of the shaft and with a tail somewhat curved are later modifications. In this standard letter the tail either originates at the shaft, or in the circular portion at some distance from the shaft. The former is the earlier shape.

R. Often the tail begins at the end of an incomplete circle to the right of the shaft. This is found in the provinces both in the early period and in some monumental inscriptions of the second and third centuries.

< S > are the archaic forms of this letter of which the angular shape is found in the days of the Republic, but not of the Empire. S, the standard letter of the best period, shows the upper and lower portion equal and fully rounded. Inequality in the sizes of these two portions gives evidence of an inferior alphabet.

f. Very slender letters approaching the straight line are found in inscriptions of the lower class, particularly of the provinces.

C. This is found in inscriptions showing Greek influence, as those of Naples and Sicily. It is a form of the Greek Ξ. The original four-stroke Greek Ξ appears in Latin as an indication of value to denote the semuncia.

In rare instances S is taller than other letters when standing at the beginning of the line, and more rarely still when medial.

† † † † are the archaic forms of this letter.

In the early period of the Empire the standard letter was plain, with transverse at right angles to the shaft, not very short, but unornamented.

A form with transverse slightly curved † appears in inscriptions of the first century, and is very common in the second, third and fourth centuries. It belongs originally to the documentary writing and the cursive letters.

Very often this letter rises above others, for reasons of space. Examples of this are found from the beginning of the seventh century of the City, and in the imperial period the usage is very common.

V. This is the early, and at the same time the regular form of this letter in the Republic and Empire.

At times the apex of the angle is placed a little to the right, and as a consequence the right side becomes perpendicular and the left side is lengthened.

The curved form U belonging to the uncial writing is found in City inscriptions of the last part of the second and the first part of the third centuries. It afterwards appears frequently in inscriptions with uncial letters.

The early form of this letter is unornamented and exact, with lines equally divided. In the imperial period the quadrate form is the more elegant, but the ordinary shape is narrow and graceful.

Many instances occur of a form marked by the broadening of the transverse X. This is seen not only in the plain letter, but also in the more recent and more elegant forms.

This letter, as well as the Z which follows, was introduced in the later days of the Republic, to aid in transliterating Greek words. Alphabetic forms were then attaining the perfection which marked the Augustan letters, hence both Y and Z are well proportioned in their early history.

The regular letter is a plain rectilinear figure, with the two sides of the angle equal. Even in the best period, however, letters with curved lines are common.

Z

The letters of the best period show equal angles and equal horizontals.

J †

These are the two letters of Claudius that appear in inscriptions. The former, denoting the consonant V, is the more common.

LIGATURES

The necessity for economizing space in engraving letters led to the expedient of joining them in monograms. This custom first appears in the lettering of coins about 200 B.C., and in inscriptions about 150 B.C., particularly at the end of the line, where other devices, such as the use of small letters and their insertion in curved letters, mainly C, e.g. \mathcal{C} , \mathcal{C} , and superposition, as $\overset{F}{M}$, were also employed.

The use of ligatures did not become very general in Rome or Italy, but they are common in Gallic inscriptions from the first century A.D., and in those of Germany after the second century, while they abound in African inscriptions of the third century.

The ligatures of the cursive alphabet of the Dacian wax tablets are given in Plate VII. These present peculiar difficulties, while those of the capital letters, a few of the most common of which are given below, are more readily interpreted.¹

SICILICUS. APEX. MARKS OF PUNCTUATION

SICILICUS ǀ

This has already been referred to in the treatment of double consonants.

The testimony of the Grammarians, that the sicilicus was used to denote that the consonant should be regarded as a double letter, is supported by a few instances of its use found in the inscriptions of the time of Augustus. C. I. L. V. 1361; C. I. L. X. 3743.

APEX

From the period just after Sulla up to the second half of the third century vowels long by nature were denoted by a sign termed the apex. They appear most frequently in inscriptions of the first century A.D., and of the first half of the second.

The earliest form of this sign is ʾ ʔ ʃ ʔ, but in the time of the Empire the usual form is the acute accent ´.

The apex is found over A, E, O, V, El = ī, but very rarely over l.¹

Its occurrence in the acta is decidedly less frequent than in the monumental inscriptions.

Other methods of indicating the long vowel were:

- (a) The double vowel introduced by Attius (see page 30).
- (b) The use of El, the spurious diphthong, to denote long l, a custom dating from the Gracchan period, 620/134.
- (c) The tall l, from the time of Sulla up to latter half of second century.

In the Augustan age both methods were still in use, as in the Monumentum Ancyranum a number of words (twenty-two at least) are found with tall l, and three with El.

PUNCTUATION

From earliest times individual words in inscriptions were separated by marks of punctuation, which regularly occupied a position midway between the upper and lower limits of the letters. These points, as a rule, were not placed at the end of a line, and did not indicate sentences or parts of sentences.

There are various forms of these punctuation marks. The round form, which may be regarded as the primitive mark, belongs in its general use to inscriptions in raised letters. Very rarely are round marks found in inscriptions, as in stone this shape would be most difficult to make. Stone workers probably made a square with four blows of the chisel, hence we have ■, ■, ■ in the more ancient inscriptions. In the more elaborate inscriptions triangular shaped points are found, ▶, ▲, ◀, which are made more ornamental by the curving of the sides, ➤.

These triangular points remained in use from the earliest times down to the most recent periods.

The triangular shape finally passed into the form of an ivy leaf, termed in an inscription (C. I. L. VIII. 6982) hederae distinguentes, ⚡, ⚡. This form is very common in the latter part of the first century, but is not found in the time of the Republic (see page 40). Naturally in cursive writing the form of punctuation would be a line. Hence in the "scratched" inscriptions of Pompeii we find examples of this form, and from the close of the second century it is found in the stone inscriptions. It has the following varieties: —, ~, \, ~.

These points of punctuation were regularly placed between the letters, but in some cases, for lack of space, they are found above, or in case of the round forms C, D, G, O, Q, inside of the letter.

Punctuation was not confined to the separation of words, but may be found between syllables, and in some cases between letters. In sepulchral inscriptions of the lower class unusual punctuation of this kind had a place, but it is rare in great public and private inscriptions.

In some instances the component parts of compounds were indicated by punctuation, as sub · legi, in · perato, ad · versus.

Rarely are points found at the beginning of lines, but more frequently at the end.

In carmina the metric lines are marked, and when half-verses are written this also is indicated by punctuation.

At times a long space takes the place of the punctuation mark. In one of the Scipio "Elogia" the ends of the metric lines are indicated by the spacing, while in another the punctuation mark is used, in this case a horizontal line.¹

Like the ivy leaves referred to above, branches of palm are found as early as the first century marking the more important divisions.

Under the Republic, punctuation marks were rarely omitted. The leges of the seventh century of the City are an exception in this respect, either because of Greek influence or the carelessness of the engraver.

Still more rarely are points omitted in inscriptions of the best period, from Augustus to Hadrian. In sepulchral inscriptions of the lower class, however, they are quite often neglected.

DIVISION OF WORDS

In the more ancient inscriptions words were not, as a rule, divided at the ends of lines, but were written entire. This is particularly true of the older leges of the Republic, with some rare exceptions, such as the Lex Rubria.² In the acta of the imperial period words are frequently divided, the division following the usual law of syllables which generally holds in the inscriptions.

CHAPTER III

NUMERALS

THE characters which served as Latin numerals are as old as the letters of the alphabet, and in some cases perhaps older. The original numerals were the vertical I denoting the large unit, the horizontal — or • denoting the small unit, while V denoted 5, and X denoted 10. The earlier system was probably decimal, the small unit being $\frac{1}{10}$ of the large; and, although in the later change to the duodecimal system the small unit became equal to $\frac{1}{12}$ of the large, the original signs —, • were still used.¹

Upon the introduction of the alphabet two letters were adopted as numerals, ↓ (later ↓, I, L), the Chalcidian ch, = 50, and Φ, ph (later CIO) = 1000, since they were not needed in the Latin alphabet. A sign for 100 must have been adopted in like manner, and its later representative, C, seems to indicate as its origin Θ (th), the remaining aspirate. This appears from a comparison with Etruscan numerals, which closely resemble the Latin, as I = 1, Λ = 5, X = 10, ↑ = 50. As the Etruscan alphabet retained the aspirates, we would naturally expect some mark of differentiation, if such letters were used as numerals. Hence ↓ inverted, i.e. ↑ = 50, Φ becoming ⋈ = 1000, and O or □, the Etruscan th, becoming ⊗ = 100. The similarity existing between the Etruscan and Latin systems thus supports the theory that Θ originally expressed 100.¹

The remaining Roman numerals were formed by indicating multiplication by the doubling of the signs, as ① = 1000, ② = 10000, ③ = 100000, while the halves of these: D = 500, 𐍅 = 5000, and 𐍆 = 50000. In the more ancient times the Roman numerals did not go beyond 100000, so that it was necessary to repeat the sign for 100000 to indicate higher amounts. In the inscription on the Columna Rostrata Φ is repeated some thirty times.

At a later period a sign $\bigcirc 5$, indicating quingenta milia, is found as a substitute for the repetition of signs denoting 100000.

In the latter part of the Republic a custom became prevalent to write simple numbers and indicate multiplication by lines above for thousands, and with others on the sides of the signs for hundred thousands, so e.g. \bar{V} took the place of $100 = 5000$, \bar{D} took the place of $\bigcirc 5 = 500000$, and $|\bar{X}| = 1000000$. The earliest use of these lines is found in the Lex Rubria¹ of Caesar's time. In the early Empire the two systems are both in use. Thus in the Pompeian auction tablets of the time of Nero the earlier system is found, while in another of the same period the latter. In the later period the latter form prevailed.²

There appears to have been a tendency at first to assimilate numerals to letters. The original numerals I, V, X were identical with three of the letters, and when Φ was divided the resulting form became a D, C took the place of the Θ , and \downarrow became L.

M for mille or milia appeared from the second century A.D., but in the combination M · P = milia passuum the use of M was much older. The M was an abbreviation for the word mille or milia, and was never used by the Romans as a numeral.³

The adoption of the C as 100 must have taken place after the date of our earliest inscriptions, subsequent to the time when shefhaked and pakari were written, for centum at that time would have been kentum.

Difficulty naturally arose from the employment of the same signs as letters and numerals. In consequence of this we find a mark of differentiation used, namely, a line crossing the numeral. This is seen in \mathfrak{D} , which dates from the seventh century of the City; cf. also \mathfrak{X} denoting the denarius.

³ Mommsen, Hermes, XXII. p. 601, XV M · N (133 A.D., Henzen 6086); HS · L M · N (153 A.D., Orelli, 2417).

In the Augustan period the line was placed over the numeral, perhaps coincident with the use of numerals of iteration in titles. In the time of the Republic the number of iteration with official titles was given in letters, but from the time of the battle of Actium numerals were used.¹

To express amounts intervening between these numerals, the signs were placed side by side until the next denomination was reached.

Two methods might be used: 1) the addition method, when the higher number preceded, 2) the subtraction method, when the lower denomination preceded.

The former of these two methods is the older and more usual. 1st method, XVIII = 18; 2d method, XIX = 18; so IIII is more regular than IV, and VIIII than IX.

For the subtraction method Mommsen (Hermes, XXII. 603) gives the following rules:

1) Not merely one number, but many in order, could be subtracted, so that IIX is just as correct or incorrect as IX.

2) Only the numerals I, X,² C,³ were, as a rule, used in subtraction, seldom the sign for 1000, and never V, L, D.

3) The number I is subtracted, as a rule, only before V and X, and only by exception before L and the higher numbers.

4) The subtractive method has the object of saving space. It is therefore inadmissible unless room is gained, so, not IIII but VII, not XXXC but LXX. It predominates in cases where an essential simplification is obtained, and, therefore, particularly in the numbers 80 and 90, and occurs more in the carelessly made private inscriptions than in the precise monumental writing.

5) The numeral or numerals to be subtracted were placed before the last numeral of an addition series, so that XIIX = 18 was written, not IIXX; and CCCXXC = 380, not XXCCCC.

There are certain numerals which deserve special consideration.

2. II. This numeral, with the earlier position of line of differentiation, is regularly seen in HS denoting sestertius. $\overline{\text{II}}$ occurs very frequently, particularly when indicating successive consulships and denoting duumvir ($\overline{\text{II}}$ VIR). At the beginning of lines $\overline{\text{I}}$ is also found.

4. Either IV or IIII. The former, the subtractive form, belongs to writing of the lower class, appearing first on the vessels of San Cesareo, which date in the seventh century of the City.

IIII is the more usual form, varying as follows: HH , IIII , $\overline{\text{IIII}}$, frequently denoting quattuorviri, $\overline{\text{IIII}}$, $\overline{\text{IIII}}$ VIR.

5. V. In Pompeian tablets it is found on its side. IIIII appears in African inscriptions.

6. VI, also $\overline{\text{IIII}}$.

8. VIII. The subtractive form IIX is a rare occurrence.

9. VIIII is the more common form. IX is rare.

10. X. The transverse cuts the middle of the letter when the denarius is denoted, X .

14. XIIII is more common than XIV.

18. XVIII, but XIIIX in C. I. L. III. 582.

19. XVIIIII.

28. XXVIII, but XXIIIX, C. I. L. VI. 9934.

In some inscriptions $\text{XX} = 20$, $\text{XXI} = 25$, $\text{XXII} = 30$, $\text{XXIII} = 35$, $\text{XXIV} = 40$.

50. \downarrow is the original form, \downarrow appears down to the Augustan period, \perp is seen in the "Lex Repetundarum" (123 B.C.), and during the first and second centuries A.D.

60-100. To represent numbers between 50 and 100, L with X repeated is the regular form. In some African inscriptions XXXXXX (C. I. L. VIII. 1108) is found. $\overline{\text{LXXX}}$ and $\overline{\text{LXXX}}$ are worthy of notice.

500. D, originally half of D , was subsequently marked by transverse D , as in the "Lex Repetundarum," and in many inscriptions of the Empire.

1000. D is the oldest form. This was not maintained, but appeared in the more common form ∞ , which was also modified to ∞ or ∞ .

Combinations of the preceding signs were used to denote higher numbers. $\infty \infty \infty \text{C} = 4100$. $\infty \infty \infty \text{CCXX} = 3220$. $\overline{\text{XXI}}$ DCLXI = 21661.

By exception, the additional thousands were denoted by the subtractive form, thus $\infty \text{ } \text{↵} = 4000$ (C. I. L. X. 1273).

10000 = Ⓢ , or ↵ , ↱ , Ⓢ , ↱ .

5000 = ↵ , or ↵ , ↱ , ↱ .

100000 = Ⓢ , or ↵ .

50000 = ↵ , or ↵ .

The use of a horizontal and verticals has already been referred to. $\text{↱} = 10000$. $\text{↱} = 1,000,000$.

In the time of Hadrian the ↱ , regularly denoting 100000, was strangely used to indicate 1000.

FRACTIONS

The Roman system of fractions is based upon a division of the unit, as, into twelfths, uncia, the former being denoted by ↱ , the latter by — or . . The use of the nobler metals led to a division of the uncia, thus $\frac{1}{2}$, $\frac{1}{3}$, $\frac{1}{4}$, $\frac{1}{6}$, $\frac{1}{8}$, $\frac{1}{12}$, and finally $\frac{1}{24}$ of the uncia.

All these fractions have special names, and can be arranged in the following table, showing the duodecimal system.

	As.	Unciae.

Dimidia sextula	$\frac{1}{12}$	$\frac{1}{2}$ \mathcal{Z}
Scriptulum	$\frac{1}{24}$	$\frac{1}{4}$ \mathcal{O}
Siliqua	$\frac{1}{12}$	$\frac{1}{2}$ \mathcal{Z}

The signs for the various fractions are derived from the initial letters of particular words; thus, S for semis; Σ , and later \mathcal{L} , for semuncia and sembella; \mathcal{Z} for sextula; T for terruncius, which corresponds to the sicilicus. The \mathcal{O} of the sicilicus and the \mathcal{O} of the scriptulum are from the round forms of the Greek sigma.¹ \mathcal{U} is due to the repetition of the \mathcal{Z} , the sign of the sextula.

With the introduction of the silver nummus ($\nu\omicron\upsilon\mu\mu\omicron\varsigma$), sestertius, a new system of fractions appears.

The sestertius became the major unit corresponding to the old as; the libella became the minor unit corresponding to the uncia, but, as the system was decimal, the libella = $\frac{1}{10}$ of the sestertius.

The following table shows this fractional system with the signs, which are adopted from the duodecimal system:

TABLE B

Semis	= $\frac{1}{2}$ of sestertius, S
Libella	= $\frac{1}{10}$ " "	—, as corresponding to the uncia.
(Singula) Sembella	= $\frac{1}{20}$ " "	Σ , like semuncia.
(Sicilicus) Terruncius	= $\frac{1}{10}$ " "	\mathcal{O} or T

With the sestertius equal to $2\frac{1}{2}$ asses, the copper denominations may be arranged in a decimal system with the sestertius as major unit, and with signs adopted from the duodecimal system:

Dupondius	$\frac{2}{3}$ or $\frac{8}{10}$ of sestertius, so S	—, i.e. $\frac{1}{2} + \frac{1}{10}$.
As	$\frac{1}{3}$ " $\frac{4}{10}$ " "	" —
Semis	$\frac{1}{6}$ " $\frac{2}{10}$ " "	" —
Quadrans	$\frac{1}{12}$	" —

¹ The Greek C = s appears on Tarentine coins struck before the time of Pyrrhus, and in Greece after the time of Alexander. Mommsen, Hermes, XXII. p. 605.

In like manner if the denarius be taken as a major unit, with value of 10 asses, the system stands:

Denarius	1			⌘
Quinarius	$\frac{1}{2}$	denarius, so		S
Sestertius	$\frac{1}{4}$	"	" =	Σ, i.e. $\frac{1}{10} + \frac{1}{10}$
Dupondius	$\frac{1}{2}$	"	" =	" $\frac{2}{10}$
As	$\frac{1}{10}$	"	" =	—
Semis	$\frac{1}{20}$	"	" =	Σ
Quadrans	$\frac{1}{40}$	"	" =	⌘ or ∘

The duodecimal fractional system, with the as serving as any unit, was applied very generally, e.g. to land measure, to computation of interest, to weight, time, and money. The decimal system was applied to money, to the denarius and as, then to the fractions of the sestertius.

The final depreciation of the as brought it down to the value of $\frac{1}{16}$ of a denarius, and, as the sestertius = $\frac{1}{4}$ of a denarius, the as = $\frac{1}{4}$ of a sestertius.

The duodecimal fractional system of the denarius, when equal to 16 asses, is set forth in the following table:¹

In money, the duodecimal system as indicated above was followed before the as was reduced, that is, as long as the as was considered the aes grave or libral as.

The coins were :

As	= 12 unciae,	marked	I
Semis	= 6 "	"	S
Triens	= 4 "	"	O O O O
Quadrans	= 3 "	"	O O O
Sextans	= 2 "	"	O O
Uncia	= 1 uncia	"	O

In addition to these were :

Dupondius	= 2 asses,	marked	II
Tressis or Tripondius	= 3 "	"	III
Decussis	= 10 "	"	X

When silver coinage was introduced, 485/269, the copper as became a subordinate denomination of the superior metal, and subsequently depreciated in value so as to be entirely distinct from the old libral as, i.e. the unit of the duodecimal system.

The silver system may be shown by the following table :

Silver	{	Denarius	= 10 asses,	later 16 asses	X
	{	Quinarius	= 5 "	"	V
	{	Sestertius	= 2½ "	"	HS
Copper	{	Dupondius	= 2 "		H
	{	As	= 1		I

We might expect that in money calculations of ordinary life the subordinate denominations would be expressed in terms of copper coins, but it was customary to follow the silver fractional system as far as possible.

Thus, in an African inscription of the days of Hadrian, Ephem. Ep., VII. 426, we find :

[fecit sta]tuam argenteam ex HS [] CCCXXV tribus libel(lis) sing(ula) terr(uncio) et aeris quad(rante) cum rei p(ublicae) HS [] prom(isisset), i.e. 51335 sestertii, 1 as, 1 semis, 1 quadrans, since $\frac{3}{4}$ (tribus libellis) + $\frac{1}{4}$ (singula) + $\frac{1}{4}$ (terruncio) = $\frac{1}{2}$ + $\frac{1}{2}$, but $\frac{1}{2}$ of a sestertius = 1 as, and $\frac{1}{2}$ = semis. The word aeris shows that quadrans is from the copper system.

In denoting money the various indications are : for copper money, aeris gravis, or aeris, or A(sses); for silver, N = nummi, or HS · N = sestertii nummi, rarely in the order N · HS, but later

CHAPTER IV

THE ROMAN NAME

THE Roman name enters very largely into the composition of inscriptions of all classes, and forms, therefore, the most important element in their subject matter, often making up the inscription itself. A knowledge, accordingly, of its history and chronological development, its formal arrangement and abbreviations, is essential to a proper interpretation of the inscriptions, which, moreover, are themselves the great source of information as to this subject, since here the Roman name has its fullest use and most complete form.

It must be understood, first of all, that the name among the Romans was not of fixed or absolute form, but that it varied with the history of the people, passing through a process of development and reaching its complete form in the most prosperous period; then suffering modification and losing its regularity in the declining days of the later Empire.

In the earliest times the individual, strictly speaking, was designated by one name, but as a member of society, and in relation to the state, his name consisted of the personal element, with the addition of certain determinatives.¹ The first determinative was the genitive case of the name of the one in whose possession or under whose authority the person belonged, as of the father in the case of a son or daughter, of the husband in the case of a wife, or of the owner in the case of a slave. Thus Marcus Marci, Caecilia Crassi. Later this genitive was followed by f(ilius) or f(ilia), uxor or s(ervus). The second early determinative was the name indicating the family (gens). This at an early period was marked by the suffix -ius. The early Roman name thus consisted of, a) the personal name, b) the family name, c) the name of the one in authority, the father or husband, and at times the names of the grandfather and great-grandfather.¹

Q. Fabius Q(uinti) f(ilius).

In the course of time an additional element, the cognomen, brought the Roman name to its full development, so that free-born men possessed a triple name, praenomen = individual name, nomen = name of gens, cognomen = name of family (stirps).

L. Cornelius Scipio.

Official usage required that with these three names there should also be given the names of the father and of the tribe. These were both placed before the cognomen.² With the name of the father there might also be given those of the grandfather and great-grandfather.

The inscriptions show that the regular order was praenomen, nomen, cognomen. It was observed by the writers of the best prose as Cicero and Caesar.³ Any variation is due to the necessities of the metre, as in the Scipio Epitaph, where the nomen precedes the praenomen. or to Greek influence, or to the irregularity of rustic usages, as Alfenos Louci(os) on a cinerary jar from the sepulcretum near the church of San Cesareo (C. I. L. VI. 8220).

² Lex Julia Municipalis (709/45). C. I. L. I. 206, p. 122.

³ In prose of the good period the usage was M. Claudius, not Claudius Marcellus, even in Livy; M. Claudius Marcellus, not M. Marcellus Claudius. Without the praenomen, according to older method (so Cicero), Marcellus Claudius; according to later method (so Caesar), Claudius Marcellus. G. Lahmeyer in Philol. XXII. 1865.

The praenomen, the strictly personal name, was conferred by parents upon children on the dies lustricus, which was the ninth day after birth in the case of boys, and the eighth in the case of girls.

This is the opinion of ancient writers in general,¹ but Q. Scaevola² is authority for the statement that the name was not conferred upon a boy before he assumed the toga virilis, nor upon a girl before her marriage.

It is probable that the informal conferring of the name in the family took place on the dies lustricus, but the official recognition of the same occurred at the time of the assumption of the toga virilis. This opposition between theory and practice is set forth in the inscriptions, where we find names of persons dying in childhood both with and without praenomina. Frequently the word Pupus (abbreviated PUP) took the place of the praenomen, thus indicating an early death.

Pup(o) Pontio, T. (Pontii) f(ilio), Vo[l](tinia tribu), Proculo, an(norum) tredecim. (Of the first century A.D.) C. I. L. IX. 2789.

The number of inscriptions giving the praenomina exceeds that of those without, particularly after the second century A.D.

The praenomen was regularly abbreviated when joined with the nomen and cognomen. This was not a matter of choice, but an established custom, indicating Roman citizenship. In consequence we do not find the praenomen written in full, unless standing alone or in inscriptions in which Greek influence has been felt, or in those of the lower class dating mainly after the second century A.D.

The following are the praenomina in general use, with their abbreviations. Kaeso, Manius, Servius, Spurius, are the most uncommon.

A Aulus.	D Decimus.	M (M') Manius.	Q Quintus.	S Spurius.
C Gaius.	K Kaeso.	M Marcus.	SER Servius.	Ti Tiberius.
CN Gnaeus.	L Lucius.	P Publius.	SEX Sextus.	T Titus.

Aulus. Abbreviations: A, AV, or AVL (rare), O (very rare). Additional form, Olus. Cf. the slave name Olipor.

Decimus. D, DEC (rare and late). Additional form, Decumus. This praenomen is regularly found with the names of the Claudii (patrician), and of the Iunii and Laelii (plebeian).

Gaius. C with the primitive value, that of the Chalcidian Γ.¹

Gnaeus. CN, GN (very rare). Additional forms: Gnaivos (early), Naevus, Naeus, Gneus (rare).

Kaeso. K. This praenomen is not common. It is found with names of the Acilii, Duillii, Fabii, as shown in the Fasti Consulares, and the earlier inscriptions, such as those found at Praeneste.

Lucius. L, LV (rare). Early form, Loucios.

Manius. M or M'. The familiar form with an apostrophe M' is not found in the inscriptions. This praenomen is common with names of the Aemilii and Sergii.

Marcus. M. This is probably the most common praenomen.

Publius. P, PVP = Puplius (rare), PO appears in one instance for Pobllo, C. I. L. IX. 5699.

Quintus. Q. Additional form, Quinctus.

Servius. SER. This praenomen is found with names of the Cornelli and Sulpicii; elsewhere it is rare, and, for the most part, archaic.

Sergius is the family name, having the same origin as Servius.² It is first found as a praenomen in an inscription of Salona, Eph. Epigr. II. n. 522, referring to the Emperor Sergius Galba. S is a rare abbreviation for Sergius, C. I. L. XI. 2636.

Sextus. SEX, SX for reasons of space on a denarius of the City, of the sixth century, SEXT (once, C. I. L. II. 1495), S appears in lists of Praetorian soldiers and on tombstones of the second and third centuries A.D., and in Africa.

² "Sergius and Servius are related as ni(n)gere and nives, vixi and vivere (Corssen, Ausp. I. 44). They are merged in an older Serguius, as nig- and nio- in ni(n)guis." (Mommsen, Römische Forschungen, p. 8.)

Spurius. S (archaic), SP after middle of the first century A.D.

Tiberius. TI, later TIB.

Titus. T.

The three following, belonging to certain special patrician families, should also be added:

Appius. AP, APP (rare). This praenomen is the same as the Sabine Atta, and was probably brought to Rome by the Claudii.

Mamercus. MAM, used exclusively with the names of the Aemilii as seen in the Fasti Consulares of the third, fourth, and seventh centuries.

Numerius. N. Gk. Νεμέσιος. This is Samnite in its origin. — Festus, p. 170, and the author of de Praenom. § 6 inform us that through the marriage of Q. Fabius Vibulanus with the daughter of Numerios Otacilius of Maleventum this name was brought into the Fabian family. Cf. Numasioi on the Fibula Praenestina.

Of these eighteen praenomina certain only were selected by the individual patrician families.

Mommsen has arranged these in a table (Röm. Forsch., p. 15).

Aemilii: C, CN, L, MAM, Λ (M'), M, Q, TI.

Claudii: AP, C, D, L (disregarded later), P, TI, Q. (Ephem. Ep. IV., p. 218).

Cornelii: A, CN, L, M, P, SER, TI.

Furii: Agrippa, C, L, M, P, SEX, SP.

Iulii: C, L, SEX, Vopiscus.

Manlii: A, CN, L, M (disregarded in 370 B.C.), P, T.

Still further restriction in the selection of names is shown in the exclusive use of Tiberius and Decimus by the Claudii Neronēs, and Gnaeus, Lucius, Publius, by the Cornelii Scipiones.

After a certain time the Claudii did not use Lucius, nor the Manlii, Marcus, because, as Cicero and Suetonius inform us,¹ certain men bearing these names committed crime. Likewise, Marcus was not used by the gens Antonia after the downfall of the Triumvir.²

In addition to the praenomina just discussed, which form the body of those in general use, there are others worthy of mention, either those which fell into disuse in early days, and are known from the Fasti, or from statements of authors,¹ or those which are of foreign origin and of rare occurrence.

Agrippa. AGRIPP is found in the Fasti Cons. with names of the Furii and Menenii.

Faustus, with names of the Corneli Sullae. (Consuls 31 and 52 A.D.)

Hostus, with names of the Lucretii.

Lar, with names of the Herminii. This is an Etruscan praenomen.

Opiter. OPI or OPET, with names of the Verginii.

Paullus, with names of the Aemilii, Lepidi, and Regilli; afterwards with those of the Fabii and Postumii.

Postumus. POST, with the names of the Aebutii, Cominii, and Veturii, also Umbrian.

Proculus. PR, with the names of the Geganii and Verginii.

Vibius. V (archaic), VI and VIB (rare), with the names of the Sestii. The old form was Veibius. This is common in inscriptions from the district of the Oscan dialect.

Volero. VOLER, with the names of the Publilii.

Volusus. VO, with the names of the Valerii.

Vopiscus, with the names of the Iulii.

The following praenomina are, as a rule, of foreign origin, and occur only in individual instances:

Aruns	AR	Etruscan.
Atta or Attus	AT	(so Attus Clausus is Sabine for Appius Claudius).

The praenomina, when first used, evidently had a significance suited to the circumstances of their original application.¹ This primitive meaning lost its force, so that words originally conveying some reproach might be given to those of high birth.

Although the common praenomina were employed in naming the first four sons, nevertheless the following were used, finally with loss of original meaning:

Primus	PR or PRI	Secundus.
Tertius (abbreviated in one instance),	TERT	Quartus, QVAR or QVART
Quintus.		Sextus.

a) Cognomina as Praenomina.

So, Maximus C. I. L. V. 5902, Rufus C. I. L. V. 7064, Firmus C. I. L. V. 7339.

In the Augustan period this transfer in use, so that cognomina served as praenomina, is found in the names of members of the imperial family, and those of the nobility.

Cossus	. . .	Cossus Cornelius Lentulus.	Consul, 753/1.

	. . .	Drusus Iulius Germanici f. Ti. n. Aug. pron. Caesar = Drusus, son of Germanicus.
Sisenna	. . .	Sisenna Statilius Taurus.	Consul 16 A.D.
Taurus	. . .	Taurus Statilius Corvinus.	Consul 45 A.D.

The designation of honor, "imperator," which in republican days followed a triumph, in the time of Julius Caesar became an actual title, and finally in the days of Augustus took the place of the praenomen. See page 115.

b) Nomina as Praenomina.

From the middle of the second century A.D. the nomina Aelius, Aurelius, Flavius, Ulpus were frequently used as praenomina, and were abbreviated.¹

Praenomina of Women.

In the names of women as found in the inscriptions the praenomen is of uncommon occurrence and little importance, compared with the regular appearance and significance of the same element in the names of men. The praenomen was all-important to a man in his relation to the state and to society, while in a woman's name its presence was by no means essential, and its abbreviation did not imply what a similar abbreviation implied in the praenomina of men.

Nevertheless, from the earliest times, women had praenomina, and during the republican period this custom was maintained. This is shown by the legendary names Acca Larentia, Gaia Caecilia, Quinta Claudia, Quarta Hostilia,² also from the testimony of the inscriptions, such as those of the grove of Pisaurum (Cesula Atilia, C. I. L. I. 168), which regularly give praenomina of women, also those from the tombs of Praeneste, e.g. Gaia H(er)enia ? (C. I. L. XIV. 3149), and with abbreviation, C. Comenai, C. Usor(i) ? (C. I. L. XIV. 3102).

In the case of two sisters the elder was known as Maio(r), the younger Mino(r) — Maio Fabricia, Mino Cunia (C. I. L. XIV. 3111, 3133), Mino Ania C. f. (C. I. L. XIV. 3058). In some instances, at a later period, the oldest sister had the praenomen Maxima.

Other praenomina of importance are Pola (oldest form) for Paul(l)a, Polla (in country districts), Pusilla, Pupa, also the numeral adjectives which were in use in all periods, Prima, Secunda, Tertia.

In the imperial period praenomina of women are of little account, and occur entirely as exceptions.

NOMEN

The second determinative in the early Roman name was the name which belonged to all members of the same family, and which was at first identified with a certain locality. Afterwards the nomen denoted members of the same gens, men, women, clients, freedmen, while the cognomen indicated the family of the gens.

The nomina of the ancient Roman families, both the patrician and, for the most part, the plebeian, ended in -ius, and the closely related terminations -aius, -eius, -eus, -aeus.

Ex. — Aemilius, Cornelius, Furius, Manlius, Vibidaius, Arcaeus, Terraesus, Cocceius, Pompeius.

In early inscriptions, such as those on the earthen vessels from San Cesareo, nomina are found ending in -is, in place of -ios, so Anavis, Clodis, Caecilis, and the Oscan Heirinnis.

In addition to these there are many with different endings, which were once restricted to certain localities of Italy.

The terminations -arna, -erna, -enna, -ina, -inna, show Etruscan derivation.

Mastarna, Perperna, Caecina.

Maccenas, Sentinas.

-acus, -avus, show Gallic derivation.

Avidiacus, Amnavus.

-enus shows Sabine and Oscan derivation.

Alfenus, Varenus.

-icus marks nomina from Illyria, Lusitania and Africa.

Abalicus, Boicus, Veronicus, Caturicus.

To these there should be added Latin, Sabine and Umbrian nomina in -anus, mainly derived from names of places.

Acerranus (Acerrae), Aequanus (Aequum), Calpetanus, Norbanus (Norba).

Pomptinus, Crastinus.

On the analogy of early names in -ius are formed the Greek names of similar ending, as Eumachius, Aristius, Nymphidius; and Propercius of Umbrian origin, also like formations from other languages.

After the second century A.D., in the provinces, there appear many new nomina made from cognomina and other nomina.

Faustinius, Secundinius.

The nomen Verres,¹ of Roman origin, stands by itself.

Nomina appear in the inscriptions, as a rule, in their complete form.

Exceptions.

1) Nouns in ios or is drop the final s in early inscriptions:

Cornelio(s), C. I. L. I. 31, about 250 B.C.; Corneli(s), C. I. L. I. 35, about 160 B.C.; Claudi(s), C. I. L. I. 196, of 196 B.C.; L. Anici(s) V. f., C. I. L. I. 75.

- 2) Abbreviations of nomina are found at times where the name may be readily supplied, as in tomb inscriptions, where many of the same nomen are mentioned.¹ So AEL for Aelius, CL or CLAVD for Claudius, IVL or I for Iulius.

COGNOMEN

The cognomen, although the last addition to the actual Roman name, is identical in its origin with the praenomen, for it was first applied as a strictly personal name, and had a meaning as a surname or nickname appropriate to the individual. It differed, however, from the praenomen in its early use in several respects, for it was not an essential part of the name, neither was it given to children, but to adults; it was generally an adjective referring to some peculiarity of body² or mind,³ or derived from the name of the place of birth.

As to the time of the introduction of the cognomen, at least of the recognition of its use, we can form an idea from the position it holds in the name, in that it follows the word indicating the tribe. The tribal division of the Roman people belongs to the days of Servius Tullius, hence the inference that the use of the cognomen does not date back further than the Servian Constitution. It appears in the oldest Scipio inscriptions of the fifth century of the City, also on Roman coins from the time of the second Punic war, while in the laws of the seventh century of the City of a less formal character (Lex Repetundarum, 631/123) its use is demanded. In important decrees, however, where conservative influences are likely to prevail, it does not appear before the time of Sulla. It can be said, then, that the custom of writing cognomina dates back to the fifth century of the City, while its regular use may be assigned to the latter part of the seventh century.

The cognomen, at first a strictly personal name, was soon recognized as a family possession, and became an heirloom for succeeding generations. Two principles appear to have controlled its use: first, it was regarded as the indication of the family (stirps) of the gens, so of the gens Cornelii there were the Cethegi, Lentuli, Scipiones, and, with a subdivision, the Cornelii Scipiones Nasicae; again, it was considered an indication of nobility, though not absolute, for, though the patricians and most of the plebeians had cognomina, certain families of the plebeians, the Antonii, Duillii, Flamini, Marii, Memmii, Mummii, Sertorii, were without them. The specially selected praenomina had once indicated nobility, but later the cognomen served this purpose, so that the number of these names that were not the property of the nobility in early republican times is very small. In the later republican period, and in imperial times, the cognomen was given to all freeborn citizens, and frequently to freedmen. This change dates from about the middle of the seventh century of the City.

The cognomen differed from the praenomen in another respect, namely, in that more than one could be attached to the same name. In the days of the Republic a second and third *cognomen*¹ might be used. Such were Names of Women.

The early names of women probably consisted of an individual name, praenomen, followed by the nomen of the father and genitive case of his praenomen, or by the nomen of the husband and the genitive case of his praenomen. Later the genitive case was followed by the word f(ilia) in case of a daughter's name, and uxor in case of the wife's. Cf. Maio(r) Anicia C. f., C. I. L. XIV. 3057. The changes in this form consisted in the disappearance of the praenomen and the use of the nomen gentile of father or of husband,¹ either alone or accompanied, when more formal, by the genitive of the praenomen of father or husband.² Other inscriptions show the nomen of the husband in the gen. case added to the nomen of the wife,³ accompanied in the imperial period by a cognomen.

Old inscriptions, such as those of Praeneste and San Cesareo, show isolated instances of cognomina in the names of women. At the close of the Republic, however, the evidences⁴ of the introduction of this custom are more numerous, and from the middle of the first century A.D. women's names frequently contained cognomina. Entirely exceptional are the instances of triple names of women.⁵

The custom of using more than one cognomen, beginning in the period of the republic, became common in the early days of the empire, and in the second and third centuries A.D. the number had increased in some cases to a wonderful degree. This reduplication of names was not confined to cognomina; for from the time of Sulla several nomina might, for various reasons,¹ be adopted by the same person. At the close of the first century A.D. instances occur of the use of several praenomina. These, however, take the position of cognomina, and are regarded as such, being regularly written in full. This multiplicity of names raises the question as to the manner of addressing a person so encumbered. In social intercourse children, clients, and slaves addressed the master of the house by using his praenomen, while strangers used the cognomen. In more formal address the nomen and cognomen were used.

The consul of 71 A.D. had as full name C. Calpetanus Rantius Quirinalis Valerius P. f. Pomp. Festus, but Tacitus speaks of him as C. Valerius Festus or Valerius Festus.

Signa.

In consequence of the similarity of names, and their number as well, certain persons were designated by nicknames (sobriquets), termed signa (vocabulum, Tac. Ann. I. 41). These signa are found in the inscriptions, and are, in general, preceded by the words idem, idemque, sive, qui et = qui et vocatur, or vocatus, or dictus est, also signo or signum; cf. Grk. ὁ καὶ or φύσει δὲ.

Additional Elements.

It has already been stated that the complete Roman name did not consist alone of the tria nomina, but included certain other elements.

I. The first of these in importance is the indication of descent, which was placed after the nomen and before the cognomen. This showed the freedom of the person designated, hence is regularly found in the inscriptions. It consisted, as a rule, of the praenomen of the father followed by the word f(ilius), but extended, in case of nobility, to names of ancestors in order, since in this way aristocracy of birth could be declared. The common abbreviations are: for Sometimes the cognomen of the father is used in place of the praenomen.

Q. Coelius Laeti f(ilius). C. I. L. VIII. 972.

At times the name of the mother either takes the place of that of the father or stands with it.

M. Porcius Aegriliae f(ilius). C. I. L. VIII. 8996.

II. Another element was the name indicating the tribus to which a person belonged.

The tribus, a territorial classification of the citizens of Rome for the purpose of the census, dates from the time of the Servian reformation. The number was at first four, but increased until 513/241, when it reached the limit, thirty-five, which was never passed. Towards the close of the Republic it lost its early territorial value, and became merely a personal and hereditary affair, while under the Empire it lost its administrative and political importance, and became, in the provinces, an evidence of Roman citizenship, while in the city it was of advantage as a means by which certain privileges, such as the distribution of corn, could be enjoyed by the citizens.

The word denoting the tribe regularly preceded the cognomen, sometimes taking its place. In the inscriptions the names of the tribes are, as a rule, abbreviated. When they are written in full, they are regularly in the ablative case, rarely in the genitive.

The following are the names of the thirty-five tribes, with their customary abbreviations¹: AEMilia, ANIensis, ARNiensis, CAMilia, CLAudia, CLVstumina, COLLina, CORnelia, ESQuilina, FABia, FALerna, GALeria, HORatia, LEMONia, MAECia, MENenia, OVFentina (or VF), PALatina, PAPiria, POPlilia (or POB), POLLia

(Momm. Ephem. Ep. V., p. 14), POMptina, PVPinia, QVIRina, ROMilia, SABbatina, SCAPtia, SERgia, STELLatina, SVCusana, TERetina, TROMentina, VELina, VOLtinia, VOTuria (or VET).¹

III. In inscriptions of certain classes, particularly of soldiers, there occur names which have words indicating the country, province, city, or town to which the person designated belonged. The position of such words is regularly after the cognomen, although at times they are placed between the tribe and cognomen.

C. I. L. III. 2833.

C. Cornelius C. f. Pom(ptina) (tribu) Dert(ona) Verus. C. I. L. III. 4057.

These words assume various forms, and in some instances are made more definite by the addition of civis, natione, genere, domo, or natus in.

The name of the city is in the ablative case, or, if it is singular of the first or second declensions, in the genitive. Ethnic adjectives are also found either standing alone or accompanied by the word civis or natione. In combination with the word natione the adjective either agrees with the name of the person or stands in the nominative case.

If the word domo occurs, it is either followed by a noun in the ablative, or, if singular of first or second declension, in the genitive, or is used with an adjective agreeing with the name of the person. See Wil., vol. II., p. 409.

Names of Illegitimate Children.

Illegitimacy of birth is indicated in the inscriptions by the abbreviations SP · F, standing for S(purii) f(ilius).² In some inscriptions³

³ C. I. L. X. 3790, V. 2009, 4145.

the SP stands for the praenomen Spurius, which belonged to a few old patrician families, but in various ways the inscriptions prove that SP · F was regularly the indication of illegitimacy. In some inscriptions the father's praenomen is given, and thus shown to be different.¹ or spurius is used as a designation.

Names of Adopted Persons.

The usage as regards the names assumed by adopted persons varied with different periods. According to the early system, the one adopted received the name of the adoptive father, and added thereto his own nomen, changed to a cognomen, with termination in -anus. The son of L. Aemilius Paullus, adopted by P. Cornelius Scipio, became P. Cornelius Scipio Aemilianus. After Sulla's time one of the original names could be used unchanged. The natural son of L. Licinius Lucullus became M. Terentius M. f. Varro Lucullus, Cos. 681/73. So a famous cognomen of the old family could be joined with the entire name of the new, thus:

Q. Caecilius Metellus Pius Scipio. Cos. 702/52.

From the time of Augustus two nomina are found in one name, as the result of the use of the nomen of the natural father, so,

P. Sulpicius Quirinius. Cos. 742/12, and

Sex. Papinius C. f. Allenius. Cos. 36 A.D., and finally at the close of the first century the entire name of the natural father might be added to that of the adoptive father,²

² See examples under Reduplication of Names, page 94.

Later on there appears to have been a choice made in the selection of the praenomen either of the natural or the adoptive father, also in the retention of any other part of the original name.

Antoninus Pius had originally the name T. Aurelius Fulvus Boionius Arrius Antoninus, but after his adoption by P. Aelius Hadrianus he received the name T. Aelius Hadrianus Aurelius Antoninus.¹

Names of Slaves.

The slave did not originally have more than one name, which consisted of the name of his master in combination with the word puer, so Mancipor = Marci puer, Olipor = Auli puer, Lucipor, Publipor. In the republican period the slave was known by an individual name, often of foreign origin, derived from the circumstances of capture or purchase, followed by the nomen, and afterwards the praenomen of his master as well, both in the genitive case. This was followed by the word servus, abbreviated S or SER in case of male slaves, and s(erva) or ancilla in case of female, so,

In the time of the Empire the name of the owner is given in full in the genitive case, so

C. I. L. X. 826.

When a slave came under a new master, either by purchase or inheritance, it was customary to give to him an additional name, formed from the cognomen of his former owner with the termination -anus, so,

Epitynchanus Caes(aris) n(ostri) ser(vus) Candidian(us). C. I. L. X. 6977.

Names of Freedmen.

The status of the freedman in early days was similar to that of the slave, hence his name differs at first but little from the name of the latter. In the early period the freedman received the nomen of his patron, but selected his praenomen, which might be his early servile name, Cratea Caecilius M. l(ibertus).

C. I. L. I. 840.

His former state was indicated by the word servus following the genitive case of his patron's praenomen:

C. Sextio(s) V(ibi) s(ervos).

Ann. dell' Ist. LII. 1880.

Servio(s) Gabinio(s) T(iti) s(ervos).

C. I. L. 8054. 7.

In the seventh century of the City (150–50 B.C.), however, a freedman received his patron's nomen, a Roman praenomen regularly that of his master, and used his former slave-name as a cognomen, while he indicated his former status by the word libertus, abbreviated L or LIB.

Thus the form, in many examples, is P. Helvidius P. l. Hermes, (C. I. L. VI. 975).

In inscriptions of the earlier part of the seventh century the cognomina are not always found (Wil. II., p. 404). The cognomen of the patron, in some instances, took the place of the nomen.

When freedmen were liberated by the emperor, the expression Aug(usti) l(ibertus) or Caes(aris) n(ostri) l(ibertus) took the place of the praenomen of the patron.

In special instances a patron, when naming a freedman, might, out of regard for a friend, name him after that friend, so Cicero named Dionysius, his son's tutor, M. Pomponius Dionysius. Slaves freed by women took the nomen of their patroness and the praenomen of her father.

M. Livius Aug(ustae) l(ibertus) Menophilus.

C. I. L. VI. 9861.

The fact that a slave has received his freedom from a woman is indicated in the inscriptions regularly by an inverted C, thus C. L. stands for G(aiae) l(ibertus) or l(iberta), i.e. mulieris libertus or liberta. Other methods of indicating this are the word mulieris written in full or abbreviated MVL,¹ also M inverted W,² or placed on its side ≧,³ or WΛ = MV inverted.⁴

The freedmen of a collegium obtained names from the profession of the members of the collegium as the Fabricii Centonii in Brixia, named from the fabri centonarii, C. I. L. V. 4422.

If the slave possessed two cognomina, these were retained after he had become a freedman; cf. the names in -anus referred to above.

Ti. Iulius Aug. l(ibertus) Fuscus Cornificianus.

Naturalized Citizens.

Foreigners who were naturalized, on a similar principle to that observed in the naming of freedmen, received their names from the one who obtained for them the right of citizenship, or the one through whose interposition the favor was granted.¹ This will account for the Cornelii in Sicily, the Iulii in Gaul, the Pompeii in Spain, and the Claudii and Flavii in the provinces in general. Hence, under the Empire, the names of the Emperors were used thus, not only for persons so favored, but for towns which were raised to the rank of cities.

Foreign kings, allies of the Roman Empire, frequently adopted names of the emperors, so as to show them respect.

Ti. Claudius Cogidubnus. King of Britain.

NAMES AND TITLES OF THE EMPERORS

THE names of the emperors, as they occur in the inscriptions, deserve special and individual mention, for although in general plan they are similar to the ordinary Roman name, yet they differ in certain marked respects, mainly in the use of titles as additional elements, and in the adoption of some of these titles as fixed parts of the imperial name.

The following names of emperors taken from inscriptions will illustrate the various forms which they assume:

 AVG · PONTIF · MAX · TRB · | POT · XVI · COS · III · P · P · PROCOS ·

We will now consider each of the elements found in these names.

I. Imperator. IMP (αἰτοκράτωρ).

A distinction must carefully be made between the use of this word as a praenomen and as a title of honor. It regularly appears in both uses in the same inscription.

The original title imperator of republican days was conferred by acclamation upon a victorious general. This the Dictator Caesar assumed continually during the latter part of his life, and it became virtually a cognomen of his name.¹ In 714/40 Octavius rejected his former praenomen Gaius and substituted IMPerator. Nevertheless the use of the word as an honorary title was still continued, and hence it appears again in the latter part of the name. Tiberius, Gaius, and Claudius did not use the word as a praenomen, but Nero renewed the custom, employing it at times, while his successors used it regularly. In some instances, especially among later emperors, the word imperator (IMP) occurs in company with the ordinary praenomen.

Imp. T. Caesar Vespasianus Augustus.

In the names of Vitellius the word imperator frequently occurs among the cognomina.

II. Nomen.

It will be noticed that in the names of the early emperors, with the exception of Claudius, Nero, and Vitellius, the nomen is omitted. This custom continues in use until after the time of Hadrian, when the ordinary form is resumed.

Imp. T. Aelius Caesar Hadrianus Antoninus Augustus Pius.

C. I. L. III. 8007.

III. Caesar, C, CAES (Καῖσαρ).

This word was the inherited cognomen of the Julian family, and indicated its patrician origin. It belonged, by inheritance, to all the agnati of Caesar, but, at the death of Gaius Caligula, was transferred¹ to the Claudian family, and became the distinguishing mark of the reigning house, being used, not only by the emperor, but by the sons and grandsons. From the time of Hadrian the name was restricted to the emperor and his designated successor. It was placed immediately after the praenomen or nomen, if the latter were given, a position, however, which was not steadily maintained, as at a later period Caesar is found even at the end of the name.²

IV. The next element is that which indicates descent. If the father were a deified emperor, his name was marked by the addition of the adjective divus. The name of Augustus contains the formula divi f(ilius) inasmuch as Caesar was the first to receive apotheosis.

V. Cognomina.

The names of the Flavian emperors, as well as of those succeeding them, show the insertion after the designation of ancestry, or after the word Caesar, if the former is omitted, of certain personal names, cognomina, such as Vespasianus, Domitianus, Nerva, Traianus, Verus, Severus, Pertinax.

VI. Augustus. A. AV, AVG (Σεβαστός).

The last word in the name of the emperor, strictly speaking, is the honorary title Augustus. It was conferred upon Octavianus by the Senate, Jan. 16, 727/27.

Being really honorary, and implying that a person was sacred and deserving of reverence, it was not legally an heirloom.³ Nevertheless it was adopted by the successors⁴ of Augustus after it had been

⁴ Vitellius at first refused the title. Tac. Hist. II. 90.

decreed by the Senate, and became a name associated strictly with the principate, for it was held by no one but the reigning emperor until the middle of the second century, when it appears as a cognomen with the united names of Marcus Aurelius and L. Verus, indicating that both had a share in the imperial power. After this time the title was conferred upon other members of the imperial family, and a participation in the powers of the emperor was thus implied. The abbreviation AVGG indicated two Augusti, AVGGG, three.

From the latter part of the second century the word Augustus is preceded by additional honorary surnames, such as Pius Felix,¹ Pius Felix Invictus,² while, from the beginning of the fourth century, it is strengthened by the use of perpetuus, semper, victor ac triumphator semper. Thus, also, the title optimus was conferred upon Trajan.³

The word Augustus really completed the name of the emperor, nevertheless there were added in certain instances cognomina, such as cognomina ex virtute, either inherited, as in the case of Gaius, Claudius, and Nero, who obtained the title Germanicus from Drusus, or received, because of some victory, as in the use of the same word Germanicus in the names of Vitellius, Nerva, and Trajan. Other cognomina of this kind are: Dacicus, Parthicus as belonging to Trajan, Armeniacus, Medicus, Sarmaticus as belonging to Marcus Aurelius. These surnames are of great importance in determining the date of an inscription.⁴

TITLES OF EMPERORS

These are given in the order in which they are generally found.

I. Pontifex Maximus. P · M or PONT · MAX (ἀρχιερεὺς μέγιστος).

This title indicated that the emperor, as the president of the collegium of pontiffs, was supreme in all matters of religion. It was assumed by Augustus after the death of Lepidus, and was thereafter held by the emperor, who was always chief pontiff. It regularly occupied the first place.

³ C. I. L. II. 2064.

II. Tribunicia Potestate, or Tribuniciae Potestatis, TRIB · P, POT, PT (numeral) (δημαρχικῆς ἐξουσίας).

This formula, derived from the early tribunus, represented the supreme civil control, and formed the distinctive title of the principate. Augustus, in 731/23, laid aside the consulate and added its character as an annual office to the tribunician power which had already been conferred upon him for life. Tribunicia Potestate, followed by the numeral of iteration, indicated both a perpetual and an annual magistracy, for it was conferred, without limit, and yet served to indicate the length of the emperor's reign by measuring it off in tribunician years.¹

The form is regularly the ablative case followed by a numeral used adverbially, indicating years of tenure. At times the genitive case is found, perhaps from Greek influence.

The position of this title, in time of Augustus, is, without exception, after the consulate, and generally after the title imperator. From Tiberius the tribunicia potestate assumes the position after the PON · MAX.

III. Imperator, IM, IMP, IMPER (numeral) (αὐτοκράτωρ).

This is the acclamatio imperatoria, and must be distinguished from the praenomen imperator referred to above.

Under the Empire this title was conferred upon the princeps, either because of a victory won by himself or under his auspices. The number of the imperial salutation was increased by one on the occasion of each victory.

Upon the first victory the title was imperator II., not imperator primum, for the first salutation was given at the time of the assumption of power. The position,² in the time of Augustus and Tiberius, is generally after the consulate, so COS · IMP · TR · P, and where the tribunicia potestate stands directly after the consulate, imperator follows that also, so COS · TR · P · IMP. In the inscriptions of the City relating to Augustus, however, it stands, as a rule, at the head of the titular list, so IMP · COS · TR · P. From the time of Claudius, imperator comes after tribunica potestate and before the consulate. Caracalla is the last emperor whose monuments regularly give the imperial salutations. They appear after this time only in the inscriptions of certain emperors, as Gordian, Gallien, Diocletian.

² Mommsen, Staatsr. II., p. 784.

IV. Consul, COS (numeral) (ὑπατος).

As a result of the treatment of the consulship by Caesar and Augustus, it became a matter entirely within the control of the emperor whether he himself should be consul or permit the office to go to some other of senatorial rank. Thus an emperor could be repeatedly elected to the consulship, and this is indicated by the numeral of iteration placed after the title. The office was held by the emperor at pleasure, and so might be laid aside, after a month or two, in favor of consules suffecti. The election of the emperor to the consulship took place at various times in the year preceding the year of office. The emperor, as consul elect, was designated by the title COS · DESIGN (ὑπατος ἀποδειγμένος) followed by a numeral one greater than that of his last consulship. The position of this title, consul or consul designatus, was at first before the tribunica potestate, where it vied with imperator for first place. In time of Tiberius it gave way to the tribunica potestate, and from the time of Claudius it gave way to imperator, and took generally the fourth place.

V. Censor, CEN, CENS, CES (τιμητής, ἀποτιμητής).

This title was held only by Claudius, Vespasian, Titus, and Domitian. The last named received the title censor perpetuus.¹ Its position varied, since it stood at times before, and again after the consulate.

VI. Pater Patriae, P · P (πατήρ πατρίδος).

This title had been conferred by acclamation upon Cicero and Julius Caesar, and was accepted by Augustus at the request of all the senate, knights, and people (Mon. Ancyr. VI. 35).

A similar honor was conferred upon other emperors some time after their assumption of power, but was in several instances declined,¹ as in the case of Tiberius,² Nero, Vespasian, and Hadrian.

It must be remembered that this is simply an honorary title, indicating no official power. Pertinax was the first emperor to receive it upon entrance to office.

Its position in the time of Augustus is either at the beginning or at the end of the list of titles. From Augustus to Titus it stood, as a rule, before the consulate, but from Domitian it followed the consulate, and might conclude the list.

VII. Proconsul, PROCOS or PROC (ἀνθύπατος).

Although the proconsulare imperium was as important as the tribunicia potestas, yet it was not represented by its own title until the close of the first century. In all probability the word imperator, which had become a part of the name, supplied its place, and hence an additional title was not given in the official list. In the time of Trajan, proconsul is assumed as a title when the emperor is out of Italy, and it appears with this restriction until the third century.

In the diploma of Trajan (A.D. 116), where it first appears, it is placed before the consulate. In the time of Hadrian it ends the titular list, and regularly occupies this position from that time on.

TITLES OF MEMBERS OF THE IMPERIAL FAMILY

Caesar.

After the adoption of M. Annii Verus (Marcus Aurelius) by the Emperor Hadrian, this title, which had been borne by members of the families of Julius Caesar and Augustus, and afterwards by the reigning emperors and their sons and grandsons, came to designate the heir to the throne, and so was conferred upon the monarch and his successor as well.

From the time of the Emperor Geta (209–212 A.D.) the word Caesar was accompanied by nobilissimus, and later, as in the name of Galerius Maximianus, by perpetuus nobilissimus, and, as in the name of Constantius, by nobilissimus ac florentissimus or beatissimus ac felix.

Princeps Iuventutis, PR · IV, IVVEN (πρόκριτος τῆς νεότητος).

At the instance of Augustus, this title was conferred by the knights¹ upon his grandsons Gaius Caesar and Lucius Caesar, whom he had adopted. It indicated the entrance of the young men to the equestrian order.

Although it was afterward conferred upon other princes of the reigning house who did not sit in the senate, it belonged, naturally and originally, to the heir to the throne.

Augusta.

This title was first conferred upon Livia by the will of Augustus, and probably implied a share in the governing power, though any purpose of this kind was thwarted by Tiberius. It was next offered as an honorary title to Antonia, the grandmother of Gaius, but was refused. Agrippina, the last wife of Claudius, accepted it, probably with the purpose of sharing in political power.² After the political meaning was lost, it became merely the most exalted title for females of the imperial household. After Domitian it became customary to confer this name upon the wife of the reigning prince.

Nevertheless, it was conferred as a title of honor upon other relatives of the emperor, as upon the mother, Julia Soaemias, and grandmother, Julia Maesa, of Elagabalus, and upon Claudia, the daughter of Nero, and upon Marciana, the sister of Trajan. It was at first conferred by the senate at the suggestion of the emperor, but afterwards the senate took the initiative.

² Tacitus, Ann. XII. 26.

Tacitus (Ann. I. 14) tells us that an attempt was made to confer upon Livia the title parens or mater patriae, but the proposition came to naught through the opposition of Tiberius. Nevertheless, coins of African and Spanish colonies are in existence, giving to Augusta the title mater patriae and genetrix orbis.¹

In like manner the wife of Marcus Aurelius, the younger Faustina, is called mater castrorum. From this time similar titles were not rarely given to women, so the wife of Severus, the mother of Caracalla, Julia Domna, was given the title mater castrorum et senatus et patriae, so Julia Mamaea is styled mater castrorum et senatus et patriae et universi generis humani, C. I. L. II. 3413.

Erasures and Substitutions.

In many inscriptions it is evident that names of certain persons have been erased, while in others the names of other persons, or substitutions of a varied character, have taken the place of what has been obliterated. The erasures are due to a decree of the senate abolishing the memory of the emperor or member of the imperial family. The names of Caligula, Nero, Domitian, Commodus, Albinus, Geta, Macrinus, Elagabalus, Severus Alexander, Maximus, etc., are thus erased; also of Valeria Messalina wife of Claudius, Julia Agrippina mother of Nero; Fulvia Plautilla wife of Caracalla, P. Fulvius Plautianus father of Fulvia Plautilla, Julia Soaemias mother of Elagabalus, and others.²

CHRONOLOGICAL LIST OF THE ROMAN EMPERORS

THE DATING OF IMPERIAL INSCRIPTIONS

While the official method of recording dates in Rome was always by the names of the eponymous consuls of the year, another method grew up under the changes brought about by the assumption of imperial power by Augustus and his successors. Its basis was the tribunicia potestas. In inscriptions in which the name and titles of the emperor occur the indication by a numeral of the annual renewal of the tribunician power affords a means of determining the date, and, with the aid of certain other elements of the name, it is often possible to decide, not only upon the year, but upon the month, or part of the month, as well.

The principal elements by which the date may be determined are: (a) the tribunician 'renewal,' (b) the imperial salutations, (c) the number of the consulate, and (d) the assumption of such titles, or cognomina, as P(ater) P(atriciae), P(ontifex) M(aximus), CENS(or), PERTINAX, OPTIMVS, GERMANICVS, SARMATICVS, etc. The method to be employed, in connection with the table below, may be illustrated by examples:

C. I. L. II. 4721.

IMPERATOR · CAESAR · | DIVI · VESPASIANI F · | DOMITIANVS · AVG |
GERMANICVS · PONTIFEX | MAXSVMS · TRIBVNICIAE | POTESTATIS
VIII | IMP · XXI | COS · XV CENSOR | PERPETVVS | P · P, etc.

(a) TRIBVNICIAE POTESTATIS VIII. By reference to the table, p. 130, this is found to be September 13, 90.

(b) IMP. XXI, received, as the table shows, during 89.

(c) COS. XV, January 1, 90-91.

(d) GERMANICVS in 84; CENSOR PERPETVVS in 85.

By the examination of these dates, we find that the inscription was set up between January 1 (COS. XV) and September 13 (TR. P. VIII), in the year A.D. 90.

Hence the inscription dates A.D. 166.

AUGUSTUS (B.C. 23—A.D. 14)

C. Octavius; after his adoption, C. Iulius Caesar Octavianus. He is designated on the monuments, IMP · CAESAR · DIVI · F · AVG.

Augur, in 717/37 at the latest.

XV Vir Sacris Faciundis, between 717/37 and 720/34.

Augustus, on January 16, 727/27.

VII Vir Epulonum, before 738/16.

Augustus received the Tribunician Power on June 27, 731/23, and renewed it each year in the same month and day. Therefore his Tribunician dates extend from TRIB. POT., commencing June 27, 731/23, to TRIB. POT. XXXVII, commencing June 27, A.D. 14.

He was invested with the consulship ten times, and was saluted imperator eight times, before his accession. The subsequent consular and imperial dates are as follows:

TIBERIUS (14-37)

Ti. Claudius Nero ; after his adoption : Ti. Iulius Caesar ; designated in inscriptions : TI · CAESAR · AVG.

He received the Tribunician Power on June 27, 748/6, during the reign of Augustus, and renewed it always on that month and day ; but whereas his TRIB · POT · $\overline{\text{V}}$ fell on June 27, 752/2, he did not receive his TRIB · POT · $\overline{\text{VI}}$ until June 27, A.D. 4. In reckoning his Tribunician dates, therefore, one must remember that TRIB · POT · $\overline{\text{V}}$ covers the years from June 27, 752/2, to June 27, A.D. 4 ; and for any higher number, deduct two from the Tribunician date, which will give the date Anno Domini. NERO (54-69)

L. Domitius Ahenobarbus; after his adoption: Ti. Claudius Drusus Germanicus Caesar; designated on the monuments, at first: NERO · CLAVDIVS · CAESAR AVGVSTVS · GERMANICVS, and afterwards (65): IMP · NERO · CLAVDIVS CAESAR · AVGV · GERMANICVS

The tribunician dates of Nero are very difficult to determine, for the inscriptions show seeming contradictions. The whole matter may best be simplified as follows²: Nero ascended the throne October 13, 54, and his TR · P was renewed on that date each year until 59, when he appears to have adopted a new system. It is supposed that he shortened his TR · P · VI, and thereafter counted the years of his tribunician power from December 10 (the old date under the Republic), or December 4 (on which the comitia tribuniciae potestatis were held). It is impossible to decide which, for the inscriptions suit both. His TR · P · VI began, under the old system, on October 13, 59, coinciding with COS · III, DES · IIII, IMP · VI; but on December 10 (or 4) of the same year 59, he took TR · P · VII, and renewed the tribunician dates regularly on that day; so that at his death, June 9, 68, he was in the course of his TR · P · XV

² This is the theory of Mommsen (Staatsr. II., p. 798, note). The difficulty is that it conflicts with certain coins (Eckhel VI. 264, Cohen No. 29, 30, Argelati p. 93), which have TR · P · VI, COS · IIII, and that it makes necessary the assumption of a TR · P · XV, of which there is apparently no evidence. Stobbe's theory (Philologus, XXXII., 1873, pp. 23 sq.), that the tribunician dates of Nero begin always on Dec. 4, similarly conflicts with C. I. L. III., p. 845, and VI. 2042, which have TR · P · VII, IMP · VII, COS · IIII

T. Flavius Vespasianus; designated on the monuments: IMP · CAESAR · VESPASIANVS · AVG, or IMP · VESPASIANVS · CAESAR · AVG

Although not legally emperor until December 20, 69, Vespasian counted the years of his reign from July 1, 69, when he was proclaimed emperor by the soldiers. His TR · P was renewed each year on this day. On July 1, 71, Titus was made his associate in the empire, and their tribunician dates run parallel, Titus being always two years behind his father. Vespasian, at his death, was in the course of his TR · P · X, and Titus in the course of his TR · P · VIII

DOMITIAN (81-96)

T. Flavius Domitianus; designated on the monuments: IMP · CAESAR · DOMITIANVS · AVG; more rarely IMP · DOMITIANVS · CAESAR · AVG

The tribunician dates of Domitian are regular, from the day of his accession, September 13, 81 (TR · P), to his death on September 18, 96.

M. Cocceius Nerva ; designated on the monuments : IMP · NERVA · CAESAR · AVG, or IMP · CAESAR · NERVA · AVG

The dates of the monuments of Nerva's short reign are not always in accord. His TR · P extends from September 18, 96, to September 18, 97, when he received TR · P · II. From a few inscriptions it seems that a TR · P · III was reckoned from December 10 of the same year, 97. The majority of inscriptions fail to compute this TR · P · III, and carry his TR · P · II down to his death, joining it with COS · IIII (98). Those in which TR · P · III figures unite it with COS · III (97), or COS · IIII (98). For convenience the tribunician dates are here included in the table.

TRAJAN (98-117)

M. Ulpius Traianus ; designated on the monuments : IMP · CAESAR · NERVA · TRA-IANVS · AVGVSTVS

With Trajan the custom of computing the tribunician years from December 10 becomes general. Invested with the tribunician power by Nerva on October 27, 97, he counted his TR · P · II from December 10, 97, or September 18, 98¹; and his TR · P · III on December 10, 98, after which the tribunician year began regularly on this day.

Hadrian received the TR . P at the death of Trajan. He counted his TR . P . \overline{II} from December 10, 117, and the renewal occurred each year on that day.

In 136 he adopted L. Ceionius Commodus Verus as his successor, under the name L. AELIVS . VERVS . CAESAR; but Aelius died in 138.

T. Aurelius Fulvus Boionius Arrius Antoninus; after his adoption: T. Aelius Hadrianus Antoninus Pius; designated on the monuments: IMP · CAESAR T · AELIVS · HADRIANVS · ANTONINVS · AVG · PIVS

He received the TR · P on February 25, 138, renewed it (TR · P · II) on December 10 of the same year, and thereafter regularly on that day. He died in the course of his TR · P · XXIII.

On February 25, 147, he adopted as his successor M. Annius Verus Catilius Severus, under the name M · AELIVS · AVRELIVS · VERVS. M. Aurelius received the TR · P, which he renewed regularly on December 10, so that, at the death of Pius, Aurelius was in the course of his TR · P · XV.

For the names of M. Aurelius before his accession, and for his tribunician dates, see under Antoninus Pius. He is styled on the monuments: IMP · CAESAR M · AVRELIVS · ANTONINVS · AVG

Marcus Aurelius and Lucius Verus reigned jointly. The latter was L. Ceionius Commodus, son of L. Aelius Caesar (see p. 132), known after 136, when his father was adopted by Hadrian, as L. Ceionius Aelius Aurelius Commodus, and after 147, when he was adopted by Antoninus Pius, as L. Aelius Aurelius Commodus. After he was given a share in the imperium by his brother Marcus Aurelius, he received the cognomen Verus. He is styled on the monuments: IMP · CAESAR · L · AVRELIVS · VERVS. He received the TR · P on March 7, 161; his TR · P · II began December 10, 161, his TR · P · III a year from that day, and so on regularly.

TREBONIVNVS GALLVS (251–253)

Styled on the monuments: IMP · CAES · C · VIBIVS · TREBONIVNVS · GALLVS · P · F · AVG

His son is styled: IMP · CAES · C · VIBIVS · AFINIVS · GALLVS · VELDVMNIVNVS · VOLVSIANVS · P · F · AVG

The tribunician dates of Gallus and Volusianus are uncertain. TR · P is probably November–December, 251; TR · P · II is 252; and TR · P · III (instead of TR · P · III) is 253.

GALLIENUS (253-268). — POSTUMUS, Emperor in Gaul (258-267)

For the name and tribunician dates of Gallienus, who died in the middle of March, 268, see under Valerianus. Postumus was never recognized as emperor at Rome, but reigned in Gaul, where he formed a senate and government of his own, and assumed the consulship at pleasure. He is styled on the monuments: IMP · CAES · M · CASSIANIVS · LATINIVS · POSTVMVS · P · F · (INVICTVS) · AVG. We know nothing of the tribunician dates of Postumus, which can be assigned only to years as follows: TR · P = 258, TR · P · II = 259, TR · P · III = 260; and so on until TR · P · X = 267.

Victorinus, who reigned with Postumus in Gaul (265-267), is called IMP · CAES · M · PIAVONIVS · VICTORINVS · P · F · (INVICTVS) · AVG

CLAUDIUS II (268–270). — TETRICUS, Emperor in Gaul (268–273)

Gallienus at Rome was succeeded by Claudius, who is styled on the monuments: IMP · CAES · M · AVRELIVS · CLAVDIVS · P · F · (INVICTVS) · AVG

In Gaul, Tetricus and his son succeeded Postumus; both appear on the monuments as IMP · CAES · C · PIVS · ESVIVS · TETRICVS · P · F · INVICTVS · AVG

The tribunician dates can be classified only by years; for Claudius, TR · P = 268, TR · P · II = 269, TR · P · III = 270. (He died before Aug. 20, 270.) For Tetricus, TR · P = 268, TR · P · II = 269, etc., until TR · P · VI = 273.

AURELIAN (270-275)

IMP · CAES · L · DOMITIVS · AVRELIANVS · P · F · (INVICTVS) · AVG

The chronology of this reign is most uncertain ; inscriptions and coins alike show the greatest irregularities, especially in the consulates, and are not reliable. Each inscription must be dated approximately on its own merits, and a table of dates is useless. It is supposed that Aurelian became emperor in August, 270. The tribunician dates are usually roughly assigned as follows: TR · P, 270 ; TR · P · II, 271, etc., to TR · P · VI, 275 ; but this is complicated by the appearance of a TR · P · VII, which is absolutely inexplicable. According to the Fasti, Aurelian was COS in 271, COS · II in 274, COS · III in 275. The inscriptions show the following titles :

GERMANICVS · MAXIMVS (270 or 271).

GOTHICVS · MAXIMVS (272 ?).

PARTHICVS · MAXIMVS (271 or 272).

ARABICVS · MAXIMVS (271 or 272).

CARPICVS · MAXIMVS (271 or 272).

PALMYRENICVS · MAXIMVS (272 or 273).

Aurelian died in 275, perhaps in March.

Diocletian received the TR · P on September 17, 284, and renewed it regularly each year (March 1 ??); at his abdication, May 1, 305, he was in the course of his TR · P · XXII. Maximian counted his TR · P from 285, so that the renewal number was always one less than that of Diocletian.¹ The tribunician dates of the two Caesars are in doubt.

INSCRIPTIONS OF THE EMPERORS AND THEIR FAMILIES

1. [C. Iul]io Caesari im[p]., dictat. iteru[m, | pont]ufici max[umo, | Aug., c]os., patrono mu[nicipi], | d. c.

C. I. L. I. 620; IX. 2563. From Bovianum in Samnium. Caesar was made dictator iterum in the autumn of 706/48, and entered upon his third dictatorship on the kalends of Jan. 709/45. These dates form the limits in the age of the inscription.

2. C. Iulio C. f. Caesari | imp., triumviro r. p. c., | patrono, | d. d.

C. I. L. IX. 2142. From the town of S. Agata de' Goti (Saticula) in Samnium. Caesar (Augustus) was made triumvir rei publicae constituendae by the Lex Titia, Nov. 27, 711/43. He was called imp. Caesar in 714/40.

3. imp. Caesar divi f. | Augustus cos.¹ XI, trib. | potestate² dedit, | M. Appuleius Sex. f. leg. | iussu eius fac. curavit.

C. I. L. V. 5027. Found at Tridentum, where it exists to-day in the church of S. Apollinaris. ¹Determine the date from those of Cos. XI and Cos. XII given in table, page 125. ²*Tribunicia potestate* was first counted, as some (Eckhel) believe, June 27, according to Hirschfeld, June 25, 731/23, according to Mommsen, on the kalends of July, the day on which he resigned his eleventh consulship, 731/23. The number of the tribunicia potestate may have been omitted, although this is rare.

4. imp. Caesar divi f. | Augustus | pontifex maximus, | imp. XII, cos. XI, trib. pot.¹ XIV, | Aegypto in potestatem | populi Romani redacta, | soli donum dedit.

C. I. L. VI. 701. At Rome on an obelisk in Piazza del Popolo. A similar inscription (VI. 702) appears on another obelisk standing in Piazza di Monte Citorio. These were erected by Augustus in the Campus Martius, and are described by Pliny, H. N. XXXVI. 71. Determine date from table, page 125.

5. imp. Caes[ar] divi f. August. | pontif. maximus, cos. XI, | tribunicia potest. XIII, | ex stipe, quam populus Romanus | k. Ianuariis apsent[i] ei contulit,¹ | Iulio Antonio² Africano Fabio cos.,³ | Mercurio sacrum.

Bull. Com. 1888, p. 228. On an altar found among the remains of a chapel on the Esquiline. ¹Cf. Suet. Aug. 57. Kal. Jan. strenam in Capitolio, etiam absenti, ex qua summa pretiosissima deorum simulacra mercatus, vicitim dedicabat. ²The son of the Triumvir. ³744/10.

C. I. L. II. 2107. On a stone which supports the arch of an Arabian cistern in Arjona (Urgavo), in Baetica, Spain. This inscription is one of those in which Augustus was termed pater patriae before the year 752/2, when the title was formally conferred upon him a senatu populoque Romano. Cf. C. I. L. I. p. 386.

C. I. L. V. 6416; VI. p. XV. These inscriptions of Augustus and his family were placed beneath their statues, which adorned the triumphal arch at Ticinum (Pavia). They exist in the MS. of the tenth century, known as Anonymus Einsiedlensis of the Abbey of Einsiedeln, and are from a copy made between 750-850 A.D., by the compiler of the original of the MS.

There appear here inscriptions of Augustus (5), his wife (6), his grandsons, recently adopted, C. and L. Caesar (7 and 8), of Tiberius (4), adopted son of Augustus, together with the former's sons (3 and 2) and grandsons (1 and 9). Claudius, the brother of Germanicus, is also named (10). Julia and Agrippa Postumus do not appear, since at the time when the arch was completed they were in banishment. ¹760-1 (7-8 A.D.). ²Ti. Nero was adopted by Augustus, June 26, 757 (4 A.D.), and was called Ti. Caesar, and was made the associate of his adoptive father in the tribunicia potestate at the same time, a title which he had held, however, for five years. His tribunicia potestate should therefore be numbered VIII, and his title of consul should also be numbered iterum, not ter. ³The que may be due to error in copying for qu[indecemviro a. f.]. ⁴C. Caesar was styled imperator 756 (3 A.D.) at capture of Artabrlt. He probably laid aside his equestrian title princeps inventutis when he became consul. ⁵L. Caesar died 755 (2 A.D.) as consul designatus. ⁶Germanicus had not held any office save the quaestorship. He was adopted by Tiberius 4 A.D. ⁷Drusus had not held any office when the inscription was set up. The date of the completion of the arch is determined from the tribunicia potestate XXX of Augustus, 7-8 A.D., June 27. Tiberius is here shown by the imperium and tribunicia potestate to be the successor of Augustus, and the other inscriptions, save that of Claudius, are of those connected with him regularly or by adoption.

inserted in place of others erased. ² cum quinque liberis or cum v[iro et] liberis. Livia is called Ceres, according to Greek custom.

C. I. L. IX. 2443. Found in fragments at Saepinum (Altilia, near Sepino), in Samnium, where it still exists. In 4 A.D. Tiberius was adopted by Augustus, and ceased to be called Claudius Nero. Determine the date from table, page 125.

C. I. L. VI. 910. One of two marble tablets of same size found at Rome, near the Tiber, still in existence. ¹ Cf. Tac. Ann. I. 54. ² Drusus was consul iterum 21 A.D., received tribunicia potestate in 22 (Tac. Ann. III. 56). This inscription was set up in 23 A.D., just before or just after the death of Drusus.

12. ossa | Agrippinae M. Agrippae [f.] divi Aug. neptis, uxoris | Germanici Caesaris, | matris C. Caesaris Aug. | Germanici principis.

C. I. L. VI. 886. On a large marble urn now in the Palazzo dei Conservatori at Rome. When Caligula, son of Agrippina, became emperor, 37 A.D., he brought the ashes of his mother from the island of Pandateria, and placed them in the mausoleum of Augustus (Suet. Cal. 15).

C. I. L. VI. 913. Engraved in large letters on a marble tablet found at Rome, near the amphitheatre of Flavius, now in Capitoline Museum. The date of the inscription lies between his quaestorship, 27 A.D. (Tac. Ann. III. 29), and the decree of banishment, 29 A.D. (Tac. Ann. V. 3). Although Tac. (Ann. III. 29) says that he was made pontifex maximus in 20 A.D., there is no evidence of this in the inscriptions.

C. I. L. II. 4716. On a milestone found at Cordova (Corduba), Spain, still in existence. ¹*pat. patr.* is in somewhat larger letters, and was probably a later addition (Hübner). According to Eckhel, Doct. Num. VI. 223, Caligula seems to have taken this title in the early months of 38 A.D. Dio LIX. 12 relates that he assumed all the honores of former emperors except this one, which he received somewhat later. ²Determine these dates from page 126.

The colleague of Licinius Nerva, M. Vestinus Atticus, is not mentioned, because he was killed by command of the emperor during his consulship. Tacitus, Ann. XV. 68, 69. Sueton. Nero 35.

20. Sergio | Sulpicio | Galbae | imp. Caesar.

Ephem. Ep. II. 522. From a portion of a cippus found at Spalato, near Salona, in Dalmatia, where it exists in the museum, dating 68-69 A.D. The diplomata given to veterans of the legio prima Adiutrix show that the emperor preferred the form Ser. Galba imp. Caesar Augustus. Note Sergius for Servius, probably the earliest instance of this spelling.

21. A. Vitellius L. f. | imperator, | cos. perp.

C. I. L. VI. 929. The only known inscription relating to Vitellius from the city of Rome, now existing in a copy. It was originally engraved on a pedestal which was afterwards hollowed out so as to serve as a sepulchral urn. Cf. Suet. Vitellius, 11, (Vitellius) comitia in decem annos ordinavit seque perpetuum consulem.

C. I. L. III. Suppl. 6993. Found at Prusa (Brussa), Bithynia. ¹ See page 129. ² A coin with the head of Vespasian gives the name of the same procurator (Eckhel, II., p. 404). ³ Note the praenomen imp(erator) possessed by Titus before having the name Augustus (Mommson, Wiener Numism. Zeitschr. III., p. 458 ff., 1871. T. imp. Caes. Aug. f. appears in another inscription (Arch. Ep. Mitth. V., p. 216) and on some coins. ⁴ The date of the sixth consulship of Domitian is uncertain. The coincidence of three cos. designati is remarkable.

26. Domitiae Cn. f. | Domitiani Caesaris | d. d.

C. I. L. X. 1422. Found at Herculaneum in the theatre, now in museum at Naples. Domitia was the daughter of Cn. Domitius Corbulo, and married Domitian in 70 A.D. The inscription dates between 70 A.D. and the time of the destruction of the city, 79 A.D.

27. imp. Caesar | Nerva Aug. Germ. | pontif. max., trib. | potest. III, cos. IIII, p. p., | viam a Tripontio ad | Forum Appi ex glarea | silice sternendam | sua pecunia incohavit; | imp. C. I. L. VI. 967. From the Forum of Trajan in Rome. The letters were once formed of bronze set in the stone. Only a small portion exists to-day, the remainder being obtained from a copy made before the ninth century, preserved in the Codex Einsiedlensis.

C. I. L. XIV. 98. Inscribed on a marble tablet found at Ostia, now in the Vatican Museum. ¹ Mommsen assigns this inscription to 139 A.D., since there is no room for imp. II, which belongs to Antoninus Pius from 143 A.D., nor p. p., the use of which dates from the middle of 139 A.D. ² Sestertium vices (centena milia). Cf. Minucius Felix, Octavius 4.

C. I. L. II. 1169. Found at Sevilla (Hispalis), Spain, preserved only in copy. It was probably set up in company with a similar inscription of Antoninus Pius, II. 1168, and dates with that in tribunicia potestate VIII, 146 A.D.

34. L. Aelio Aurelio | Commodo | imperatoris Caesaris T. Aeli Hadriani Antonini | Aug. Pii p. p. f., | d. d. p. p.

C. I. L. VIII. 50. Inscribed on a marble pedestal found at El Djem (Thysdrus), in Africa. This is the form of the name of Lucius Verus, afterwards emperor, after his adoption by Antoninus Pius, and before his brother Marcus Aurelius had conferred upon him the cognomen Verus and a share in the imperial power.

C. I. L. VI. 1016 a. Found at Rome, where it exists to-day in Villa Albani. A similar inscription, somewhat imperfect, was found near the walls of the city, back of the Lateran Basilica (Ephem. Ep. IV. 787). Two others are given in the Einsiedlensis MS., which are there assigned, the one to the via Salaria, the other to the via Flaminia, so that it is probable that other stones were placed on other roads about the city. These stones were set up between 177 A.D. in the year in which Commodus was called Augustus, and the year in which Marcus Aurelius died, 180 A.D.

¹ foriculari for foriculiari; nothing is known as to the character of this tax, but the ansarium is mentioned in another inscription, VI. 8594, thus: quidquid usuarium (i.e. intended for the use of the purchaser) invehitur, ansarium non debet. (Dessau.)

C. I. L. VI. 1033. Inscribed on both sides of the famous arch of Severus in the Forum Romanum, in large letters, which were originally filled with bronze. When Caracalla had murdered his brother Geta, he ordered his name to be erased from all inscriptions, hence the words in angular brackets have been cut over the erased name P. Septimio L. fil. Getae nobiliss. Caesari. For date see page 136. It is curious that in a public inscription the praenomen is written in full; also that Marcus Aurelius is not termed divus, and that Parthici maximi does not appear with name of Severus. Some have held that these words instinctu divinitatis were insertions in place of an erasure of some other words nutu Iovis o. m.; de Ross, Bull. di Arch. Crist. 1863, p. 58, refutes this. ¹ The tyrant Maxentius was conquered in 312 A.D. The arch probably dates 315 A.D., as is indicated by reference to the ten years of his reign. sic. X sic. XX apparently means "as he has reigned ten, so may he reign twenty," while votis may refer to the decennalia or vicennalia.

CHAPTER VI

OFFICIAL TITLES

CURSUS HONORUM

CORRESPONDING to the titles given with the names of the emperors, there appear also in the inscriptions, after the names of those who have taken part in public life, the designations of official positions which have been held, arranged regularly in an order determined by their importance and grade. This collection of titles sets forth what is known as the cursus honorum, which may be defined as the succession of official stations through which a person must pass in order to obtain the position of the highest rank.

In the early Roman Republic the principle of official promotion, whereby eligibility for the various magistracies depended upon the previous tenure of those of lower grade, and the intervention of a certain period of time, was held in an informal way until B.C. 180, when a certus ordo magistratum was definitely established by the Lex Villia Annalis. This consisted of the quaestorship, curule aedileship, praetorship, consulship, with a preliminary military service of ten years, and an interval of at least two years between the various magistracies. The time of Sulla and the later days of the Republic witnessed various modifications in the regulations governing this cursus honorum. Under the Empire, however, it found its fullest development and most important application.

Roman society, at the close of the Republic, may be classified in three divisions: the senatorial order, the equestrian order, the plebs. This classification and partition of citizens on the basis of rank already determined under the Republic was employed by Augustus and his successors in establishing and developing the imperial government.

To those of senatorial rank were assigned the old republican magistracies, while to the members of a select body of the knights were given the important praefecturae, such as that of Egypt, and by degrees other offices of administration which were closely related to the princeps.

Subordinate officers, both civil and military, also officials of the various collegia, were selected from the plebs. Thus in the imperial period there were in existence three careers of official service (cursus honorum), open respectively to those of senatorial and equestrian rank and to the commonalty.

The cursus honorum appears in the inscriptions arranged on the generally applied principle of an ascending or descending series. In the ascending series, the direct order, the lowest position is mentioned first, and the highest last, while in the descending series, the inverse order, the highest is mentioned first and the lowest last.¹

This principle is found applied in various ways, as, for example, when in the same inscription honores ordinarii are given in descending order, while others, extra ordinem, appear in ascending order.²

SENATORIAL CURSUS HONORUM

This career was open to senators and all of senatorial rank, namely, those who possessed the requisite property of one million sesterces, and were either the sons of senators or had been raised to the senatorial rank by the emperor.

Before a candidate was qualified to stand for the quaestorship, which was the key to the senatorial cursus, two preliminary forms of service were demanded:

1st. The holding of one of a group of minor offices of annual tenure, known as a) Triumvir capitalis, III V · CAP, KAPIT. Function, — Execution of capital sentences.

- b) Triumvir monetalis, III V · MON, — auro argento aere flando feriundo — III V · A · A · A · F · F. Function, — Coinage of copper money struck by the senate.
- c) Quattuorvir viarum curandarum, IIII V · V, VIAR · CVR, CVRANDAR. Function, — Supervision of city streets and roads.
- d) Decemvir stlitibus iudicandis, XV · STL, STLIT · IVD, IVDIC. Function, — Member of court having cognizance in civil cases.

The vigintivirate disappeared during the third century.

2d. The serving at least a year as

Tribunus (χιλιαρχος) millitum laticlavius,¹ TR, TRIB · M, MIL · L, LAT, LATIC, LATICL.

This office could be held either before or after the vigintivirate. After the Flavian emperors, however, it regularly followed the preliminary magistracies. In the time of the Empire the tribunate of the soldiers had importance mainly as a tirocinium for young nobles, and as introductory to the quaestorship. The appointment to this position came from the emperor. Only in rare instances was this service disregarded, but after the early part of the third century it was no longer required.

The magistracies which followed were the quaestorship, tribunate of the plebs or aedileship, praetorship, consulship. The age required for the quaestorship was twenty-five years; for the praetorship, thirty years. A period of at least a year must intervene between the first three of these, and of two years between the last two.

As a patrician was ineligible to the tribunate of the plebs or the plebeian aedileship, he could pass directly from the quaestorship to the praetorship. Both the tribunate of the plebs and the aedileship disappeared during the third century.

The four magistracies were nominally of annual tenure, although the consulship was no longer, as a rule, held through the year. Consuls were either ordinarii, entering upon their duties on the first ¹ Augustus at times made prospective senators praefecti alae, as well as tribuni militum, although later on the former position was held almost exclusively by those of the equestrian order. Suetonius, Aug. 38. Vell. Pat. XI. 104. C. I. L. XIV. 2105.

This was an act of the emperor by which elevation to a certain rank might be granted through assignment to the performance of the functions of one of the senatorial magistracies. The forms commonly found are adlectus inter tribunicios and inter praetorios, rarely inter quaestorios. After the third century adlectus inter consulares appears.

Priesthoods of the Senatorial Order.

Certain religious offices which were held by those of senatorial rank are given in inscriptions in connection with the cursus honorum. The ordinary position of these titles is either at the very beginning or at the close of the indications of office.

The consulship is regularly placed immediately after the name, so that if the sacerdotium and consulship are both given, the general order is: name, consulship, sacerdotium; rarely name, sacerdotium, consulship.

In addition to the four magistracies which form the senatorial cursus honorum the inscriptions also show the official functions which were performed by those of senatorial rank. These functions, varying in importance, were arranged in grades corresponding to the several magistracies, and hence were exercised, according to their relative value, by those who had been either quaestors, quaestoricii, praetors, praetorii, or consuls, consulares.

The cursus honorum is in the descending order. The consulship was held between the tenure of the praefecture aerarii Saturni and the provincial administration, but is placed first in the list of honores.

When the word indicating the nature of two successive functions is the same for both, it is usual to find it repeated, but here the title legato p(ro) p(raetore) serves for both, being omitted with the second. The word item is used, as a rule, to denote a succession of functions, while et commonly indicates the tenure of two functions at the same time. This rule is violated here, since Dasumius governed these provinces separately.

EQUESTRIAN CURSUS HONORUM

In the reorganization of the equites in the imperial period, the most important feature, from an administrative point of view, was the restoration and elevation of the old body of eighteen centuries, known as the equites equo publico (EQ · P, PVBL).¹ Admission to this corps not only depended upon the original qualifications of free-birth, and the possession of the requisite property of 400,000 sesterces, but also upon the presentation by the emperor of the knight's horse, which was in reality the investiture of a suitably qualified person with membership in the equestrian troop. It was to this body that Augustus and his successors looked for officials who were to serve as superintendents (praefecti) and agents (procuratores) possessing authority only as representatives of the emperor.

Consistently with the early theories of the Romans, and in imitation of the senatorial career, the equestrian civil service was preceded by a military apprenticeship. After the initial military service the candidate for the equestrian honores was eligible for one of the procuratorships, which in themselves varied in dignity and importance; then followed the praefectures, which were the highest offices attainable.

The equestrian cursus honorum may be considered under three divisions.

- I. Preliminary service,
 - a) military, b) civil.
- II. Procuratores.
- III. Praefecti.

I. a) Preliminary military service.

Under Augustus no set form of military service appears to have been assigned to the knights, and it was not until the time of Claudius that the militiae equestres were in any way clearly defined.

According to Suetonius,¹ Claudius determined upon three forms of service: 1st, praefectura cohortis; 2d, praefectura alae; 3d, tribunatus legionis. The inscriptions, however, testify that these tres militiae equestres did not become the usual course of preliminary training until the beginning of the second century, but that omissions, such as of the praefectura alae and substitutions of one or more tribunates in the army, or of the three tribunates² in the city, were common.³

In inscriptions dating from the time of Septimius Severus the old order of promotion from praefectura cohortis to praefectura alae rarely appears, and other military positions form part of the preliminary career. This now in reality loses its preliminary or introductory nature, and becomes the main service for which the procuratorship is the far-distant reward. The centurionate⁴ is now the first equestrian military office,⁵ and the primipilate and the praefectura legionis, the old praefectura castrorum, are stepping stones to the procurator-

ship, while the higher positions filled by procuratores fall to those who have held the three city tribunates.¹

b) Preliminary civil service.

Notwithstanding the gradually increasing importance of military affairs and of service in the army from the beginning of the second century, there was, nevertheless, established at that time a civil career parallel to the military service as preliminary to the position of procurator. This was accomplished by the reforms of Hadrian, who recognized and emphasized legal education and training in state affairs as equivalent to service in the army. Thus those who had served as advocati fisci, or sexagenarii a consiliis sacris,² or consiliarii Augustorum,³ or ab commentariis praefecti praetorio,⁴ also in the lower offices of administration, such as of alimentation, of the roads, of taxation, were eligible for the procuratorship and praefectures without military service.

II. Procuratores (Ἐπίτροποι).

This title, procurator, was applied to the imperial agents who performed the lesser administrative duties throughout the Empire. It was originally used in connection with the employees of the emperor's household, who were generally freedmen, but spread afterwards to the offices of government closely related to the emperor, which, becoming of great importance, were finally filled entirely from members of the equestrian order. Thus the office of procurator became the patent of equestrian nobility, and hence was not conferred upon men of senatorial rank.

Any satisfactory classification of the various offices of the equestrian career is difficult, as it was not established upon such strict lines as the senatorial cursus, and its restrictions were often violated because of the nearness to the emperor, and his readiness to grant special favors in promoting from low positions to those of high degree. From the time of Hadrian, however, it is possible to determine the rank of the various procuratorships by means of the salary attached to each.

Among those in the last class may be mentioned the advocatus fisci, subpraefectus classis (in Italy), subprocuratores (in the provinces), praefectus vehiculorum (in the provinces), procurator ad Miniciam, adiutor praefecti annonae, procurator ad annonam Ostiis, adiutores studiorum, also the lower offices of the ratio privata, such as procurator ad bona damnatorum, and of the XX hereditatium, the promagister hereditatium at Rome, and in the second century the procurator bibliothecarum.

III. Praefecti (Ἐπαρχοί).

The history of this title is similar to that of procurator in that it originated in the imperial household, and then extended to the important officials of state who discharged certain functions by the delegation of the emperor. The important praefectures were the highest official positions of the equestrian career.

The title splendidus eques Romanus which appears in some inscriptions of Italy seems to have been given to those equites who, not being magistrates, could not receive the titles mentioned above.¹

Elevation of Equites to the Senatorial Rank.

By an act of the emperor (adlectio, see page 167) procuratores of a certain grade were raised to the senatorial rank, and filled vacancies in the senate. This change was not made, as a rule, after the important praefectures had been reached, for these were as high in rank as the curule magistracies; also adlectio inter praetorios is more common in the inscriptions than adlectio inter tribunicios.¹ There is no evidence of any change to the lower order on the part of those who had held curule offices. The title equites illustres was applied to those who, although of senatorial census, preferred to remain within the equestrian order.

Preliminary military service: — p(rimi)p(ilo) leg(ionis) IIII Flaviae f(eliciae), trib(un)o coh(ortis) prim(ae) vig(illum), trib(un)o coh(ortis) XI urban(ae), trib(un)o coh(ortis) VIII pr(aetoriae), p(rimo) p(ilo) iterum, praef(ecto) leg(ionis) II Tra(iana) [f(ortis)].

Praefecture: — praef(ecto) an[on(ae)].

Mommsen states that primipilatus iteratus, after other military service of a higher grade, gave certain advantages which followed immediately upon the primipilate.

CURSUS HONORUM AFTER CONSTANTINE

The elaborate systems described above were not maintained after the beginning of the fourth century. Evidences of disintegration show themselves in the course of the third century in the abandonment, after Caracalla, of the required military service preliminary to the quaestorship, in the disappearance of the vigintivirate, and from the time of Gallien in the final exclusion of members of the senatorial order from the army. After Constantine the equestrian career disappeared entirely, and many of the former restrictions of the senatorial cursus were disregarded.

The cursus honorum, as it existed after the early part of the fourth century, was confined to members of the senatorial order known as the clarissimi. To these were allotted the official positions and functions which, arranged in grades according to their importance, were assigned on the basis of a threefold classification of those eligible for office. These three classes, representing grades of promotion, were:

1. Clarissimi, C, λαμπρότατοι.
2. Clarissimi et spectabiles, C · ET · S, SP, περιβλεπτοι.
3. Clarissimi et inlustres, C · ET · I, IN, INL, ἐνδοξοι.

The general class of the clarissimi consisted of those who were sons of senators, and so held their rank by birth, and again those who were admitted to the senate through the operation of adlectio.

The former were expected to begin their senatorial career by serving as quaestors and then praetors, but, as the quaestorship was often disregarded, the praetorship became in reality the initial position admitting to the senate.

The latter, those honored by adlectio, were made senators by the conferring of the honorary consulship by the emperor sometimes upon the vote of the senate. This was known as adlectio in consulares, a phrase which, when strictly used, referred to the honorary consulship, but was applied at this period to elevation to the rank either of clarissimi consulares, clarissimi et spectabiles, or clarissimi et inlustres. The word consularis no longer has the signification of ex-consul, but merely means an active member of the senate, and one so entitled might be very far from the attainment of the consulship, indeed might never reach this goal of the senatorial career.

Examples of the two forms of the cursus honorum are here given.

OFFICIAL POSITIONS OF THE THIRD CLASS

The inscriptions show us that the official positions open to men of the third class of society were of great number and variety. The enumeration of these various functions follows in general the same principle of an ascending or descending series which regulates the order of designations of the senatorial and equestrian cursus. It is impossible, however, to obtain a knowledge of the exact grade of the individual offices or to lay down the line of promotion, since, as may be seen in the military cursus, there must have been different starting points and different paths of advancement where apparently subordinate and intermediate positions are disregarded. These omissions may be due to unusual promotion on account of peculiar fitness or through special favor, influences which would have more power in a cursus of the lowest grade. These inferior positions are classified in the Indices of the Corpus Inscriptionum as follows:

- I. Apparitores et Officiales Magistratum et Imperatoris et Vectigalium.
- II. Officia Militaria et Classiaria.
- III. Honorati et Principales Coloniarum et Municipiorum.
- IV. Principales Collegiorum.

I. The first class includes the apparitores and other aides of magistrates and public officials; also subordinate officers of the imperial administration in Rome and in the provinces.

The most common in the inscriptions are:

Apparitores	Scriba decurialis , ¹ SCR, SCRI, SCRIB · DEC

Actarius , A, ACT	Adiutor officii corniculariorum , rationum , etc., ADI · OFF · CORN, RAT
Aquilifer , AQVIL, AQVILIF

The internal administration of the coloniae and municipia was similar to that of the superior government at Rome.

We may arrange the municipes or Roman citizens of the municipia in three classes or orders: 1) ordo decurionum, 2) ordo Augustalium, 3) plebs (populus, municipes).

The *ordo decurionum*¹ was the municipal senate composed of life members, generally one hundred in number,² who were either ex-magistrates or persons selected from the people through the exercise of adlectio by magistrates similar to the censor at Rome, termed II viri or III viri quinquennales. The persons selected were at least twenty-five years of age, and possessed a certain amount of property, generally 100000 sesterces. There were four grades of senators which were indicated in the list of decuriones (album decurionum): 1) the quinquennalicii, 2) the II virales or II viralicii, 3) the aedilicii, 4) the quaestoricii.

The magistrates generally found in the municipalities were the II viri or III viri iure dicundo, the aediles, and the quaestores. Their tenure was annual, and they were elected by the comitia. As in Rome, these magistracies formed a cursus honorum, which was open to those of the senatorial order. The II viri or III viri quinquennales elected every five years with special censorial powers were considered of the highest rank. In certain places in Italy the highest magistrates were termed dictator, praetor, magister, or praefectus i(ure) d(icundo).

The titles duovir or quattuorvir, found respectively in the coloniae and municipia, implied either that the two magistrates known as aediles and the two iure dicundo formed separate organizations, or, on the other hand, were united in one body of four members. The form III viri iure dicundo is generally found in the Italian municipia, while II viri iure dicundo is seen in inscriptions of the coloniae and of the provinces.

² Cf. the centoviri of Ven and Perugia.

The ordo Augustalium, like the equestrian order at Rome, held a position midway between the decuriones and the plebs. It dates from the reign of Augustus, and prevailed especially in the western provinces of the Empire. The Augustales seem to have had a semi-official standing, and to have performed certain functions different from those assigned to other magistrates. The municipal senate named annually a college of six members, seviri Augustales, to whom was entrusted the giving of public games and festivals.

INSCRIPTIONS OF THE SENATORIAL ORDER

1. L. Caecilio L. f. Rufo q., tr. pl., pr. pro cos.¹
(On another side) dis manibus sacrum L. Caecili Rufi.
C. I. L. I. 639, XIV. 2464. Found at Marino in ancient Latium, existing to-day in a copy. L. Caecilius Rufus seems to have been the brother of P. Sulla tribunus plebis, 691/63, praetor, 697/57, frequently mentioned by Cicero. ¹ See note in following inscription.
2. M. Coelio M. f. Vinciano | pr. pro cos.,¹ tr. pl., q., | Opsilia uxor fecit.
C. I. L. I. 641, XIV. 2802. An inscription on a tomb at Tusculum in Latium. Coelius was tribunus plebis 701/53, and in 707/47 he was placed by Caesar in charge of Pontus with two legions (Cic. Ad. Fam. 8, 4, 3). ¹ It is Mommsen's theory that not two separate honores, the praetura and the proconsulatus, are referred to here, but merely the honor praetoris provincialis, with added appellation of proconsul.
C. I. L. X. 6087. On a mausoleum near Formia (Formiae), Italy. ¹ He was consul 712/42 and ensor 732/22. ² Dec. 29, 711/43. Beneventum was among the towns assigned to the soldiers in 712/42 by the triumviri rei publicae constituendae. ³ i.e. manubiis, cf. C. I. L. VI. 1316. ⁴ In 710/44 or 711/43, when as proconsul he was governing Transalpine Gaul. On the founding of Lugdunum, see Dio. XLVI. 50.
C. I. L. VI. 1460, XIV. 2264. Inscribed on a marble tablet found at Alba, now in Rome. ¹ The name of a man of senatorial order without cognomen, but with the tribus, — Galeria tribu; so on coins L. Memmi Gal. and L. C. Memies L. f. Gal. (Momm. *Röm. 5. Cn. Baebio Cn. [f.] | Tampilo Válae | Numoniano | q., pr. pro cos., | III vir. a. a. a. f. f., | viro.

C. I. L. VI. 1360. Inscribed on a marble pedestal found between the Via Appia and Via Latina, near Rome, now on the Via Appia. The function of the vigintivirate is here held after the praetorship.

6. Cives Romani qui | Mytileneis negotiantur | M. Titio¹ L. f. pro cos., | praef. classis, | cos. desig., patrono, | honoris causa.

C. I. L. III. 455; Suppl. 7160. Inscribed on a marble pedestal found at Mytilene, preserved only in copy. ¹ consul suffectus, 723/29.

7. P. C. I. L. IX. 2845-6. Found at Il Vasto d'Aimone (Histonium) on a large double sarcophagus. ¹ ex s. c. gives the authority for the irregularity in the holding this office post quaesturam. ² iudex quaestionis is somewhat inferior in grade to the praetor, and hence in the cursus honorum stands regularly between the aedileship and praetorship. ³ Not before 731/23, when Augustus placed the aerarium Saturni in the care of two praetors. ⁴ viar(um) cur(ator) extra u(rbem) R(omam) ex s(enatus) c(onsulto) in quinq(uennum). C. I. L. IX. 3306. Found at Castelvecchio Subrego (Superaequum), where it is still preserved. Varius Geminus, mentioned frequently by Seneca, is probably the same person. ¹ The names of the two provinces of which Geminus was legatus are not given. ² Quaesitori iudici is denoted in other inscriptions by quaesitor and iudex quaestionis. See preceding inscription and Momm. Staatsr. II.,³ p. 586. Geminus probably held this office between the tribunate and the praetorship. ³ It is noticeable that the honores ordinarii are given in a descending order, and the honores extraordinarii follow in ascending order. Quaesitores iudices were aedilicii or quaestorii. Praefecti frumenti dandi were praetorii or aedilicii, while the curatores operum publicorum were praetorii or consulares. Decemviratus litibus iudicandis was undertaken generally before the quaestorship; nevertheless, in the time of Augustus, it was sometimes given to those of senatorial order extra ordinem.

C. I. L. III. 1741. Found at Ragusa, in Dalmatia, where a fragment still remains. ¹ consul ord., 10 A.D. ² 14 A.D. and subsequent years. The consulatus and the priestly functions may thus assume the first place, out of their chronological position, and in the order consul, sacerdotium, rather than in the reverse. The remaining honores may, however, immediately follow the consulatus, and the sacerdotium be placed at the end. If the honores ordinarii are given together, and in like manner the extraordinarii, or if the important state magistracies appear by themselves, and then those of a municipality, the priestly offices of the state may be inserted between the two series of honores. This is true also of municipal priestly offices. ³ This is the province which was afterwards called Dalmatia, termed maritima pars Illyrici, by Velleius II. 125.

C. I. L. VI. 1364. Inscribed on a marble tablet found in a cemetery on the Via Ardeatina, Rome. ¹ legatus. ² This letter is unnecessary. The name of M. Antonius, although erased from the Fasti Capitolini and elsewhere, nevertheless was afterwards restored in the same. It was given in the fasti of 20 A.D., according to Tacitus, Annales, III. 18.

C. I. L. XIV. 3607. Inscribed on a marble tablet found near Tibur, existing only in a copy. It refers to the son of M. Plautius Silvanus consul 752/2. ¹ Silvanus, the father of Pulcher, is termed triumphalis because of his receiving triumphalia ornamenta. ² 31 A.D. ³ Laelia, the ablative case of the name of the mother is given in addition to that of the father, according to the Etruscan custom (Bormann).

Here the consulship and sacerdotium are given first by themselves, then follow the legationes provinciarum imperatoriarum and the proconsulship, next the honores urbani ordinarii, and then the honores urbani extraordinarii, the various series being in ascending order.

C. I. L. XI. 5210, 5211. Found at Fulginia, in Umbria. These inscriptions refer to two brothers, known from the Letters of Pliny, VIII. 18, 5, Martial V. 28, 3, and from lateres of the gens Domitia (C. I. L. XV., p. 266). ¹ They were consules suffecti in the last years of Vespasian or Titus, or in early part of reign of Domitian, proconsuls of Africa under Domitian, before 94 A.D. ² Lucanus was probably legatus provinciae Africae in the proconsulship of his brother Tullus in the year following his own proconsulship. ³ The legatio exercitus Africani was commonly given to praetorii, but Tullus received it as praetor designatus. ⁴ They were the praefecti of the auxilarii of the army in Germany, not, however, before 73 A.D., after they had been placed among the patricii by Vespasian, in 73 or 74 A.D. (Mom. Staatsr. II.,³ 1101, note 4). ⁵ They were presented with the dona militaria after the German campaign. Hence praefecto auxiliorum, etc., and donato, etc., must be read together, for all the other honores are given in the descending order, save this portion. ⁶ Aureis appears in both inscriptions where we would expect aurea. The dona militaria for soldiers, under-officers, and officers to and including the grade of centurion, were armillae, torques, and phalerae, and for the higher officers, coronae, hastae purae, and vexilla. Centurions of a higher grade had a right to one corona and one hasta pura, the tribunes and prefects to one corona, one hasta pura, one vexillum, or to two insignia of the same kind. The legatus of the legion of praetorian rank received three of each kind, while the legatus of consular rank received four. The mention of the armillae, torques, and phalerae does not occur after Hadrian. We then find only donis militaribus donatus. The mention of military insignia does not appear at all in the inscriptions after the time of Caracalla.

C. I. L. V. 5262. Inscribed on four fragments of a large stone brought originally from Comum to Mediolanum, where it was found. Only one of these now remains, the portion of the inscription on the others existing only in copies. The inscription refers to the baths established by the will of Pliny at Comum, where he was born. Pliny, named P. Caecilius Secundus, became C. Plinius Caecilius Secundus after adoption through his uncle's will (Mommson, Herm. III., p. 60). ¹ consul suffectus, 100 A.D. (Momm., l.c., p. 91). ² According to Epist. 3, 8, this was shortly after 103 or 104 A.D. ³ The mission to Bithynia dates 111. ⁴ 105, and years following (Momm., l.c., p. 47). ⁵ In Epist. ad Traian. 3, Pliny refers to the praefectura aerarii, which he held in 98-101. He held the praefectura aerarii militaris 94 or 95. ⁶ Pliny appears to have been praetor in 93, tribunus plebis 92. ⁷ In Epist. 7, 16, 2, Pliny says that he has been quaestor imperatoris. He was quaestor Domitiani, as it appears, in 89-90. ⁸ Pliny says in Epist. 1, 10, 3; 3, 11, 5, that he had been tribunus militum in Syria. ⁹ t(estamento) f(ieri) i(ussit). ¹⁰ decies octies centena et sexaginta sex milia cum sexcentis sexaginta sex (the number 186666); Mommson, Herm. III, p. 102, suggests that the sign of bessis (2/3) has disappeared. ¹¹ This numeral is supplied from Epist. 7, 18, 2. ¹² Pliny had dedicated a library for his fellow-townsmen in 97, or a little earlier (Epist. 1, 8, 2). For the life of Pliny, see Momm. Hermes, III., p. 59.

Since militēs veterani commonly received dimissio after twenty-five years of service, Wilmanns places the date of the inscription as 150 A.D. PART III

CLASSIFICATION AND DESCRIPTION OF INSCRIPTIONS

IN the preceding portion of this work we considered Roman names and official titles, elements which are found in inscriptions of all kinds. To study the additional elements which are found in individual inscriptions, it will be useful to arrange epigraphic material in various classes, and then to examine the special form peculiar to each class.

By "Latin Inscriptions," if we use the term in a general sense, we mean the remains of the Latin language of a non-literary character preserved for us in the more enduring substances.

There are two great classes :

I. Inscriptions proper (ἐπιγραφαί, ἐπιγράμματα, tituli, Aufschriften). These have no existence apart from the objects upon which they are found, but form a necessary part of these objects, denoting their particular purpose.

II. Inscriptions which are strictly documents (acta, instrumenta, tabulae, Urkunden). These were written with some particular individual purpose, and hence have an existence mainly or entirely separate from the objects upon which they appear. Each of these classes may be subdivided as follows :

I. TITULI

1. Dedicatory and Votive Inscriptions (Tituli Sacri).
2. Sepulchral Inscriptions (Tituli Sepulcrales).
3. Honorary Inscriptions (Tituli Honorarii).
4. Inscriptions on Public Works (Tituli Operum Publicorum).
5. Inscriptions on Movable Objects (Instrumentum).

II. INSTRUMENTA

1. Laws (Leges et Plebi Scita).
2. Decrees of the Senate (Senatus Consulta).
3. Imperial Documents (Instrumenta Imperatorum).
4. Decrees of Magistrates (Decreta Magistratum).
5. Sacred and Public Documents (Acta Sacra et Publica).
6. Private Documents (Acta Privata).
7. Wall Inscriptions (Inscriptiones Parietariae).
8. Consular Diptychs (Diptycha Consularia).

CHAPTER VII

DEDICATORY INSCRIPTIONS

DEDICATORY inscriptions (tituli sacri) appear on the various objects consecrated to the gods, such as vases, altars, thin metal plates (laminae) attached to altars and on votive tablets.

Dedicatory bowl of Etruscan origin, now in a museum at Paris. Date 350-250 B.C.

C. I. L. I. 44. P. L. M. E. XI. 6.

The earliest known are painted in white upon earthen cups or bowls of a dark color, and give the name of a divinity in the genitive case as indicating the owner of the vessel.

Inscribed on a patera found at Volci, Etruria, now in Gregorian Museum, Rome.
Date 350-250 B.C.

Date 350-250 B.C.

The natural form of dedication, the dative case of the name of the divinity, is found on the votive altars of the grove of Pisaurum. (See page 54.)

The bronze lamina shown below is also an illustration of this form of dedicatory inscription.

C. I. L. X. 6484. P. L. M. E. II. D.

With these names of divinities there appears in some instances the name of the dedicator together with a simple verbal phrase, e.g. donu(m) dat, dede(t), dono(m) ded(e)ro(n)t, donum portat. Even in the early period we find also the word sacrum (S, SA, SAC) with the dative case, or, more rarely, with the genitive; likewise the words libens and merito, indicating the spirit of the dedicator and the worthiness of the one honored. In inscriptions on offerings taken from spoils of war, the name of the dedicator may appear without the name of the divinity.

M. Fulvius M(arci) f(ilius) | Ser(vii) n(epos) co(n)s(ul) Aetoliā cepit.

In general, however, tituli sacri of all periods contain the name of the divinity, the name of the dedicator, and a verbal phrase. These may be termed major elements. Subordinate expressions varying with the individual inscriptions may be termed minor elements.

I. Name of divinity.

This appears regularly in the dative case, rarely in the genitive, and is accompanied at times by deo, deae, or deabus, or is modified by some adjective or appositional phrase, such as epithets and titles belonging to the names of divinities, as, for example:

Iuppiter Optimus Maximus · O · M	Fortuna Primigenia F · P
Iuppiter Optimus Maximus Fulminator	Genius huius loci G · H · L
Fulginator · O · M · FVLM · FVL	Genius Populi Romani G · P · R
Iuno Regina · R, RE, REG	Genius Domini Nostri G · D · N
Iuno Seispita Mater Regina · S · M · R	Numen Augusti N · AVG
Hercules Victor HERC · VIC	Sol Invictus Mithras S · I · M

II. The name of the dedicator, in simple form, i.e. the tria nomina, or with possible additions described in Chap. IV. Indications of rank, official station, profession, or calling may accompany the name. After this major element, minor elements may be found indicating:

1. Participation in the act of dedication, e.g.:

cum coniuge et filiis, cum suis omnibus, cum liberis suis.

2. The object dedicated, e.g.:

aram, signum, statuam, templum.

3. The motive or incentive to which the offering is due, e.g.:

ex imperio, ex iussu EX · IV, ex visu or viso, ex senatus consulto EX · S · C, de senatus sententia D · S · S, decreto decurionum D · D, ex testamento EX · T, TEST, pro salute (illius) PRO · S, pro se et suis, pro salute sua P · S · S, in honorem (illius), in memoriam, in honorem domus divinae IN · H · D · D, ob honorem OB · H, HON, ob merces recte conservatas, sublato hoste perniciosissimo p(opuli) R(omani).

4. The cost of the offering or the means of providing for the same, e.g.:

de pecunia sua D · S · P, de suo D · S, de praeda, ex sestertium (tot) milibus nummum EX · HS · N, ex auri pondo — P, aere publico.

5. The location of the monument, e.g.:

in foro novo, in suo.

6. The permission or the assistance of others, e.g.:

per (illum), per patrem, permissu (illius).

III. Verb or verbal phrase.

The verb appears in the perfect or present tense, singular or plural, first or third person, e.g.:

dedit, dederunt D, DED, dedit dedicavit D · D, dono dedit dedicavit D · D · D, donum or dono dedit D · D, dono dedit libens merito D · D · L · M, fecit F, FEC, faciendum curavit F, FAC · C, CVR, sacrum dat S · D, posuit P, sacravit SAC, ex voto posuit EX · V · P, votum bene merenti posuit V · B · M · P, donum dedit votum laetus libens merito D · D · V · L · L · M, votum solvit libens merito V · S · L · M, votum solvit libens animo V · S · L · A.

Certain minor elements may follow the verbal phrase:

1. Date of dedication.

This is ordinarily indicated by the names of the consuls of the year, with the addition in some instances of the months and days, or by the name of the emperor with the number of his tribunicia potestate and that of his imperial salutation, or, as in some provinces, with the year of his reign, e.g. anno I imp. Domitiani Aug. (C. I. L. III. 35). The names of other magistrates or officials, combined with the titles of their position, in the provinces, municipia, or collegia, also serve to indicate the date. Certain prominent events are used as dating points, e.g. ab urbe condita A · V · C, anno provinciae, post Interamniam conditam.

2. Certain formulae indicating location, e.g. :

locus datus decreto decurionum L · D · D · D

loco dato publice decurionum decreto L · D · PVB · D · D

3. Ablative absolute indicating the person assisting, e.g. :

curante (illo), curam agente (illo) C · A

The general arrangement of dedicatory inscriptions may be indicated thus¹:

illi deo sacrum
ille cum illo signum voto suscepto
de suo

At about the close of the fifth century A.U.C. (250 B.C.), contemporaneous with the introduction of the custom of building tombs with some architectural design, and adding ornamentation, poetical elogia were inscribed after the usual titulus, mainly upon the tombs of distinguished families. The early epitaphs¹ of the Scipio family contain poetic epigrams in saturnian verse, and one¹ of a later date is accompanied by an epigram in hexameters and pentameters. This custom grew in favor, especially with the middle classes, where Greek influence was felt.

Ritschl states that these are the oldest dactylic verses in the inscriptions, belonging to about the time of Ennius. ¹ Protophenes was the slave of this man. ² suavei(s) = suavis? ³ So Buecheler—duplici videtur locativi casus nota signatum, but Ritschl reads heic ei; see Lindsay, Latin Language, p. 567. ⁴ soueis—monosyllable.

Towards the close of the Republic reference is made occasionally to the cultus of the dei manes, and the tomb is regarded as the (locus) deum manium (C. I. L. I. 1410), or the dei manes are represented as having received the dead, while in the Augustan age the tituli sepulcrales assume the form of tituli sacri, becoming, in reality, dedi-

Elements entering into the composition of tituli sepulcrales.

I. Dis Manibus (θεοῖς δαίμοσιν, καταχθονίους).

Inscriptions dating from the Augustan age regularly begin with these words, at first written in full, then later on abbreviated D. M. Other forms are dis manibus sacrum D. M. S or d. m. sacrum, d. m. et memoriae or et genio, et quieti aeternae, somno aeternali, etc. In rare instance D. M. is found at the close of the inscription (C. I. L. X. 684). Sometimes a dedication to some other divinity, e.g. Venus, Juno, or Luna, is substituted for that to the dei manes. This occurs particularly in inscriptions from Spain.

II. Name of the dead.

After the dedication to the dei manes there followed the name of the dead, with or without official titles or statements as to profession or calling. The name appears either in the nominative case as the subject of some verbal phrase, as hic adquiescit or iacet, situs est, in the genitive, depending upon dis manibus, or in the dative when the inscription is really honorary in character.

Minor elements associated with the name of the dead.

1. The age of the person is expressed by a variety of formulae: annorum AN, ANN, vixit annis (tot) V · A, AN, ANN. The accusative annos is also found, but is not as common as the ablative. At times the months (mensibus or menses M, MENS) are also given, and in the early period, particularly in case of infants, the days (diebus, dies D, DI, DIEB), and even the hours (horis H, HOR, O).

A relative clause often expresses the age, qui or quae vixit annis (tot) Q · V · A, also vixit annis plus minus VIX · ANN · P · M, which is rare before the middle of the third century A.D., but common in the later period.

Other formulae are annos agens (tot), defunctus annorum (tot) D, DE, DF, Ð, DEF · AN, ANN, obitus annorum (tot) O, Ø · AN, ANN.

In inscriptions relating to married persons the length of married life is expressed in various ways, qui or quae vixit annis (tot), or facere, ferre, laborare cum (illo) in place of vivere cum (illo). In epitaphs of soldiers the years of service are usually given, so annorum (tot), stipendiorum (tot) ST, STIP, aerum (tot) AER or militavit annis (tot) M, MIL · AN, ANN. These indications of years in tituli sepulcrales are found particularly in inscriptions of men of lower rank who have held no official position and upon whose tomb no honorary titles can be recorded.

2. In the tomb inscription of a gladiator together with his years of service there is also given the peculiar class to which he belonged, as essedarius ESSE, murmillo M, MVR, contra retiarius 7R, also the number of victories, denoted by the symbol ○ (according to some = coronae). In the case of aurigae the epitaph contains the factio, e.g. factio veneta; the country, e.g. natione Maurus; the age, number of victories, e.g. primum vicit, date of victory, horses with which the contest was won, character of contest, e.g. inter singularum vicit (toties), inter binarum (toties), secundas tulit (toties), and finally the money earned.¹

3. Circumstances of death.

*a latronibus occisus, peregre defunctus, mors per culpam curantium, tegula prolapsa preemptus, a tauro deceptus.*¹

4. Formulae referring to the repose of the dead.

hic situs H · S, hic situs est H · S · E, hic sepultus est H · S · E, hic iacet H · I, hic adquiescit H · ADQ, ossa hic sita sunt O · H · S · S, ossa hic sunt O · H · S.

5. Salutations addressed to the dead by passers-by, placed either at the beginning or close of the inscription.

Ave or have, salve, with the name of the dead in the vocative case, as have Vitalis, Lolli ave. Sit tibi terra levis S · T · T · L, ossa tua bene quiescant O · T · B · Q, sit vobis terra levis S · V · T · L, ossa volo bene quiescant O · V · B · Q, hic ossa volo bene quiescant H · O · V · B · Q, opto sit tibi terra levis O · S · T · T · L.

6. Salutations represented as addressed by the dead to the living, either at the beginning or close of the inscription.

Ave, salve, vale viator, tu qui legis vale et cum voles venito, bene valeat is qui hoc titulum perlegit meum.

III. The place of burial.

1. Circumstances bearing upon the selection of a place.

2. Measures of the tomb.

in fronte or in frontem pedes (tot) I, IN · F, FR, FRONT · P, PED, in via, in agro or in agrum pedes (tot) I, IN · A, AG, AGR, retro RET or in retro pedes (tot) IN · R. These are sometimes rendered more explicit by the addition of longus L, LONG, and latus L, LAT, e.g. in fronte longum pedes (tot), latum pedes (tot); also locus L or locus monumenti L · M, e.g. L · M in fronte pedes (tot), area quae ante sepulcrum est huic monumento cedit in fronte pedes (tot).

3. Protection of tomb from desecration and alienation.

huic monumento dolus malus abesto H · M · D · M · A, ni violato, hoc monumentum heredem non sequetur or sequitur H · M · H · N · S, hoc monumentum heredem exterum non sequetur H · M · H · E · N · S, hoc monumentum sive sepulcrum est heredem non sequetur H · M · S · S · E · H · N · S, hoc monumentum sine dolo malo H · M · S · D · M, dolus malus abesto et ius civile D · M · A · ET · I · C, hoc monumentum ad heredem non pertinet H · M · A · H · N · P, rogo te viator monumento huic nil male feceris.

IV. The dedication of the monument

This portion of the inscription pertains to the nature of obsequi honorarii which appears on public monuments and buildings. It may consist simply of the designation of the person dedicating the tomb, and in remembrance of the one commemorated, or it may form an elaborate epithion containing references to the deeds of the dead and setting forth details as to the tomb and the occasion of its dedication.

This dedicatory form often takes the place of the ordinary titulus sepulcralis.

Minor Elements :

1. The persons who dedicate the monument

These are designated either by their names or by their titles, modified by adjectives, maritus being the most common. The relation between the dedicator and the one commemorated is often expressed by infelicissimus, coniux carissimus or maritus or uxor or parentes non hoc merentes a vobis. maritus uxor parentes non hoc merentes a vobis.

2. Terms denoting the object dedicated domus aeterna, locus sepulcralis monumentum sepulchrum tumulus, titulus, aedes.

3. Verbal phrase.

adornavit, aedificavit, constituit, donavit dedicavit S. A, ASC. D, DED (Gaul, placet

4. Phrases explaining the circumstances of the monument.

ex auctoritate (illius), ex beneficio, nomine meo et uxoris, ex praecepto matris, ex testamento, arbitratu (illius), curam agente (illius), honoris causa, memoriae causa, ob meritum eius, pro merito, adque propagandam, pro meritis eorum.

5. The person for whom, or in remembrance of whom the monument is built is denoted either by his name or by a verb indicating the basis of the union existing between him and the dedicator.

amico bene merenti A. B. M., coniugi bene merenti B. M., libertae carissimae indulgentissimo, marito amantissimo, Epitaph of Publius Cornelius Scipio.

Words denoting relationship are at times modified by such phrases as (marito) cum quo vixit annis (tot) sine ulla animi laesione, (uxori) cum qua concorditer egit per annos (tot).

There are also in existence sepulchral inscriptions which are, in reality, documents¹ (instrumenta). Of this character are the funeral orations, e.g. *Laudatio Murdiae*² of the first century A.D., which, having formed a part of the obsequies, have been inscribed upon the tomb; also legal documents, such as the will of *Dasumius*³ (108 A.D.) and the *donatio*⁴ of Flavius Syntrophus.

Columbaria

One form of tomb used in Rome was that known as columbarium.⁵ These were burial-rooms, built partly above ground, in the walls of which were arranged small recesses or niches having the appearance of pigeon-holes (columbarium = dove-cot). These niches were used to hold vases (ollae) containing the ashes of the dead. Columbaria frequently served as the tombs of men of the lower classes, as of freedmen and slaves, and were, for the most part, built by collegia or societates, whose members thus secured by coöperation a final resting-place for themselves and family. Upon the completion of such a building the ollae were portioned out to the various members of the collegium.⁶ A difference in number of the ollae assigned implied a difference in the amount contributed.⁷ Each member indicated his own place by inscribing his name upon a marble tablet which was fastened above or below the recess, or by writing his name with a graphium on the wall of the building. The tablets,

If the tomb was made by a living person for several others, the arrangement was as follows:

D. M. illi coniugi suae vixit annis tot et illi filio suo vixit annis tot et illi filiae suae vixit annis tot ille fecit	OR	D. --	-----------	--

If the maker of the tomb expected to be one of its occupants, the form was:

ille { vivus
 vivo sibi fecit et illi coniugi suae vixit annis tot
et illi filio suo vixit annis tot
et illi filiae suae
vixit annis tot

TITULI HONORARII

The custom of raising statues in honor of distinguished men and adding thereto honorary inscriptions appeared in Rome towards the close of the third century B.C. This custom was of Greek origin, and some inscriptions are found in the Greek form, i.e. with the name (in the accusative case) of the person honored and with the verb omitted.

The Romans at first merely transferred the inscriptions of their imagines maiorum to their tombs, adding these to the simple and customary tituli sepulcrales. The elogia of the Scipio inscriptions referred to above are of this character, although they are poetical in form. Memorial and honorary inscriptions (elogia), consisting of the name (in the nominative case) of the person honored, followed by official titles of curule offices and brief historical statements, may be regarded as the primitive form of tituli honorarii. What was thus done by private persons was soon imitated publicly in the setting up, with, however, no sepulchral connection, either during the lifetime of the individual honored or after his death, of honorary inscriptions such as the Columna Rostrata in honor of C. Duilius, and the elogia of the triumphal arch of Fabius.

Of a similar character are the brief inscriptions found on the pedestals of statues and those of a memorial and honorary nature which appear on marble tablets and beneath busts.

We learn from ancient writers that Augustus adorned his forum with statues of famous men, particularly of distinguished generals, and added inscriptions denoting their achievements. Only a few fragments of these elogia have been preserved, but as copies were set up also at Arretium which still exist, we can learn from them the character of the originals. It is possible that similar elogia found at other places, e.g. at Pompeii, referring to Aeneas and Romulus, may have been copied from the city inscriptions placed by Augustus.¹

now preserved on the Capitol in the Palazzo dei Conservatori.

Though this inscription refers to C. Duilius, consul 494/260, who won the battle of Mylae, it was probably inscribed with imitation of archaic forms in the imperial period, perhaps in the time of Claudius (Ritschl, Opusc. IV., p. 204). Wölfflin believes it to have been taken from a more ancient inscription in the time of Augustus.¹

From the period of Sulla honorary inscriptions regularly assume the dedicatory form having the name of the person honored in the dative case. Such inscriptions form the tituli honorarii of the later Republic and of the imperial period.

Inscriptions on statues erected in honor of those still living were at first of simple form, consisting of the name of the person honored followed by the title of the office held at the time of dedication.

From the time of Augustus, however, inscriptions more elaborate and resembling in their contents elogia, but of a dedicatory form, were set up in honor of celebrated men, particularly triumphatores, both at Rome, as in the new fora of Augustus and Trajan, and also in the provincial cities. This custom spread throughout the Roman world and continued until the fourth or fifth century.

¹ Bavar. Class. Phil. Hist. 1890, p. 295. Quintilian, Inst. I. 7, 12, and Pliny, N. H. XXXIV. 20, both refer to this inscription. For the facts of history see Polyb. I. 23, 7; I. 24, 2; Zonar. VIII. 11; Eutrop. II. 20; Oros. IV. 7, 10.

Tituli honorarii of the form just described regularly consist of the following principal elements :

I. The names (in the dative case) of the person honored.

The names of emperors are regularly accompanied by the usual titles, while that of others may appear in simple form or, on the other hand, be accompanied by the cursus honorum and the designations of the various functions arranged as described above. In some cases the name is in the genitive preceded by honori or in honorem.

II. The name of the person, or, as in many instances, of the community or collegium raising the statue and setting up the inscription. This element regularly follows the first, although it may be separated from it by certain idiomatic phrases.

III. Various phrases or formulae accounting for the conferring of the honor, or bearing upon the circumstances of the raising of the statue or monument.

1. Adjective or appositional phrases indicating the worth or dignity of the person honored : amantissimo patriae, abstinentissimo iustissimo disertissimo (praesidi prov.), praestantissimo (patrono), optimo ac dignissimo (patrono).

2. Phrases indicating the reasons for conferring the honor : *ob amorem et instantiam erga patriam civesque, ob merita eius, ob eximiam benignamque erga omnes cives suos adfectionem, pro singularibus erga civitatem nostram meritis, propter eximiam pietatem et affectionem fraternam, ad aeternitatem meritorum eius, ad perennem ipsius gloriam, ad referendam gratiam, ad perenne testimonium, ob honorem eius, honoris causa*¹ H · C.

3. Phrases describing the dedicator : dicatissimus numini maiestatique eorum (imperatorum), devotus numini maiestatique eius (eorum), memor liberalitatis et honorificentiae eius.

cura agente (illo) C · A, CVR · AG, curante ac perficiente (illo).

If the person honored has himself met the expenses of the raising of the statue, the fact is indicated at the close of the inscription: honore usus sumptus remisit loco dato decreto decurionum H · V · S · R · L · D · D · D, honore accepto impensam remisit H · A · I · R, honore contentus sua pecunia posuit H · C · S · P · P, honore usus impensam remisit H · V · I · R.

IV. The fourth element is a verbal phrase, expressed or understood. Such are — statuam censuit ponendam, conlocavit, erigi conlocarique iusserunt, statuendum curavi, statuam conlocandam decrevit, ponendam or poni censuit, posuit idemque dedicavit, fecit FEC, faciundum curavit F · C.

The order of the elements may be indicated thus¹:

illi	illi	illi	illi
ille	ob merita	ille	ille
ob merita	ille	ob merita	ob merita
statuam posuit statuam posuit locus datus decreto decurionum

The first shows the omission of the verb, the second and third the position of the verbal phrase, and the fourth the general position of the formulae of honor.

INSCRIPTIONS ON PUBLIC BUILDINGS AND STRUCTURES

TITULI OPERUM PUBLICORUM

In the last century of the republic it became customary in Rome to place inscriptions upon public buildings and temples, also upon other structures, such as bridges, arches, and aqueducts. These were primarily intended to simply indicate the person or the community under whose direction the work had been accomplished.

The early and simple form, belonging particularly to buildings erected by private persons, consisted of the name of the one erecting the building and a verb, e.g. fecit, or verbal phrase. Of this character is the inscription on the Pantheon.

M · AGRIPPA · L · F · COS · TERTIVM · FECIT C. I. L. VI. 896.

As the custom grew in prevalence, the inscriptions were made much more extensive, and under the Empire they were given with great fulness, containing many particulars connected with the raising of the structure so adorned, so that they virtually fulfilled the purpose of records and served as inscriptions in honor of those named, becoming in character, and finally in form, tituli honorarii.

Inscription of Temple of Bona Dea, at Lavernae, now Prezza, near Corfinium, Italy.

C. I. L. I. 1879 = IX. 8188. P. L. M. E.

The various elements which enter into these inscriptions may be classified as follows:

I. The names and titles, in the nominative case, of the person or community building the structure or restoring the same.

II. The designation of the structure, or description of the work accomplished, in the accusative case:

portas, balneas, templum, Aquam Marciam, arcum, aquaeductum, horologium, porticum ad balineum cum piscina et signo Cupidinis, thermas cum porticibus duplicibus, aquam per publicum ducendam, tabularium fuciundum, etc.

If the inscription indicates the restoration or rebuilding of the structure, phrases describing its former condition are found :

thermas Herculis vi terrae motus eversas, porticus publicas vetustate corruptas, basilicam equestrem exercitatoriam iampridem a solo coeptam.

III. A verb or verbal phrase expressing the idea of constructing or of rebuilding and restoring, or again of dedication or of supervision :

aedificare, perficere, dare, de suo dare D · S · D, facere faciundum curare et probare, adornare or ornare, a solo facere A · S · F, sternere, ponere, reficere, restituere, reparare, reficiundum coerare, ad pristinam faciem reducere.

IV. Various phrases expressing : place, loco privato, accepto loco a re publica, loco dato publice decreto decurionum L · D · PVB · D · D ; time, see page 229 ; measure, (murum) pedes C C ; expense or means of providing for the same, de pecunia sua factum dedit D · P · S · F · D, pecunia publica P · P, sumptu proprio, parvo sumptu, amplius ex sestertium (tot) n(ilibus) n(ummum) de sua pecunia ; reasons for building the structure, ob honorem aedilitatis, ob honorem flaminis, quod eos e lege in ludis aut in monumentis consumere oportuit, ex pagi decreto, de decurionum sententia D · D · S, de senatus sententia D · S · S, de vici sententia faciundum curarunt idemque probarunt D · V · S · F · C · I · Q · P, senatus consulto S · C ; supervision of those in authority, curantibus aedilibus, curante ordine splendidissimo, curante et dedicante (illo), sub cura, per (illum).

The architect's name is given in rare instances.

When the structure is dedicated to some divinity, as with temples, the inscription is strictly dedicatory, and is introduced by the name of the divinity in the dative case. See tituli sacri.

These tituli operum publicorum also serve the purpose of honorary inscriptions, and assume the form of such, being introduced by the name of the person honored in the dative case, or by phrases expressing the idea of honorary dedication, thus explaining the motive for the construction of the building, e.g. in honorem domus divinae IN · H · D · D, pro salute imperatoris Caesaris PRO · SAL · IMP · CAES, pro magnificentia saeculi dominorum nostrorum Augustorum duorum—DD · NN · AVGG, aureo saeculo dominorum nostrorum trium—DDD · NNN.

Inscription on the Arch of Constantine, Rome. Date, 315 A.D.

Hübner's Exempla, No. 702. See page 168.

The various forms of tituli operum publicorum may be represented thus:

ille	in honorem illius ¹	pro salute Imp. Caes. ¹
curiam faciendam	ille	aedificium illud
de sua pecunia	aedificium vetustate corruptum	ille
coeravit	refecit	ob honorem illum
	dedicante illo	sua pecunia fecit
		idemque dedicavit
	aedificium illud ¹
	refectum (est)
	per illum
	cura illius

When the passive form is used the verb sum is understood, and agency is denoted by per with the accusative.

MILESTONES AND BOUNDARY STONES

Miliaria et Cippi Terminales

Of the inscriptions appearing on public works, those found on the cylindrical or cubical milestones (miliaria) of the Roman viae, and on the boundary stones (cippi terminales) of the agrimensores deserve special mention, inasmuch as they contain names of places, records of distances, measurements, and boundary lines, which are valuable in the study of the geography and topography of both Rome and of her provinces, in addition to the ordinary information of other tituli operum publicorum.

Miliaria

Miliaria of republican days, which are rare, compared with the great number belonging to the imperial period, regularly contain inscriptions which are of simple form, consisting of the name of the founder of the road and a number indicating distance.

The other and more famous miliarium Popilianum erected by the same man, P. Popilius Laenas, consul 622/132, is more than a mere milestone, and serves the purpose of an elogium.

C. I. L. I. 551 = X. 6950. Found near Polla, in Lucania, where Forum Popilii was situated.

Inscriptions on milestones vary greatly in form, but admit of the following classification:

I. The first class is marked by the nominative case of names and titles: in time of the Republic, of magistrates, and in the imperial period, of the emperors.

a. These, like ordinary tituli operum publicorum, may be followed by a verb indicating the making or restoring of the road (fecit, poni iussit, muniendam curavit, miliaria restituit), accompanied at times by an object (viam or iter), modified by some phrase referring to the previous condition of the road or the obstacles met in building.

Numerals denoting distances follow with or without M · P (milia passuum).

b. The names and titles in the nominative case may be followed simply by the numeral, with or without M · P, or also by the name of a legatus in the nominative case and a verb (e.g. fecit).

II. The second class is marked by the dative case of the name of the emperor or magistrate, and resembles honorary inscriptions.

This may be followed simply by the numeral, or also by the designation, in the nominative case, of the official or official body making the road or supervising the same, together with a verb; or the nominative case and the verb may be replaced by per and the accusative of the name, or by the ablative absolute.

III. The third class shows the name of the emperor in the ablative case, serving thus to indicate the date. Such inscriptions are common in Africa but rare elsewhere. The name in the ablative case may be followed simply by the numeral, with or without M · P, or again by the name, in the nominative case, of the official making the road or supervising the same, with a verb, or this may be replaced by the name of the official in the ablative case.

The numerals that accompany any of the above-mentioned classes appear as a rule at the close of the inscription with or without M · P. Inscriptions of certain roads of Italy and Sardinia show numbers at the beginning, while in others of Italy the numerals occur both at beginning and end, the former indicating the distance from a neighboring city, the latter denoting the distance from Rome. There may also appear a phrase indicating the starting point, i.e. the preposition a with the ablative of the name of the place, and to this may be added the designation of the limit of distance in the accusative case preceded by ad.

Boundary Stones

Boundary stones inscribed on the same general plan as the miliaria were used by the Romans to establish the dividing line between the ager publicus and ager privatus, to define the boundary between different communities, and to mark the course of the Tiber and the line of the Pomerium. Very old specimens of these cippi terminales remain to-day, the earliest of which, dating before the second Punic war, give the names of certain officials (quaesitores) and a portion of a decree setting apart certain lands as sacred. Others, indicating the portioning out of the public lands (ager publicus) by Gaius Gracchus, contain the names of the tresviri in the nominative case followed by such expressions as terminos restituendos ex s(enatus) c(onsulto), terminos finisque ex s(enatus) c(onsulto) statui iussit inter (illos) et (illos). In the imperial period the names of the emperors appear in the genitive case with iussu or ex auctoritate, followed by the names of the officials in the nominative case, and some phrase, as inter illos et illos terminavit. The passive form also occurs, fines positi inter (illos) et (illos) iussu, etc.

Although inscriptions relating to aqueducts appear regularly on the structures themselves, others are found on the boundary stones which separated the public land assigned for the aqueduct from private property.¹ Such cippi, separated from each other by intervals of 240 feet, were set up, where the space to be left unoccupied was set off from private property, by Augustus, Tiberius, and Claudius.

Cippi of a similar kind also defined the pratium of a legion as distinguished from the domain of municipalities. Terminus Augustalis dividit pratium leg. IIII et agrum Iuliobrig(ensem).

Termini inter Privatum et Publicum

These cippi indicate the transfer of private land to the public domain, and mark the boundary for the same. They contain the names of consuls, emperors, or curatores locorum publicorum, and the phrases redemptum a privato publicavit or ex privato in publicum restituerunt.

*Termini Pomerii*¹

The ideal boundary of the city, known as the Pomerium, was enlarged by the emperors Claudius and Vespasian. Inscriptions on the cippi that indicated this imaginary line gave the name of the emperor and his titles in the nominative case, followed by auctis populi Romani finibus pomerium ampliavit terminavitque. Under Hadrian the Pomerium was marked anew, and its limits were determined by the college of augurs. The inscription on one of these cippi shows collegium augurum — auctore imperatore Caesare — Hadriano terminos pomerii restituendos curavit.

*Termini Riparum Tiberis*²

These cippi determine the breadth and the direction of the banks of the river. Inscriptions of the republican period contain the names of consuls or censors in the nominative case, followed by ex s(enatus) c(onsulto) terminaverunt. In the imperial period the name of the emperor, accompanied by titles, becomes the subject of the verb. These inscriptions are accompanied by phrases expressing the distance to the next stone: r(ecto) r(igore) prox(imus) cipp(us) p(edes) XX, or r(ecto) r(igore) ex proximo cipp(o) ped(es) XLS.

At times the name of the emperor depends upon ex auctoritate, a phrase which first appears under Claudius, and is followed by the name of the curator alvei et riparum Tiberis in the nominative case, subject of the verb terminavit or restituit.

INSCRIPTIONS ON MOVABLE OBJECTS OF GENERAL USE

INSTRUMENTUM

Under the title instrumentum, or instrumentum domesticum, the Corpus Inscriptionum Latinarum presents generally at the close of each volume the inscriptions which appear on movable objects of a great variety and shape, belonging alike to public and private life. The most important of these may be classified as follows: I. Articles made of Metal—1) Weights and Measures, 2) Tesserae, 3) Armor and Missiles, 4) Lead Water Pipes, 5) Vessels and Articles of Bronze, Silver, and Gold, 6) Stamps. II. Products of Mines and Quarries. III. Tiles and Bricks. IV. Vessels of Clay.

WEIGHTS AND MEASURES

Pondera et Mensurae.

By far the largest number of weights and measures are simply marked with numbers and letters indicating their size and equivalents. Others are supplied with brief inscriptions, which refer to the authority giving them validity, e.g. ex auctoritate Iunii Rustici praefecti urbi. Others contain the date, standard of value, and the name of the place where the weights were tested. Thus the temple of Castor is shown by inscriptions to have been an office for the verification of weights and measures; cf. exactum ad Castoris. Weights were made of stone, lead, or bronze, and the inscriptions are either in relief, or cut into the surface, or inserted in the material with letters of gold or silver.¹

TESSERAE

The term tesserae, confined, when strictly used, to cubes of ivory or bone, is generally applicable to all such small articles of whatever shape or material which served among the Romans as tokens or vouchers. Among the various kinds of tesserae the following are of the greatest importance and interest.

Tesserae Frumentariae.

These were tokens distributed among the poorer people of Rome, by the surrender or exhibition of which they obtained corn. Very few of these remain, unless we may class with them the tesserae nummariae coins or counters of lead, of which fifty are in existence, according to Benndorf.¹ The types of the latter represent some attribute of Annona, e.g. the modius, or ears of corn. On some of these tesserae there are found inscriptions indicating the time and place of distribution.

Tesserae Theatrales.

Circular tesserae of ivory, bone, or lead, used as tickets of admission to the theatres, amphitheatres, or circus, have been preserved for us in considerable numbers. They contain inscriptions consisting of Greek names of divinities or poets, and two numbers, seldom exceeding XV, one in Latin and one in Greek, corresponding to each other, indicating the seat assigned in the cavea. There are also seen on these tesserae heads of divinities, representations of buildings, or other devices applicable to the character of the spectacle, e.g. the head of Apollo for ludi musici, of Castor for ludi equestres.² If two different numbers are given, the one denotes the cuneus, the other the gradus. Exact information of this character is given on tesserae, inscribed in Latin, which are, however, very rare.

Other tesserae theatrales, made of metal and similar to coin, contain on one face representations of the emperor, or some prominent member of the imperial family, and on the other a number rarely exceeding XVI. Sections of the cavea were named after members of the emperor's family, and ornamented with their busts or statues. The number on the tessera evidently indicated a seat in one of these sections.³

Tesserae Hospitales.

Among the Romans, as among the Greeks, much importance was attached to the tie which hospitality established between an entertainer and his guest. This relationship was emphasized and formally recognized by the interchange of tokens which certified to the existence of such a tie. We find references in Plautus to such *tesserae*¹ of hospitium privatum, but no known specimens are in existence to-day. A similar relationship, however, was often established between two communities, hospitium publicum, or between a community and a private person, as when a distinguished man became the patron of a city. Such compacts were recorded on tablets of bronze (*tabulae patronatus*²) arranged so as to be placed in public or in the atrium of a house. These, when in small form, were equivalent to tesserae hospitales, e.g. the *tessera Fundana*³ in the shape of a fish could be carried from place to place.

Tesserae Gladiatoriae.

The most interesting of the tesserae which have remained to us are those known as tesserae gladiatoriae (termed tesserae consulares, C. I. L. I., p. 195). These are oblong blocks of ivory or bone, provided with a handle or hole for suspension or carrying, and inscribed upon the four long faces. The brief inscription found thereon gives, first, the name of a person, generally of a slave or a freedman, in the nominative case; second, the name of his patron' or trainer in the genitive case; third, the abbreviation SP or SPE, or the word SPECTAVIT, and the date in days of the month; fourth, the names of the consuls of the year.

The uncertainty as to the exact use of these tesserae has made a satisfactory explanation of the abbreviation SP or SPE very difficult. It has generally been regarded as standing for spectatus, i.e. tested in public and approved because of victory, an explanation consistent with the inscription on the Tessera of Arles,

ANCHIAL · SIRT I · L · S

SPECTAT · NVM

MENSE FEBR

M · TVL · C · ANT · COS

C. I. L. XII. 5695.

as well as with the well-known line of Horace, Epistulae, I. 1. 2, spectatum satis et donatum rude. Other tesserae, however, have been discovered which contain the word spectavit, with which the ordinary explanation of SP or SPE = spectatus is inconsistent.¹

Mommsen² has interpreted SPECTAT · NVM of the Tessera of Arles as spectat(or) num(erator), claiming that the gladiator, having graduated from the arena to the cavea, has the privilege of viewing contests as an authorized critic, even though he himself must still participate in them.

Again, SP has been explained as sp(ectavit) (populus), and the date as denoting when the people first beheld the gladiator who is now no longer a tiro.³ Some have regarded spectavit as equivalent to spectatus est;⁴ he has made his spectatio, and hence is spectatus, i.e. an approved gladiator. It has also been said that from spectavit gladiatorem in the first sense and with emphasis on the second word arose the expression gladiator spectavit with the second meaning.

Tesserae Conviviales.

A few counters have been found which probably served as tickets of admission to important dinners and banquets. They are virtually tickets to meals such as were given by the emperor to the people, or by a collegium to its members, who were thus identified. They contain numbers which probably indicated the place reserved for the holder. We learn from the inscriptions¹ that at banquets tesserae were scrambled for, which served as vouchers for gifts of money and clothing. These were probably the same as sortes convivales or sparsiones.

ARMOR AND MISSILES

Scattered and rare specimens of Roman arms contain inscriptions which indicate the owner, and the legion and cohort to which he belonged. It is possible that from the time of Augustus it was required that the pieces of armor should thus be marked. Hübner, in support of this theory, cites the shield buckle found at the mouth of the Tyne, England,² which is ornamented with various designs and inscribed in litterae punctatae thus;

LEG · VIII · AVG and Ƀ · IVL · MAGNI · IVNI · DVBITATI

also the sword of Tiberius found at Mainz, now in the British Museum.³

Perhaps there should also be classed with these inscriptions those found on some leaden bullae, the purpose of which it is difficult to determine. They may have been a kind of tesserae carried upon the person after enrollment, and serving as a countersign. They have been found in considerable numbers in Great Britain.⁴

Lead Bullets (Glandes Plumbeae).

These lead sling-shots used by slingers (funditores) in the Roman army are oval in form with points at both ends. They have been found in large numbers, many of which are, however, undoubtedly spurious, inasmuch as it is known that they were extensively manufactured in more recent times for the purpose of deceiving scholars.¹ The Romans, imitating the Greeks in their use, imitated them also in placing upon them brief inscriptions.

Found near Corropoli, now in the museum at Ascoli (Asculum), Italy. It was used in the Marsic or Social war (90-88 B.C.).

Rali. — T. Laf(renius) pr(aetor). C. I. L. IX. 6086. 1.

The inscriptions of the greatest number of these glandes are in raised letters, evidently made in the clay mould which was marked when wet by a graphium or other sharp instrument.

Zangemeister, who has treated of these missiles very completely in Ephem. Ep., vol. VI., classifies the inscriptions found upon them as follows:

Names indicating the people or state making war, e.g. Rali.

- “ “ the official ordering their manufacture, e.g. L. Piso L.f. cos.
- “ “ the legion, e.g. Leg. XI.
- “ “ the funditores, e.g. Firmani.
- “ “ the maker, e.g. C. Fabricius fecit.

*Lead Water Pipes*¹ (Fistulae Plumbeae Aquariae).

Information obtained from inscriptions found on lead water pipes has been most useful in determining the location and ownership of buildings, and in bringing to light many details bearing upon the water service in Rome. The method of making these inscriptions was to cut raised letters on wooden stamps and to press these into the sand or clay of the mould, which in this case was a flat surface upon which the lead plates out of which the pipes were made were cast. The inscription thus produced would be in raised letters. These inscriptions range in date from the time of Augustus to the close of the third century. The earliest show merely the names of the emperors, while those of the second century regularly contain the name of the emperor, the name of a procurator, or of other officials such as tribuni aquarum, the name of the officinator (either in the nominative or in the genitive with ex officina), under whose general direction the pipe was made, or the name of the slave, who has made the pipe, in the nominative case followed by fecit. Water pipes of the municipal towns give the name of the municipality and the name of the public slave (plumbarius or fistulator) who had looked after the manufacture of the pipe. In particular cases the names of the owners of the houses to which the water was conducted are given, and in others the capacity of the pipe is indicated.

Vessels and Articles of Bronze, Silver, and Gold.

This class includes inscriptions on bronze vases of different sizes and kinds, on cups and bowls, on mirrors, on strigils, on articles of jewelry such as fibulae and rings. The inscriptions which have been either engraved, scratched, or stamped upon the surface vary somewhat with the character of the article, but the elements most commonly found are the names of the owner or maker, sentences of dedication to a divinity, or of presentation to some individual, or, again, exclamatory phrases expressing a wish.

Inscriptions on metal utensils of ordinary use are very well illustrated by that on the bronze patera shown on page 57. Of other articles containing inscriptions the following are of special interest:

1. The toilet cases and mirrors of Praeneste, which are ornamented with drawings illustrative of Greek myths, to which are attached the names of divinities or heroes. Only two or three of these contain the name of the maker or owner. The most famous is the Cista Ficoroniana, which contains the well-known inscription:

DINDIA · MACOYNIA · FIVEAI · DEDIT
NOVIOS · PLAUTIOS · MED · ROMAI · FECID

C. I. L. XIV. 4112.

2. The four silver goblets¹ found at the Aquae Apollinares, the warm springs of Vicarello. These contain an itinerary from Gades to Rome, and were probably used by travelers visiting the springs. Of a similar character, but more brief, is the itinerarium inscribed on a bronze vase² which was found in England, where it is still preserved in Alnwick Castle.

Jewelry.

Some of the articles of jewelry which have been preserved contain brief inscriptions giving either the name of the owner, the weight, or phrases addressed to the owner. Cagnat refers to a bracelet of gold containing the inscription Corelia Ny(m)p(h)e ; aurum(m), *p(ondo) XX.*¹, also to a fibula of silver with the words utere felix,² and to a fibula of gold with the words constanti vivas.

The gold fibula from Praeneste contains probably the oldest Latin inscription extant, written in retrograde order.

Fibula Praenestina.

Manios med fhefhaked Numasioi. C. I. L. XIV. 4123.

The retrograde order, the fh for f, the form fhefhaked for fecit, and the dative Numasioi for Numerio indicate that this is a very early inscription.³

Rings, as well as the gems which they held, were often inscribed with names in the genitive or nominative case, or with initials of the owner's name, or, in very rare instances, the name of the maker. Some contain exclamatory phrases of a benevolent or erotic nature.

Thus in a ring found at Este (Ateste), the inscription on the stone, existing now in a copy, was

1. Inscriptiones Marmorum Massis Incisae.

Inscriptions of considerable value have been found on blocks of marble which have been discovered in the quarries,¹ and at the Emporium in Rome, where they have been landed, but not used. Such inscriptions were made for business purposes, so that no mistake or fraud might take place in the transportation or setting up of the stone.² These inscriptions contain the following elements:

1. Numerals indicating the number of the block taken from the quarry, e.g. loco CXLVI, or the number shipped to Rome, e.g. N · LXV, reckoned from the beginning of the year.

2. The name of the quarry or the section of the quarry from which the stone was taken, off(icina) Pa(piri) n. LXXXVI; locus n. II.

3. The names of the consuls indicating the year in which the stone was quarried.

4. The names of officials, e.g. procuratores montium, acting as superintendents, and others; also names of slaves having the charge of quarries.

5. The names, in the genitive case, of the emperors, placed either at the beginning or end of the inscription, indicating the imperial ownership of the quarries.

2. Massae Argenti, Aeris, Plumbi.

Of a similar character to those just mentioned are the inscriptions stamped or cast upon pigs of silver, bronze, and lead. Some contain the name of the emperor in the genitive or ablative case, also the place from which they were obtained, e.g. Britan(nicis metallis); Britannicum, and more exactly the name of the people, e.g. de Ceangi(s); met(allorum) Lut(udensium?).

The expression ex argento, which appears on some pigs of lead, refers to the refining of the silver out of the lead.¹ Metal ingots containing inscriptions have been found in England,² Spain,³ Italy,⁴ Sardinia.⁴

BRICKS AND TILES⁵ (Lateres et Tegulae)

An abundant source of historical, geographical, and archeological knowledge has been found in the stamps (sigilla) which appear on bricks and tiles discovered in Rome, Italy, and the provinces, which were the product of the brick-kilns and potteries (figlinae) belonging to the emperor or members of his family, or to municipalities, or, finally, to private persons.

I. Stamped bricks, which can safely be assigned to the republican period, have not been found in Rome, but they have been discovered in Italy, at Veleia, dating before the middle of the first century B.C. These are given in C. I. L. I. 777 ff. They are dated, i.e. they contain the names of consuls, and show as well the name of the potter (figulus).

II. Lateres of the imperial period, found at Rome, are of great number and importance. They are fully described by H. Dressel in C. I. L. XV.

Stamps on bricks of the first three centuries of the Empire appear in several forms, being either rectangular, semicircular, round, or crescent shape, but with the greatest frequency in a form between the full circle and the crescent, made by cutting a very small circle out of a larger one.

Of these the rectangular stamps, with inscription in one line, and in large letters, may belong to the last century of the Republic, or, ornamental. At times the names of the owners of the estates or kilns were thus portrayed, as, for example, a wolf is represented on the bricks from the kiln of M. Rutilius Lupus, a corona on those of C. Julius Stephanus.

The inscriptions of the first century were brief, consisting frequently of only the name of the owner of the estate or pottery, or the name of the superintendent or potter, and rarely the name of the kiln or pottery (figlina). After the beginning of the second century such formulæ as opus doliare (illius) and names of the estates or of the figlinae, also names of the consuls, are more commonly given.

One or more of the following elements may appear in these inscriptions:

1. The name of the owner of the estate whence the clay was obtained, or where the pottery was situated, or of the pottery itself.

Asini Pollionis (first century); Ex praedis L. Mummi Rufi (after first century).

2. The name of the superintendent (officinator).

C. Cosconi (first century); Opus doliare L. Bruttidi Augustalis or L. Bruttidius Augustalis fecit.

The name of the owner and that of the officinator or figulus (servus domini) may appear together thus: Felcis Domiti Afri(servi) or Tegula C. Cosconi fig(uli) Asini Pollionis (first century).

Ex praedis Q. Servili Pudentis, sub cura Hedy(nis) servi, 133 A.D.

Opus doliare Aristi Thalli, ex praedis Plaetori Nepotis, 123 A.D.

Opus doliare Statiae Primillae, ex figlinis Domitiae Lucillae.

3. The name of the pottery, or brick kiln, or estate, as in the following:

Amoeni duorum Domitiorum Lucani et Tulli, ex figlinis Caninianis (first century).

Ex figlinis Caepionianis Plotiae Isauricae, fornace Peculiaris servi (after first century).

4. The names of the consuls, an element which does not appear on bricks from the City or Latium before 110 A.D., nor after 164 A.D.

5. Exclamatory expressions such as valeat qui fecit, particularly on bricks from the potteries of the gens Domitia.

Inscriptions of the first three centuries A.D. differ, in general, very slightly, although the name of the figlinae rarely appears in those of earlier date, and mention of the negotiator is not given until the close of the second century.

The following abbreviations are common in these inscriptions:

Opus doliare = O, OP · D, DO, DOL, DOLI, DOLIAR.

Opus figlinum (rare) = O · FG, FGL.

Ex or de Praedis = EX or DE · P, PR, PRAE or PRE, PRO, PRAED.

Ex or de figlinis = EX or DE · F, FI, FIG, FIGVL, FGL, FIGL, FIGLIN, FIGLINI.

Ex officina = EX · OF, OFIC.

III. There should also be mentioned here the bricks marked by legionary soldiers made to be used in building their quarters. These contain the name of the cohort, legion, or army.

*Vessels of Clay*¹ (Dolia, Amphorae, Lucernae).

A large portion of the section in C. I. L. entitled Instrumentum is assigned to inscriptions which appear on vessels made of clay, the product of Roman potteries. These vary from the large, sometimes huge, dolia and medium sized amphorae to the small patellae and pelvies of household use. With these are to be classed also the lamps (lucernae), which are made of like material and by similar methods. The inscriptions which appear on these vessels consist mainly of names denoting the maker, merchant, or owner, in the nominative or genitive case. In some cases the verb fecit, FEC, FE, F, is found. The words manu, MAN, MA, M, officina, OF, OFF, or figlina, FIGVL, FIG, may precede or follow the name in the genitive case of the maker or merchant. These trademarks were made by pressing a stamp upon the clay of the vessel or upon that of the mould, producing letters below the surface (cavae) or in relief (prominentes). The location of the inscription on the vessel was either the neck or handle, sometimes the bowl or inner flanges of wide-open vases, but most frequently, and regularly so in the lucernae, upon the base.

The inscriptions which appear in relief involved with ornamentation were most commonly made in the mould. They show a variety of statements appropriate to the device of the ornamentation, sometimes of a dedicatory character, or, again, giving expression to good wishes.

Other methods of marking these clay vessels were employed, particularly in inscribing the terra and amphorae of Pompeii and Herculaneum. Letters were cut in the clay before or after baking by means of a stylus, or painted in black, red, or white color, or marked by clayen. These inscriptions give the name of the maker or merchant in the nominative or genitive case, also the contents and measure of the vessel, etc. On the wine jars there were found the name of the wine, the names of the consuls of the year in which the wine was made, also the name of the maker or merchant.¹ Exclamatory expressions are also found; vivas, valeas, semper gaude, exultas, bene vivas valeas a vis.

C. I. L. I. 632. Inscribed on an altar found on the Palatine hill. This may be C. Sextius Calvinus, opponent of Glaucia, praetor 654/100, but with more probability his son, of the time of Sulla. The altar may have belonged to the temple at the foot of the Palatine, near the temple of Vesta, built in honor of the voice of the god heard by Aius Locutius, who announced the coming of the Gauls (Livy, V. 50).

- C. I. L. VI. 10230. Inscribed in letters of the best period on a large marble slab found at Rome, where it still exists in the Palace of the Rondinini. Mommsen places this inscription in the Augustan age, not later, because of the orthography of quom, meriteis, arduom, not earlier, because of the use of apices, which not only mark the long vowels, but, placed between the letters, serve as punctuation marks. ¹ Mommsen's comment is "Haec quo pertineant, parum perspicitur, nisi quod, cum tempore praesenti scriptor utatur, agi videtur non de matris, sed de suo facto aliquo; puta libertis maternis quiddam eum erogasse, quod ipsorum contributionibus ut augeatur desideret." ² Rather eaque — adhibita et fide — facta. Mommsen understands thus, cum in consilium adhibuisset memoriam patris et fidem suam. ³ Supply intellegitur. ⁴ Mommsen suggests virtutis laboris sapientiae periculorum (id est periculorum, quibus virtutem laborem sapientiam comprobavit) praecipuam aut certe nulli secundam memoriam sibi parans.

- C. I. L. I. 29, 30 = VI. 1284-5. See page 232. Inscribed on a sarcophagus of peperino found at Rome in 1780, outside of the Porta Capena, on the Via Appia, now in the Vatican Museum. The name of the dead (a) is painted in red coloring (minium) on the lid, while the carmen (b) is cut on the main part of the sarcophagus. L. Cornelius Cn. f. Scipio was consul 456/298, censor 464/290. Ritschl, Opusc. IV, p. 222, has shown that the carmen (b) is more recent than (a), and the inscription of the son, No. 60. The date is not later than 234 B.C. Another inscription which preceded this carmen has been almost entirely erased, only C]eso[r remaining. The metre is Saturnian, with verses marked by transverse lines cut in the stone. ¹ Samnio, ablative, according to Lachmann, Mommsen and Wilmanns, but see other ablative in d; or accusative, according to Ritschl, but note other endings in us. Loucanam, sc. terram. C. I. L. I. 32 = VI. 1287. See page 236. Inscribed on a slab of peperino, broken on the right side, found at Rome in 1614, now in the Barberini Palace. L. Cornelius L. Barbati f. consul 495/259, censor 496/258, took Corsica, destroyed Aleria, and triumphed over the Sardinians, Corsicans, Phoenicians (Zonar. VIII. 11; Flor. I. 18, 16). ¹ Romae (Sirmond), Romai (Ritschl); Romani (Grotefend), Romane (Mommsen). ² Ritschl, metri gratia, supplies viroro(m) after viro. ³ Wölfflin reads filium for filios. ⁴ Ritschl adds pugnandod. Wölfflin (Revue de Philol. 1890) considers no addition necessary. ⁵ Grotefend adds lubenter, Ritschl reads meretod votam, Wölfflin objects to any addition. Ovid, Fasti, VI. 193, relates that a temple of the Tempestates was dedicated by a Scipio.

C. I. L. I. 33 = VI. 1288. See page 240. Inscribed on the front of a sarcophagus of peperino found in 1780, now in the Vatican Museum. P. Cornelius P. f. Scipio, flamen Dialis, who died when a young man, has not been identified with certainty. He is believed by some to have been the son of Africanus Maior, adoptive father of Africanus Minor, who is referred to in Cic. Cato Maior, 2, 53; De Off. I. 33, 121; Brut. 19, 77. Vell. I. 10. ¹ insigne is neuter. ² Join tua omnia. ³ Cf. the Greek γαῖα κόλπους ἐδεξάτο, Cic. De Legg. II. 63. Mommsen places the close of his life between 550/204 and 590/154. The double consonants in essent and terra, point to the latter part of sixth century A.U.C., although note gesistei, superases, licuisset.

 Laetentur; stirpem nobilitavit honor.

C. I. L. I. 38 = VI. 1295. Inscribed on three tablets of peperino found at Rome in 1782. The first of these is now lost; the others are in the Vatican Museum. Cn. Cornelius Scipio Hispanus, son of Cn. Cornelius Scipio Hispallus, cos. 578/176, was sent in 605/139 to receive the arms from the Carthaginians (Appian. Lib. 80), became praetor in 615/139 (Val. Max. I. 3. 3, where he is styled Hispallus). ¹ On the stone after progeniem there is a line which Mommsen joined with the preceding letter and read progenie mi = progeniem mihi. Ritschl gives the above reading, Opusc. IV., p. 539.

64. L. Cornelius Cn. f. Cn. n. Scipio
 Magna sapientia | multasque virtutes

Aetate quom parva | posidet hoc saxsum.

 Is hic situs quei nunquam | victus est virtutei.
 Annos gnatus XX is | d[iv]eis² m[an]datus
 Ne quairatis honore³ | quei minus sit mand[at]u[s].

C. I. L. I. 34, VI. 1289. See page 235. Inscribed on a tablet of peperino from a sarcophagus found at Rome, now in the Vatican Museum. Visconti, Mommsen, and Ritschl have conjectured that this Scipio was the grandson of Calvus, consul, 532/222 (Livy, XXI. 32), son of Hispallus, who died in the consulship 578/176 (Livy, XLI. 20), and the younger brother of Cn. Cornelius Scipio Hispanus (No. 63). ¹ honore, accusative according to Lachmann, Ritschl, Buecheler; dative according to others. ² Mommsen reads loceis = sepulcro, Ritschl, Diteist, Lachmann leto est. ³ Visconti interprets honorem quem non acceperit; Ritschl, cur minus honore sit mandatus. Lachmann (Lucr., p. 245) expresses it thus, honore quei minus sit mactus, on the ground that the stone cutter has repeated mandatus instead of inscribing mactus.

C. I. L. I. 1007 = VI. 15346. Found at Rome, existing in copy. This carmen belongs probably to the Gracchan period. ¹ The writer has avoided altrum. Buecheler's (Anthologia Latina, Car. XXXI mensib. XI diebus XVIII. — written below, ipsius pater miserrimus. The inscription dates no earlier than the time of Hadrian. ¹ Others read iuvenis and interis-sent. ² The last line is iambic trimeter. Buecheler suggests that lacrimam adsperge would make a choliambus.

C. I. L. I² xxiv., xxv., xxvi.; d, vol. VI. 1303. Inscribed on blocks of travertine found in the Forum Romanum in 1546, but destroyed in the latter part of the sixteenth century, hence existing only in a copy. These inscriptions adorned the Arch of Fabius built by Q. Fabius Maximus Allobrogicus, consul 633/121, and restored by Q. Fabius Maximus, curule aedile about 698/56. This restitution is referred to by Cicero in Oratio in Vatinius 11. 28: Nihil Maximus fecit alienum aut sua virtute aut illis clarissimis Paullis, Maximis, Africanis, quorum gloriam huius virtute renovatum non modo speramus, verum etiam iam videmus. Paullus, cos. 572/182 and 586/178, was the father of Q. Fabius Maximus Aemilianus, cos. 609/135, and ancestor of Maximus, who restored the arch. From his being saluted imperator three times, three triumphs are wrongly assigned to him instead of two, as here and in Velleius I. 9. Scipio Africanus Minor, cos. 607/147 and 620/134, was the son of Paullus, and brother of Fabius Maximus Aemilianus.

Att.* 2, 7, 4); interrex 699/55, 701/53, 702/52; censor 699/55-700/54. On the same stone appears M. n. | . . . inus, referring probably to his son, M. C. I. L. I.² XXIX. Inscribed on a marble tablet found at Rome, existing in a copy. The following remnant of another inscription given with the above may perhaps be assigned to C. Iulius Caesar, father of the Dictator, Caesar | i | ic. q. pr. | cos. in Asia. C. Octavius, father of Augustus, was praetor in 693/61; then obtained Macedonia as his province. On his return from his province he died (Suet. Aug. 4). This and the two following inscriptions Momm- sen believes to have belonged to a sacrarium of the domus Augustae, where the imagines of the imperial and allied families were exhibited.

6. C. Iulius I. f. Caesar | Strabo, | aed. cur., tr. mil. bis, X vir agr. dand. adtr. iud., pontif.

C. I. L. I.² XXVII. Found at Rome, where it is said by writers of the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries to have been inscribed on a wall near the Forum Augusti, existing in copy. Strabo was curule aedile in 664/90. He is often mentioned by Cicero. Cf. Teuffel-Schwabe-Warr, Hist. of Roman Literature, 153, 3.

7. M. Livius M. f. C. n. Drusus pontifex, tr. mil., X vir stlit. iudic., tr. pl., X vir a. d. a. lege sua et eodem anno V vir a. d. a. lege Saufe[i]a, in magistratu occisus est.

C. I. L. I.² XXX. Found at Rome, existing in a copy of the sixteenth century. This refers to the famous tribune of the plebs of 663/91, in regard to whose laws see Liv. Ep. 71; Appian, B. C. I. 35; De Viris Illustribus, c. 66.

C. I. L. I.² X = XI. 1827. Inscribed on a small marble base found at Arezzo (Arretium), now in the museum at Florence. Fragments containing a few letters of the original of the above inscription were found in the Forum Augusti at Rome in 1889. They are —a oppi—, —m et Tus—, —ri cu—, —t aq—, —ae fe—. Cf. Lanciani, Bull. Comun. 1889, p. 77. Appius Claudius was censor in 442/312 and consul 417/307 and 458/296. Cf. Livy, X. 22; Cic. Brut. 14, 55.

C. I. L. I.,² p. 195, and XI. 1831. This inscription, found at Arezzo (Arretium), exists in a copy made in the fourteenth century. Part of the original inscription which once stood in the forum Augusti at Rome exists on small fragments of marble, one of which was found in the fifteenth century and is now at Naples (VI. 1315), the others were discovered in 1876 in the Villa Aldobrandini (Ephem. Ep. IV. 1817). The portions of the inscription which appear on the fragments found at Rome are indicated by the lines. The readings of the copy from Arretium differ from those given above, as follows: ¹ aug., ² tr. militum., ³ Iugurta, ⁴ Numidiae, ⁵ cos., ⁶ absens, ⁷ fudit, ⁸ iis, ⁹ pub., ¹⁰ qui. C. Marius was consul seven times, 647/107; 650/104-654/100; 668/86, praetor 639/115 (Cic. De Off. 3, 20, 19), tribunus plebis 635/119 (Plutarch, Mar. 4), tribunus militum a populo (Sall. Jug. 63), augur (Cic. Ad Brut. 1, 5, 3). For the vestis triumphalis cf. Liv. Ep. 67, Marius triumphali veste in senatum venit, quod nemo ante eum fecerat; Plut. Mar. 12.

OTHER ELOGIA OF EARLY ROMANS

11. Fert. Erresius,¹ | rex Aequicolus. | Is preimus | ius fetiale
 paravit; | inde p. R. | disciplineinam excepit.

C. I. L. I.,² p. 202. Inscribed in letters of the first century on a little column of peperino found on the Palatine, now in the Baths of Diocletian. This is an inscription of the imperial period affecting archaic forms. ¹ Mommsen believes that Fertor Resius was intended. He is mentioned as the inventor of the ius fetiale in De Viris Illustribus 5, and in De Praenominibus, § 1.

12. Lavinia Latini | filia

C. I. L. I.,² p. 189 = XIV. 2067, 2068. Inscribed on two pedestals, dating probably in the second century A.D., found at Pratica, ancient Lavinium.

C. I. L. I.,² p. 189 = X. 809. Inscribed on a pedestal found at Pompeii, now in the public museum at Naples. ¹ Livy, IV. 19. Propert. V. 10. Festus under opima, p. 186. Val. Max. III. 2, 3.
14. Quintus Hortensius.
C. I. L. I.,² p. 202 = VI. 1309. Inscribed on a small pedestal now in the Villa Albani. This inscription belongs to the first century A.D., or perhaps dates somewhat earlier. The praenomen written in full points to a Greek workman.
15. M. Cicero, an. LXIII.
C. I. L. I.,² p. 202 = VI. 1325. Inscribed under a marble bust which is preserved at Madrid, Spain. See Bernoulli, Röm. Ikonographie, I., p. 135. This inscription dates about the time of Cicero, who was born Jan. 3, 648/106, and died Dec. 7, 711/43.

C. I. L. VI. 1377. Found at Rome in the Forum of Trajan, existing only in copy. Claudius Fronto, according to Lucian, was mentioned in some history of the Parthian war of L. Verus. Another inscription found in Dacia, referring to him, is given in C. I. L. III. 1457. ¹ He was consul suffectus in 166, or somewhat earlier. ² There appears to be some confusion and discrepancy here. Mommsen has suggested as the reading on the stone, leg. Aug. pr. pr. provinciarum Daciarum trium, prov. Daciae Maluensis, prov. Daciae Porolissensis, prov. Daciae Apulesis. For this triple division of the province of Dacia see Marquardt, Staatsv. I.,²
p. 309. ³ He appears to have been legatus of Dacia and Moesia Superior in 169 and 170. ⁴ The number of the dona militaria indicates that Fronto was consularis when he received them. ⁵ See Mom. Staatsr.
II.,³ p. 850, note 3. ⁶ This legatio was assigned extra ordinem. See Mom. Staatsr. II.,³ p. 853. ⁷ Anthemusia is a district of Mesopotamia.
⁸ Borghesi declares that Fronto did not die before 170, but was killed in battle while he was in charge of the provinces of Dacia and Moesia.

C. I. L. VI. 1710. Inscribed on a marble tablet found at Rome, now in the museum of Naples. ¹ v(iri) c(larissimi). ² 395-408. In elogia and honorary inscriptions of the later period there frequently appears above the inscriptions, or in some prominent position on the pedestal, the name of the person to whom the inscription refers. This may be simply a cognomen, or more rarely the fuller form of the name as here, and may be in the genitive or dative case, so here the first words are separate from the remainder of the inscription. The cognomen, if thus placed aside, is repeated in some cases or omitted in the repetition of the name which follows.

TITULI HONORARII

18. Italicei | L. Cornelium Sc[ip]i[one]m | honoris caussa.

C. I. L. X. 7459. Found near Castel Tusa in the ruins of old Halaesa, existing in a copy. Mommsen believes this is L. Cornelius Scipio, afterwards termed Asiagenus, who was praetor in Sicily in 561/193. Livy, XXXIV. 64, 55; Cic. De Orat. II. 69, 280. This is then the oldest honorary inscription attached to a statue. It is in the Greek form. See page 243.

19. L. Manlius L. f. | Acidinus¹ triu. vir² | Aquileiae coloniae | deducundae.

C. I. L. I. 538 = V. 873. Inscribed on a pedestal found at Padua, whither it had been carried from Aquileia, existing in two parts, of which the upper is now in the museum at Cattajo, near Padua, the lower at Vicenza. ¹ The name appears in the Fasti, L. Manlius L. f. Acidinus Fulvianus (cos. 575/179). ² In the year 573/181, together with P. Cornelius Scipio Nasica and C. Flaminius (Livy, XL. 34, cf. XXXIX. 55). The inscription probably dates not long after the founding of the colony, judging from the form of the name and the nom. case of the name of the one honored.

20. C. Iulius Caesar pontif.

C. I. L. V. 4305. Inscribed on the epistylum of a column found at Brescia (Brixia), where it still exists, though broken into five pieces. As there is no trace of the abbreviation Maz., Mommsen believes that Augustus is here referred to, and that the inscription, dating 710/44, was made immediately after his adoption by the dictator, for he was appointed pontifex in 706/48, after the battle of Pharsalia.

21. L. Cornelio L. f. | Sullae Felici | dictatori, | vicus laci Fund.¹
C. I. L. I. 584 = VI. 1297. Inscribed on a pedestal of travertine found at Rome on the Quirinal Hill, now in the museum at Naples. Coins and various writers inform us that an equestrian statue was erected in front of the rostra to Sulla the dictator in 674/80 or 675/79. Appian, B. C. I. 97; Cic. Phil. IX. 6. 13; Vell. II. 61; Suet. Caes. 75. ¹*vicus laci Fund(anii)*. Another inscription (Henzen, 7272) refers to this lacus, M. Claudius Priscus redemptor a laco Fundani.
22. Cn. Pompeio Cn. f. | Magno | imper. iter.
C. I. L. XI. 2104. Inscribed on a pedestal of travertine found at Chiusi (Clusium), where it exists to-day in the museum.
23. M. Acilio M. f. Canino | q. urb. | negotiatores ex area | Saturni.
C. I. L. XIV. 153. Inscribed on a marble pedestal found at Ostia, now in the Vatican Museum. Mommsen has set the date as earlier than 726/28, in which year the cura aerarii Saturni was taken away from the quaestors.
24. P. Silio leg. pro | pr. patrono, | colonei.
C. I. L. II. 3414. Found at Carthagenae, Spain, where it is still preserved in the public buildings. The reference is to P. Silius Nerva, consul 734/20. Cf. Velleius, II. 90. The brevity of the inscription, leg. pro pr., standing for leg. Aug. pro pr., the form of the letters, and the mention of the coloni, point to a date near that of his consulship.
25. L. Poplilio C. f. | Flacco | poplice statuta.
C. I. L. X. 5845. Found at Ferentino (Ferentinum), where it still exists.
26. C. Annio L. f. | Quir. Flavo, | Iuliobrigens. | ex gente Canta|brorum |

C. I. L. V. 4332. Found at Brescia (Brixia), existing now in copy. Cf. also V. 4333, an inscription of the father of Arunculeius. ¹ The nom. case is Gabo. Wilmanns reads P. Acilio.

29. C. Vallio | Maximiano | proc. provinciar. | Macedoniae Lusi|taniae Mauretan. | Tingitanae, fortis|simo duci, | res p. C. I. L. II. 1120. Inscribed on a marble pedestal found at Sevilla (Hispalis), Spain, where it is preserved in the museum. Hübner believes Maximianus to have been procurator of Marcus and Verus, and refers to the words of Capitolinus in Vita Marci, c. 21, cum Mauri Hispanias prope omnes vastarent res per legatos bene gestae sunt. Wilmanns, because of the form kal, which dates from the time of Commodus, also because of e. v., which occurs in another inscription of the same man (II. 1015), and dates after the time of the Antonines, places the inscription in the reign of Severus and Caracalla.

C. I. L. VI. 1798. Inscribed on a marble pedestal found at Rome, where it still exists. ¹ For this form of inscription, which dates from the third century, and is common after time of Diocletian, see page 305, note. ² praefectus urbi in 229 A.D. ³ The year 246 is referred to.

22. *singularis integritatis et bonitatis eximiae*¹ M. Aur. Consio Quarto Juniori c. v. correctori Flaminie et Piceni,² pontifici maiori, promagistro iterum,³ duodecim viro; Anconitani et Fanestres clientes patrono.

C. I. L. VI. 1799. Inscribed on a pedestal found at Rome, now in the Capitoline Museum. ¹ From the latter part of the third century laudatory words were often placed before the name of the one honored. ² Correctores Flaminiae et Piceni as virī clarissimi are found from 313 to about 350; afterwards they are termed consulares. The inscription, therefore, belongs to the former period. ³ promagister pontificum; from the time of Aurelian they are termed pontifices maiores or Vestae.

C. I. L. VI. 1314. Found in the fifteenth century, in the building known as the Tabularium, on the Capitoline Hill. It is now lost. Lanciani (Bull. Arch. Mun. III., p. 165) suggests that the substructio was the great platform of the Temple of Jupiter Capitolinus, which temple Lutatius Catulus, cos. 676/78, dedicated. Tac. Hist. III. 72. C. I. L. X. 5807. Found at Alatri (Aletrium), Italy, where it exists to-day. The inscription dates before the passage of the Lex Julia de Civitate of 664/90, since, if citizenship had been received, the local senate could not have granted immunity from military service to their fellow-citizen. The doubling of the vowels gives another date, see p. 30. ¹ Ritschl suggests ad que (= et ad arduum — in arcem) for this word which is not understood. ² This word is due to his having held the censorship twice.

These inscriptions are engraved on the old Pons Fabricius, known in middle ages as Pons Iudaeus, and to-day as Ponte dei Quattro Capi, which crosses from the Island to the left bank of the Tiber. It was built by L. Fabricius in 692/62 B.C. and consists of two semicircular arches with a smaller archway over the central pier for high water. It is built of peperino and tufa with facings of large blocks of travertine.

Inscription a appears across two arches on each side. Inscription b is engraved over the middle arch on both sides. Inscription c is illegible now, but was engraved under a on one of the arches on each side. It is given in a copy by Ligorio. ¹ The bridge was rebuilt in 733/21.

C. I. L. I. 535-536. Three milestones of the Via Aemilia were found near Bologna (Bononia), where they are still preserved in the museum of the University. These cippi (a and b) once stood on the Via Aemilia separated from each other by a distance of 18 miles. The numerals cut on the sides at a later period indicate distances on another road where these stones were afterwards set up. ¹ 567/187. Mommsen doubts whether these miliaria are of the age indicated, since the letter P is closed; Aemilius is for the earlier Aemilio, cos is for consol, and finally a cognomen is added; the form of the cippi does not conform to that of other miliaria of the sixth century of the City. See Miliarium Popilianum, p. 251. ² The number of miles from Rome; later the miles were counted from Ariminum.

C. I. L. I. 552, X. 3861. A cippus found at Formia (Formiae), above Capua, now in Museum of Naples. This boundary stone was set up after the death of Ti. Gracchus, 621/133, who had appointed himself,

dius at their death, in 624/130, to which year this inscription may belong. It is possible to assign it to the year 625/129, when jurisdiction as regards the land was taken away from these triumviri, and they ceased to be termed ab agris iudicandis. An inscription found on the

C. I. L. I. 583. Found between Pesaro (Pisaurum) and Fano (Fanum), Umbria. Borghesi VII., p. 350-51, places this inscription between the praetorship of M. Terentius Varro Lucullus in the year 678/76 and his consulship in the year 681/73, when he was in Gallia Cisalpina as pro-praetore. Mommsen assigns it to the year 672/82 or 673/81, when, as an adherent of Sulla, Varro was in charge of the army in Gallia Cisalpina.

BOUNDARY STONES OF AQUEDUCTS

60. Virg.¹ | Ti. Caesar. Aug. | pontif. maxim., | trib. pot. XXXVIII, | cos. V, imp. VIII.² | IIII. | p. CCXL.³

C. I. L. VI. 1253 b. Inscribed on a cippus of Alban stone found at Rome, now in the Vatican Museum. ¹ Virg(o Aqua). ² 36-37 A.D. ³ This is the fourth stone from the place of the distribution of the water, and between the several stones the intervals are 240 feet in length.

61. Iul. Tep. Mar.¹ | imp. Caesar | divi f. | Augustus | ex s. c. | XXX. | p. CCXL.

C. I. L. VI. 1249 c. Inscribed on a cippus of travertine found at Rome, existing now in copy only. ¹ Iul(ia) Tep(ula) Mar(cia).

62. imp. Caes[ar] divi f. | Augustus | ex s. c. | ∞CII p. CCXXI.

C. I. L. VI. 1251 a. Inscribed on a large cippus of travertine, now at Tivoli (Tibur).

63. iussu imp. Caesaris | Augusti circa eum | rivom qui aquae | ducendae causa | factus est octonos | ped. ager dextra | sinistraq. vacuus | relictus est.

C. I. L. X. 4843. Inscribed on several cippi which were found near the aqueduct of Venafrum, traces of which still remain, extending over a distance of 14 miles from Venafrum to the source of the Volturnus. These inscriptions exist in copies.

64. iussu imp. Caesaris | qua aratrum ductum | est.

C. I. L. X. 3825. An inscription on several large cippi found at Capua, one of which is to be seen in the museum at Naples. These boundary stones mark the pomerium of a colony, cf. Lex Coloniae Genetivae, c. 73: ne quis intra fines oppidi colon(iae)ve, qua aratro circumductum erit, hominem mortuom inferto. Cf. Cic. Phil. II. 40, 102.

a privatis | possessa T. Suedius Clemens | tribunus, causis
cognitis et | mensuris factis, rei | publicae Pompeianorum | restituit.

C. I. L. X. 1018. Inscribed on a cippus found at Pompeii, now in the museum at Naples. T. Suedius Clemens in Tac. Hist. I. 87 and II. 12 is called a primipilaris and in an Egyptian inscription of 79 A.D. is spoken of as praefectus castrorum.

66. fin[i]s inter Neditas et Corinienses directus, mensuris actis iussu

Liberalem \oslash eiusdem leg. astatum | posteriorem chor. $\bar{\text{I}}$.

C. I. L. III. 2883. Found at Karin (Corinium) in Dalmatia, existing in a copy. ¹ Mommsen reads here M. Ducenti Gemini, believing that he is the legatus referred to. Tacitus refers to him as of consular rank in 62 A.D. (Ann. XV. 18), and as prefect of the city in 69 A.D. (Hist. I. 14).

C. I. L. VIII. 8369. Inscribed on a large stone found at Djidjelli (Igilgili), in Africa, where it still exists. ¹ Zimiz(es). ² p(assus quingentos).

68. ter. Augu|st.¹ dividit | prat.² leg. | IIII et agr|um Iulio|brig.

C. I. L. II. 2916. Inscribed on several cippi found near Retortillo, in the northern part of Spain. ¹ ter(minus) August(alis). ² prat(um). According to Hübner this is legio quarta Macedonica, known from the coins of the colony Caesaraugustana, which was quartered in Spain from the time of Augustus until the time of Claudius, who withdrew it to Germany. This gives some knowledge of the date.

C · CAES AVG · P · P (On outer edge.)
C. I. L. II. a) 4962, 1; b) 4962, 4.
a) A weight of black marble, with bronze handle, weighing 16253 grammes; therefore the libra = 325.06 gr., since the mark denotes quinguinta librae. Another weight, entirely of bronze, found at the same place, is marked X and weighs 325.4 gr., hence the libra = 325.4. These results do not differ much from the normal estimate of the libra = 325.8 gr.
b) Bronze s(em)u(ncia) with inserted letters, found at Cordova. The weight is 12.88 gr., so that the libra is 319.12 gr., hence very light.

An Anicius Cerialis was consul in 65 A.D., and his colleague is not known, hence some assign the amphora to this date. The third line seems to indicate that the wine, already two years old, was placed in the amphora on the Ides of August. Cf. Hor. Car. III. 8, 9. BISF is inexplicable. Since Vespasian was consul III in 71, with Cocceius Nerva as colleague, and Domitianus and Pedius Cascus were the suffecti of the same year, Mommsen suggests that II should stand in place of III. But in Pliny, N. H. II. 57, we find imperatoribus Vespasianis patre tertium filio II or iterum (Paris Ms. eius) consulibus. Henzen has suggested that Pliny and the writer of the inscription carelessly named as colleagues those who, though consuls of the same year, did not hold office at the same time. In the quotation from Pliny, II or iterum must be rejected.

CHAPTER VIII

DOCUMENTS

INSTRUMENTA

EPIGRAPHIC material may be divided, as has been shown above, into two great classes. The first class, tituli, has been treated in what has just preceded. It now remains to consider the second class, instrumenta.

These are documents which have been placed for publication and preservation on stone and metal, and which have an importance in themselves and in the information which they convey, apart from the objects upon which they appear. They are, however, of such a character, as to place them in the field of Roman literature and law, rather than in the domain of epigraphy.

Since, however, such documents have been preserved for us in inscriptions, as well as in the works of ancient writers, it belongs to the student of epigraphy to consider what documents have thus come down to us, their formal presentation as well as the principles which appear to have controlled their individual form and arrangement.

LAWS AND PLEBISCITES

(Leges et Plebi Scita)

The word lex, originally a special term denoting the enactments of the comitia centuriata, after the equalization of the legislative authority of the comitia tributa with that of the patrician comitia, and the recognition of plebi scita as leges through the passage of the Lex Hortensia, 467/287, became a generic term applicable alike to the enactments of both bodies. Hence we find in the Lex Latina Tabulae Bantinae, 7 (dating between 621/133–636/118), and the Lex Agraria, 2 (643/111), the phrase ex hac lege plebeve scito.

Leges and plebi scita are arranged in three divisions. I. Index or Praescriptio; II. Rogatio, the body of the law; III. Sanctio, the conclusion.

I. The index or praescriptio sets forth in stereotyped form the name of the proposer (rogator) of the law, the office of the same, the place, the day of the month, and, finally, the name of the body (centuria, tribus) entitled to vote first, and the name of the man casting the first vote.

As no complete praescriptio has been preserved for us in the inscriptions, we obtain our knowledge of its form from that of the *Lex Quinctia de Aquaeductibus*¹ given by Iulius Frontinus in c. 129.

T. Quinctius Crispinus consul [d(e) s(enatus) s(ententia)] populum iure rogavit populusque iure scivit in foro pro rostris aedis divi Iulii pr(idie) [k.] Iulias. Tribus Sergia principium fuit, pro tribu Sex. L. f. Virro [primus scivit].

When the law, a plebi scitum, was proposed by a plebeian magistrate, i.e. tribunus plebis, the expression in the praescriptio was plebem rogare.

The first line of the praescriptio was written in larger letters than the body of the law.²

II. Rogatio. The text of the law was divided into sections or chapters which were indicated either by spaces, after which, in some cases, the first word or a part of the first word of the paragraph extended into the margin (*Lex Cornelia de XX Quaestoribus*³) or by numbers adjoining the spaces as in Lex Rubria.⁴ The titles of the sections were in some instances introduced by the letter R = rubrica, as in the municipal law known as Lex Malacitana (see p. 351).

III. Sanctio. This is in reality the conclusion of the law, and contains provisions against its infraction, and states the penalties for those who transgress. The sanctio might also contain a declaration annulling any previous act against which this particular statute was directed.¹ The lex was then termed perfecta, but if such a declaration were lacking it was termed imperfecta. Non-interference with previous enactments was denoted by the formula EX · H · L · N · R = ex h(ac) l(ege) n(ihilum) r(ogatur). See Lex Rubria,² XXI. 24.

The principal laws and plebiscites which have come down to us in inscriptional form are:

Lex Acilia Repetundarum, 631/123 or 632/122. This was engraved on a bronze plate and provided for the institution of a court where charges of extortion brought by the socii against Roman magistrates might be considered. C. I. L. I. 98; P. L. M. E. tab. 23-25.

Lex Agraria, 643/111. This is engraved on the reverse of the bronze tablet on which the Lex Acilia is preserved. It is the last of the three laws passed after the death of C. Gracchus annulling his agrarian laws. C. I. L. I. 200; P. L. M. E. tab. 26-28.

Lex Cornelia de XX Quæstoribus, 673/81. This law, engraved on a bronze tablet, was the eighth of the laws of Sulla and referred to the introduction of additional quæstors. C. I. L. I. 202; P. L. M. E. tab. 29.

Lex Antonia de Termessibus, 683/71. A plebi scitum on a bronze tablet by which the autonomy of Termessus was confirmed. C. I. L. I. 204; P. L. M. E. tab. 31.

Lex Rubria de Civitate Galliae Cisalpinae, 705/49. A bronze tablet found among the ruins of Veleia, near Piacenza. By means of this law, jurisdiction of municipal magistrates in Gallia Cisalpina was established. C. I. L. I. 205 = XI. 1146; P. L. M. E. tab. 32.

Lex Iulia Municipalis, 709/45. This law, commonly termed Tabula Heracleensis from the place of its discovery, Heraclea, is engraved upon a bronze tablet, on the opposite side of which is a Greek psephisma. It treats of the distribution of corn, duties of aediles in Rome, and rules of municipal government. C. I. L. I. 206; P. L. M. E. tab. 33 and 34.

In the imperial period legislation was in the hands of the senate and emperor, so that the leges assumed the form of senatus consulta and constitutiones of the emperors.

² Bruns, Fontes Iuris Romani, p. 101.

The Lex de Imperio Vespasiani (67 A.D.), a specimen of the leges de imperio which conferred the various powers of the principate upon the emperor on his accession to the throne, sets forth the decree of the senate as a senatus consultum and yet assumes in some respects the character of a lex.¹

The term lex was also applied to the constitutions given by those in authority to civitates, based upon traditional principles once applied to the government of coloniae and municipia. They are similar to the leges which were given to the people of Campania when they became Roman citizens, by L. Furius, praetor 436/318 (Livy, IX. 20, 5).

The following are of this character:

Lex Coloniae Genetivae Iuliae sive Ursonensis, 710/44. A colony of Roman citizens, known as Colonia Genetiva Iulia, was established by M. Antonius, under the direction of Julius Caesar, at Urso (now Osuna) in Spain. The lex given by Antonius to this colony originally consisted of no less than eight tabulae, of which only four remain, and those in a fragmentary state. C. I. L. II. 5439; Ephem. Ep. II. 105, 221.

Lex Municipalis Salpensana, 81-84 A.D. A portion of a lex municipalis given by the emperor Domitian to the municipium Salpensana, inscribed on a bronze tablet found near Malaga, Spain. C. I. L. II. 1963.

Lex Municipalis Malacitana, 81-84 A.D. A similar law given by Domitian to the municipium Malaca, inscribed also on bronze and found in the same place. C. I. L. II. 1964.

Lex Metallum Vipascensis. Given by one of the Flavian emperors as a constitution for a mining settlement in Portugal. Ephem. Ep. III. 165.

DECREES OF THE SENATE

(Senatus Consulta)

These decrees of the senate of the Roman people, written down under the direction of the presiding officer in presence of witnesses, have been preserved for us in literature and in small numbers in a monumental form. They are arranged as follows:

I. Introductory portion, consisting of the name of the relator with the phrase senatum consuluit, the date, i.e. day and month (not later, however, than 707/47), and place of assembly, names of witnesses with phrase scribundo adfuerunt.

II. The statement of the relatio, i.e. the question proposed, introduced by the formula quod (ille) consul verba fecit or quod verba facta sunt de illa re. This formula verba fecit may be followed by an infinitive clause expressing the purpose of the relatio. The formulaic ending of this statement, quid de ea re fieri placeret, Q · D · E · R · F · P, occurs first in decrees of the Augustan period.

III. The sententia of the senate, introduced by the formula de ea re ita censuerunt, D · E · R · I · C. At the close of the consultum the word censuerunt (censuere) is repeated either in full or represented by the letter C. The same word occurs after each section when the vote was taken upon each article.

The senatus consulta which had reference to Greek people were translated into that language,¹ and these are the oldest documents of this kind which have been preserved to our time.

The earliest senatus consultum written in Latin which has been preserved is a fragment of the Latin version of the S. C. de Asclepiade Clazomenio Sociisque, 676/78, of which the Greek translation has also been preserved. It refers to three Greek captains who, on account of their services to the state, are declared amici populi Romani. C. I. L. I. 203.

Other senatus consulta date from the latter part of the first century B.C.

Two fragments of these documents, referring to the ludi saeculares, are preserved on marble tablets. They date May 23, 737/17. S.C.C. de Ludis Saecularibus. Ephem. Ep. VIII. 225. See also C. I. L. VI. 877.

S.C.C. de Aedificiis non Diruendis. Two decrees inscribed on the same tablet which refer to the destruction and rebuilding of houses in Rome, the first dating between 44–46 A.D., the second in the year 56. C. I. L. X. 1401.

S.C. de Nundinis Saltus Beguensis, 138 A.D. Inscribed on two stones found at Henschir Begar, Africa, containing a permit for a market in the district Saltus Beguensis. C. I. L. VIII. 270, and Sup. 11451.

S.C. de Cyzicenis, 138–160 A.D. Inscribed on a stone tablet found in the ruins of Cyzicus, now in the British Museum. C. I. L. III., Sup. 7060.

S.C. de Sumptibus Ludorum Gladiatorum Minuendis, 176–7 A.D. Inscribed on a bronze tablet found in 1888 near Italica, a city of Hispania Baetica. C. I. L. II., Sup. 6278; Momm. Ephem. Ep. VII. 388.

The two documents familiarly known as S.C. de Bacchanalibus and S.C. de Tiburtibus are letters of magistrates written in the form of senatus consulta. See page 359.

IMPERIAL DOCUMENTS

(Instrumenta Imperatorum)

Many state documents of imperial authorship, embodying the enactments of the Roman emperors when acting with legislative authority, form most valuable and interesting epigraphic remains.

These documents assume several forms:

Orationes. These were addresses before the senate made in person or by messenger, which formed the means whereby the emperor presented a bill or proposition to the senate as the legislative body, so that in the form of a senatus consultum it might become a law. Subsequently the oratio itself was recognized as a law when the empty formality of reference to the senate was appreciated. A certain form of oratio is seen in the speech of the Emperor Claudius in the senate, bearing upon the admission of Gallic citizens to the honores. This was engraved upon a bronze tablet,¹ a portion of

A small portion of an oratio of Vespasian appears in the sepulchral inscription of Ti. Plautius, upon whom the emperor proposes to confer triumphal honors. C. I. L. XIV. 3608.

Constitutiones.

1. Edicta. These were general directions of legislative force made on the analogy of the republican magisterial edicts. They were introduced by names and titles of the emperors, followed by dixit.

Edictum Augusti de Aquaeductu Venafrano, giving water privileges to the colonia established by Augustus at Venafrum. This is inscribed on a marble tablet found at Venafrum, where it is still preserved. C. I. L. X. 4842.

Edictum Claudii de Cicitate Anaunorum, 46 A.D. Inscribed on a bronze tablet found near Tridentum. C. I. L. V. 5050.

Edictum Diocletiani et Collegarum de Pretiis Rerum Venalium (301 A.D.) is written in Latin and Greek, and gives the prices of all kinds of merchandise throughout the Roman Empire. C. I. L. III., p. 801; Ephem. Ep. V., p. 87 ff; Hermes XXV. 1890, p. 17.

2. Decreta. Decisions of the emperor in his judicial capacity.

Decretum of Commodus relating to the colonists of the Saltus Burunitanus in Africa. C. I. L. VIII. 10570, Sup. 14464; Ephem. Ep. V. 470.

Decretum M. Aurelii et Commodi (176-180) propter controversias quae inter mercatores ortae erant. Copies of this decree were probably placed at each one of the gates of Rome. The one found before the Porta Salaria has come down to us entire. C. I. L. VI. 1016; Ephem. Ep. IV. 787.

4. Instruments Conferring Rights of Citizenship and Marriage upon Veteran Soldiers (Privilegia Militum Veteranorum de Civitate et Conubio).

Among the constitutiones of the emperor should also be classed the documents familiarly known as diplomata militaria. These were formal documents issued upon completion of the term of service, conferring upon foreign soldiers the privileges of citizenship, and upon Roman citizens legal marriage even with foreign women. These constitutiones were engraved upon bronze tablets and set up at first on the Capitol, but after the time of Domitian on the Palatine. The names of the soldiers to whom the constitutio applied were written underneath. These bronze tablets¹ have perished, but special certified copies of many of them which were made for the individual soldiers have been preserved; they differed from the original in that they contained only the name of the soldier for whom the copy had been made.

These copies were engraved on two tablets of bronze of oblong shape, about $4\frac{3}{4}$ inches by 6 inches, bound together into diptychs by bronze threads passing through two holes set in the edge.² Two other

Those diptychs which are extant are given in C. I. L. III. p. 844 seq.; Ephem. Ep. II. p. 452-466; IV. p. 181-187, 495-515; V. p. 92-100, 610-617, 652, and C. I. L. III. Sup. See also Arneth, Zwölf Römische Militärdiplome, Vienna, 1843, and Leo Renier, Recueil de Diplomes Militaires, Paris, 1876.

The fac-simile on p. 358 is from Cagnat's Cours d'Épigraphie, p. 269, originally from Renier's work just mentioned.

holes were used for fastening and sealing the diptych. Through these holes bronze threads of triple thickness were drawn, and fastened on the outside by the seals of seven Roman citizens whose names were engraved alongside of the seals. While the seals themselves have perished, parts of the thread are still seen in the holes of some diptychs. This was the legal method of fastening these documents.

The text of the constitutio was written both on the inside and outside of the diptych. On the outside of the second tablet the lines run in the direction of the shorter side, on the inside of both tablets, in the direction of the longer side. The outside of the first tablet held the names of the witnesses, the groove for the threads and seals dividing each name into two parts. Probably in the earliest diptychs only one copy of the constitutio was given, and that on the inside. One of these diptychs (Dessau, Inscriptiones Latinae, 1994) is still in existence. The object of the repetition of the constitutio outside was the avoidance of the opening of the diptych. This custom seems to have resulted in the gradual neglect of the inner copy which in reality was the important part of the document, for some diptychs are found in which the inside inscription is scarcely legible. The largest number of these documents which remain to us are assigned to veterans from the alae and the auxiliary cohorts, a much smaller number belong to the classiarii, and still fewer relate to Roman citizens discharged from the praetorian and urban cohorts. No diplomata of this kind seem to have been given to the legionary soldiers if we except those of the two legions, Prima Adiutrix and Secunda Adiutrix, who were enrolled from the classici.

1. The name and titles of the emperor.
2. The class of soldiers and the special body to whom the privilegium was granted, also the department of service and the name of the commander-in-chief, i.e. the governor of the province.
3. The number of the years of service.

The phrase item dimissis honesta missione emeritis stipendiis occurs in certain diplomata, thus extending the privilegium so as to include those who have been previously discharged honesta missione. After Trajan honesta missio is always given before the bestowal of these privilegia, and hence the form becomes — militibus qui militaverunt quinīs et vicenis pluribusve stipendiis emeritis dimissis honesta missione.

4. The formula quorum nomina subscripta sunt followed by the formal extension of these privileges to their descendants, — ipsis, liberis, posterisque eorum, a formula appearing before 145 A.D., and then not until 178.¹

When the privilegia were conferred upon soldiers of the praetorian or urban cohorts, the formula following the name of the emperor was nomina militum qui in praetorio meo militaverunt . . . subiecti.

5. The privileges conferred — civitas and conubium i.e. a legal Roman marriage upon those already married, or upon those who may marry. Civitatem dedit et conubium cum uxoribus quas tunc habuissent cum est civitas iis data aut, si qui caelibes essent, cum iis quas postea duxissent, dumtaxat singuli singulas.

The formula reads somewhat differently in the constitutiones of soldiers of the praetorian or urban cohorts. quibus, fortiter et pie militia functis, ius tribuo conubi dumtaxat cum singulis et primis uxoribus, ut etiam si peregrini iuris feminas matrimonio suo iunxerint proinde liberos tollant ac si ex duobus civibus Romanis natos. The right of citizenship is not referred to, because the urban soldiers had already obtained ius civitatis before entering service. These cohorts were recruited mainly from the inhabitants of Italy.

6. The date — day, month, year.

7. The name, in the dative case, of the soldier, together with the designation of his country. This name may be preceded by that of his cohort and that of his commander, cohort(is) Lusitanorum cui praest C. Cisso C. f. Ste. Honoratus; also by a phrase indicating the rank of the soldier, ex pedite, introduced thus by ex when the soldier has received honesta missio.

8. The formula, descriptum et recognitum ex tabula aenea quae fixa est — Romae in muro post templum divi Augusti ad Minervam or in Capitolio post aedem Fidei populi Romani in muro.

DECREES OF MAGISTRATES

Decreta Magistratum

The instrumenta of magistrates, like the constitutiones of the emperors, assume the form of edicta, decreta, and rescripta.

Edicta were voluntary statements of the rules which the magistrate intended to follow in the interpretation of the law.

Decreta were the decisions of the magistrate in any particular case within his jurisdiction.

The oldest document of this kind known is the decretum of L. Aemilius Paulus, the victor at Pydna, as proconsul of Hispania Ulterior. It is cut in a bronze plate which was found in Spain, at Alcalá de los Gazules, near Cadiz, in ancient Baetica, and is now preserved in the Louvre, Paris. It belongs to the early life of Paulus, when he was praetor in Spain. The object of the decree is the setting free of the Lascutani of southern Spain from the control of their neighbors of Hasta.¹

With these instrumenta should also be classed the following:

Epistula Consulium ad Teuranos de Bacchanalibus, familiarly known as Senatus Consultum de Bacchanalibus, dating 508/186. This letter, engraved on a bronze plate according to directions found on line 26, contains the substance of a senatus consultum directed against the Bacchanales in Italy. It was sent by the consuls to the Teurani, a people of the Brutii. C. I. L. I. 196; X. 104.

The epistula of L. Cornelius the praetor, commonly known as the Senatus Consultum de Tiburtibus, was engraved upon a bronze tablet found at Tibur, but now lost. It dates 505/159. It was addressed to the people of Tibur, and referred to some suspicion under which they had fallen. C. I. L. I. 201, XIV. 3584.

A number of these documents belong to the imperial period. Decretum Proconsulis Sardiniae, 69 A.D. This was the sententia of L. Helvius Agrippa, engraved on a bronze plate referring to a boundary dispute between two people of Sardinia. C. I. L. X. 7852. Epistula Praefectorum Praetorio, 168 A.D. This epistula was addressed to the magistrates of Saepinum and Bovianum by the praefecti praetorio Bassaeus Rufus and Macrinus Vindex, for the purpose of preventing the ill treatment of the conductores gregum oviaricorum of the emperor. It is inscribed on a stone which is still to be found at Saepinum, near the gate leading to Bovianum, through which runs the sheep-path to-day. C. I. L. IX. 2438.

We may add to these, the sententia of C. Avidius Nigrinus, the legatus Augusti propraetore of Trajan inscribed on a marble tablet, C. I. L. III. 567; and the rescript of Claudius Quartinus inscribed on bronze, dating 119 A.D., addressed to the duoviri of Pompaelo, Spain, C. I. L. II. 2959.

A number of formal letters, such as the above, and official statements of various authorities have been preserved in the inscriptions.

PUBLIC AND SACRED DOCUMENTS

Acta Publica et Sacra

It will be convenient and consistent as well to describe under this title all documents associated in a general way with public interests and related also, in however slight degree, to religion and religious worship.

FASTI ¹

The most important of these inscriptions are the fasti. This word, in its earliest sense restricted to the days upon which legal business could be transacted, was later applied to the lists of these days and finally denoted calendars and chronological records in general. These fasti are represented in the inscriptions by two great classes of records.

Annual records and chronicles of events intended for the eyes of people in general, containing the names of the chief magistrates of the year, mainly the eponymous magistrates, and brief statements of the principal occurrences and events, are represented by the Fasti Consulares and Acta Triumphorum.

The lists of days for legal business which became kalendaria, containing an enumeration of the days and months and festivals of the year as well as brief notices of a religious and historical character, are represented to-day by the Fasti Anni Iuliani.

Fasti Consulares and Acta Triumphorum

The first of these give the names of consuls, dictators with their magistri equitum, the tribuni militares with consular power, and the censors with the lustrum which they completed. These data are arranged in chronological order accompanied by their dates (according to the Catonian era) at intervals of ten years.

The Acta Triumphorum give the names of the triumphatores with a statement of the people over whom they have triumphed and the date of triumph, and at times some brief description of the victory.

These Fasti and Acta are arranged in *C. I. L. I.*² in two subdivisions. I) Fragmenta Quae Dicuntur Capitolina, II) Cetera Quae Supersunt Fragmenta.

I. As early as the latter part of the fifteenth century a few fragments of these fasti were known to Italian scholars. In the year 1546, however, many fragments were discovered which were collected and arranged by Delphinus and other scholars under the direction of Cardinal Farnese, who transferred them from his own gardens to the Capitoline and placed them in the Palace of the Conservatori, where they remain to-day. This disposition of the fragments accounts for the name Fasti Capitolini, by which they have ever since been known. Other fragments were discovered in 1816-1818 while excavations were being made in the Forum under the direction of Carlo Fea, of the Kircherian Museum. Again, in the extensive and systematic investigations which were carried on between 1872-78 ten fragments were discovered, and finally in 1888 another fragment of the fasti triumphales which referred to the years 567-569 was taken from the bed of the Tiber.

These fasti of the magistrates and triumphatores were engraved on solid blocks of marble over a foot and a half in thickness, which had evidently formed part of the walls of some prominent building, in all probability of the Regia of the pontifex maximus.

The date of the engraving of these fasti is set by Borghesi¹ between 718/36 and 724/30. Hirschfeld² believes that they were inscribed in 742/12, when Augustus assumed the office of pontifex maximus. It is probable that the tabulae of the fasti consulares were engraved in 718/36, when Domitius Calvinus dedicated the new Regia, and that separate supplementa were added up to about the year 766 = A.D. 13. Although the fasti were disregarded in the City after this period, they were still maintained in the municipalities. The acta triumphalia, however, were set up in 742/12, when Augustus became pontifex maximus.

The following is a portion of the fasti consulares running from 524/230–532/222.

The second class of the fasti consulares and acta triumphorum includes the fragments of the fasti, which various priestly colleges and Italian municipalities framed for their own use, as a means of recording and dating public events. These are named from their origin or from circumstances associated with their discovery or preservation, e.g. Fasti Amiternini.

Fasti Anni Iuliani

These calendars, which are essentially religious documents, represent the early lists of days and festivals which were kept at first exclusively by the priests, but were afterward (450/304) published through the efforts of Cn. Flavius, who placed a copy of the calendar in the Forum. From this time the custom prevailed of exposing in a public place the list of days and festivals, which was determined by the priests.

The municipalities and collegia adopted a similar custom, and set up in cities, temples, and even private houses, copies of the calendars, the originals of which were made by the pontifices at Rome.

There are in existence to-day thirty of these calendars, engraved or painted on stone, and in a more or less fragmentary state, with the exception of the Kalendarium Maffeianum, which is almost complete. They are all of about the same age, arranged according to the Julian year, which brings the date later than 709/45. They were all made, however, in the time of the Julian and Claudian emperors, since the oldest belongs to the middle of the reign of Augustus, while the latest dates in 804 A.U.C., 51 A.D.

The Roman calendars as they appear in these fasti consist of a series of columns of which the first indicates the eight days of the week by the litterae nundinales A B C D E F G H, which are repeated for the successive weeks. Certain days of the Roman year have names which belong to themselves alone, while the remaining days are named from these and specialized by the addition of a numeral. The days thus named recur every month or year. Those recurring every month are the Kalends, (K); Nones, (NON); Ides, (EID).

In addition to the litterae nundinales and the names of certain days the calendars contain letters indicating the ius et natura of the days.

These are as follows: F = fastus, which marked the days on which the praetor might say the words do, dico, addico, and legal business might be transacted. F · P. This is of uncertain meaning, perhaps equal to f(astus) p(rincipio), i.e. fastus in the first part of the day.

Q · R · C · F = q(uandoc) r(ex) c(omitavi), f(as), i.e. the day was fastus after the rex sacrificulus, had presided in the comitia calata called twice a year for the making of wills. These letters are attached to March 24th and May 24th.

Q · S · T · D · F = q(uandoc) s(tercus) d(elatum) f(as), i.e. the day is fastus after the rubbish has been carried from the temple of Vesta. These letters are attached to June 15th.

N = n(efastus). The courts are closed, hence no legal business may be transacted.

NP in many fasti, but NF in Fasti Pighiani. This also signifies nefastus, but these days are nefasti (hilaes) because of some festival, and not nefasti (tristes) as the preceding, connected with religious observances. Mommsen explains NP as originating in an N of four strokes made, as Λ for Manios, for the sake of differentiation. Some explain NF as equal to n(efastus) f(eriatus) or n(e)f(astus).

EN = endotercisus or intercisus.¹ The day on which the victim for sacrifice was slain in the morning, and the exta offered in the evening, the intervening time was fastus.

C = c(omitialis dies).²

Menologia Rustica

Another form of calendar is that which is represented to-day by the *Menologium Rusticum Colotianum*¹ and Menologium Rusticum Vallense.¹ They were prepared for the guidance of farmers, and therefore state facts of value to that particular class. The former of these was discovered in Rome, and is still preserved in the museum at Naples. The calendar is engraved on the sides of a cubical marble altar in twelve columns, each containing the list of days for the month. At the head of each column is a sign of the zodiac, underneath which is the name of the month, the number of days, the day of the nones, the hours of the day and night, the name of the sign through which the sun, the god of the month, passed, the agricultural labors appropriate to the month, and the principal festivals. SACRED DOCUMENTS

The documents relating to the consecration of temples and connected with objects of religious worship, such as altars and consecrated treasures, form another class of acta.

I. The first to be mentioned are the leges templorum, referring to the consecration of temples and altars, of which the following are examples.

1. The lex fani of the temple of Jupiter Liber at Furfo, a Sabine town, dating 696/58. C. I. L. I. 603 = IX. 3513. The introductory form is,

IV. Monumentum Ancyranum.¹

This famous inscription, engraved upon the walls of a temple, but not in a religious sense associated with the sacred building, is, with difficulty, classed with any other inscription. Some² regard it as an epitaph, but Mommsen³ likens it to the inscription on the tomb of Antiochus of Commagene on the Nimrud Dagħ, in Mesopotamia. The Monumentum Ancyranum, as termed by Suetonius, an index rerum a se gestarum, is most valuable in giving information as to the history of the early Empire. It was originally cut on bronze tablets, so as to be placed in front of the mausoleum of Augustus in Rome, quem incidi vellet (Augustus) in aeneis tabulis quae ante Mausoleum statuerentur,⁴ and was reproduced in Latin on the inner wall of the vestibule, and in Greek on the outer wall of the temple of Augustus and Roma at Ancyra in Galatia, Asia Minor. This copy is still in great part in existence, so that the substance of the whole may be, with few exceptions, fully determined. Selections from the praescriptio and capita I and XIX are given below.

V. Documents of the Collegia of Priests.

The documents belonging to the various sacerdotal colleges are represented in the inscriptions by fragments which, with one exception, namely, the acta of the Arval brotherhood, are of comparatively small account.¹

Acta Collegii Fratrum Arvalium.

The corporation or brotherhood of the fratres arvales is believed to have been an ancient institution dating from the time of the kings, which, becoming obsolete, was revived by Augustus. It was a company of priests, twelve in number, whose original purpose appears to have been to offer sacrifices and prayers for the fertility of the fields. They presided at the festival of Dea Dia in May, for which function alone they were regarded as priests.

The members of the brotherhood were chosen by coöptation and held position for life. Their place of worship was in luco Deae Diae ora Campana apud lapidem V. (C. I. L. VI. p. 575.)

The acta of this priestly college have been preserved for us in a large number of inscriptions which have been discovered in the Vigna Ceccarelli, near the fifth milestone from Rome, on the Via Portuensis.

There are in existence to-day acta dating from the time of Augustus to the reign of Gordian, 241 A.D. These contain various details, e.g. the names of those attending, the date, place, method of procedure, etc., of various ceremonies associated with events in the lives of the reigning emperor and members of his family. They are of great value in the determination of dates.

A number of these inscriptions were published at Rome in 1795 by Gaetano Marini in Atti e Monumenti de' Fratelli Arvali. The modern work¹ on this subject is Acta Fratrum Arvalium Quae Supersunt, W. Henzen, Berlin, 1874.

In the account of the ceremonies as found in the acta of the year 218 A.D. of the reign of Elagabalus, there occurs the famous chant,² which has tested the ingenuity of many scholars.

VI. Commentarium of the Secular Games.

Among these instrumenta sacra there should also be mentioned the recently discovered acta of the Secular Games (commentarium ludorum saecularium), dating 737/17, and containing the famous reference to the poem of Horace, the Carmen Saeculare.³

DOCUMENTS RELATING TO THE ARMY⁴

³ Monumenti Antichi of the Accad. Lincei, I., 1891, p. 3 ff. R. Lanciani, Pagan and Christian Rome, p. 73.

⁴ Latercula of soldiers stationed at Rome are given in C. I. L. VI. See also Ephem. Ep. IV., p. 315 ff. Kellerman, Vigilum Romanorum Latercula Duo appear often as additions to other inscriptions either dedicatory or honorary in their character. The names of the soldiers, accompanied by the name of the tribus and native town, and in some cases by indications of rank, are arranged in sections according to centuries, with the name of the centurion in the genitive case, heading each section. Probably with the intention of making a document regular and orderly in appearance, the final letters of the nomen and cognomen, as well as of the indications of origin, are separated from these words.

nonia, Noricum, and Dacia, C. I. L. III.

At the camp discovered at Lambaesis, in Africa, there have been found a number of interesting inscriptions connected with the army:¹

1. Register of centurions of the legion III Augusta, dating 162 A.D. Ephem. Ep. V. 1276.
2. Address of Hadrian at the time of his visit in June or July, 128 A.D. This is extant in a fragmentary state. C. I. L. VIII. 2532.
3. Regulations of the collegia of under officers established in the camp of the legion III Augusta, dating in the time of Septimius Severus. C. I. L. VIII. 2552-2557.

DOCUMENTS OF THE MUNICIPALITIES

I. Decrees of the Decuriones.

The decrees of the municipal senate are closely related in their character to the senatus consulta of the general government at Rome, and hence are similar in form, giving the date, place of assembly, and the usual formulae, scribundo adfuere with names of witnesses, and q(uid) d(e) e(a) r(e)f(ieri) p(laceret), d(e) e(a) r(e) i(ta) c(ensuere).

A number of these documents have been preserved in the inscriptions, of which the following are examples:

1. The most ancient is the Lex Parieti Faciendo of Puteoli, dating 649/105, which, however, in its present form, is a restoration of the second century A.D. C. I. L. X. 1781. See page 378.
2. Cenotaphia Pisana of 3 A.D. inscribed on a marble tablet. These are decrees of the Senate of Pisa relating to the honores given to Lucius and Gaius Caesar, the grandsons of Augustus. C. I. L. XI. 1420.
3. The decree of the Senate of Gabii on a marble tablet dating 140 A.D. This refers to memorial honores given to Domitia, wife of Domitian. C. I. L. XIV. 2795.
4. The Decretum Tergestinum. This decree refers to L. Fabius Severus, quaestor urbanus, who has rendered service to the decuriones and people of Tergeste. The date is 138-161. C. I. L. V. 532.

II. Registers of Decuriones.

There are also in existence two examples of the lists of municipal senators.

1. A bronze tablet from Canusium (Canosa), dating 223 A.D. C. I. L. IX. 338. L. Mario Maximo II, L. Roscio Aeliano cos. II viri quinquenn(ales) nomina decurionum in aere incidenda curaverunt.

2. The album ordinis Thamugadensis, dating in the last years of Constantine or in the time of Julian. C. I. L. VIII. 2403.

The names are classified as of v. v. c. c., sacerdotales, curator, duo viri, pontifices, augures, ediles, quaestores, duoviralicii.

III. Tabulae Patronatus.

Mention has already been made of the customs associated with hospitium and the gift of tokens in portable form, tesserae hospitales, denoting such relation.

Similar to this custom was that which led communities to present to distinguished persons whom they made their patroni, bronze tabulae patronatus et hospitii, which could be placed in the atrium of the house or in some public position.

These inscriptions assume either the character of decrees or have a form peculiar to themselves.

One class of the less formal of these documents,¹ in which senatus populusque or a similar phrase forms the subject of the verb, may be illustrated by the decree of the Pagus Gurzensium in Africa, by which L. Domitius Ahenobarbus, grandfather of Nero, is made patron.

P. Sulpicio Quirinio Q. Valgio co(n)s(ulibus). Senatus populusque civitatum stipendiariorum pago Gurzenses hospitium fecerunt quom L. Domitio Cn. f. L. n. In another class² the name of the person honored is the subject of the phrase hospitium fecit.

DOCUMENTS OF THE COLLEGIA¹

The instrumenta of the collegia recall the documents of the municipalities which they resemble in character and form. The most important of these acta are the following:

I. Registers of Members.

1. A register (album) of the ordo corporatorum lenuncularior(um) tabulariorum auxiliatorum Ostiensium is inscribed on marble tablets which date 152–192 A.D. C. I. L. XIV. 250, 251. The names are arranged in classes as in the album of the decuriones, e.g. patroni, quinquennales, plebs.
2. A register of a collegium of Herculaneum. C. I. L. X. 1403.
3. A register of the dendrophori dating 251 A.D. C. I. L. X. 3699.

This is a decree of the magistri pagi directing the officers of the collegium of libertini, named from Jupiter Compagus, the god of brotherhood, to spend money in public improvements rather than on games.

PRIVATE DOCUMENTS

Epigraphic remains of this character are comparatively rare because of the absence of the necessity of preservation and publication which naturally belonged to documents of a public character. Hence whatever has been preserved to us of any importance has been associated with other inscriptions such as tituli honorarii or tituli sepulcrales. The acta ad sepulcrales spectantia mentioned above and given in C. I. L. vol. VI. are examples of such inscriptions.

Wax Tablets.

There still remain to us, however, very interesting inscriptions of a private nature on the wax tablets of Dacia and Pompeii.

As early as 1786 and also in more recent years there have been discovered in the mining regions of Dacia, at modern Verespatak, wax tablets which extend in date over a period of forty years, 131–167 A.D. These are preserved to-day in the Museum of Pesth.¹

Other wax tablets have also been found at Pompeii in the house of L. Caecilius Lucundus, the banker.²

These wax tablets, similar in form to the bronze tablets mentioned above, with the exception that most of the former are triptychs, i.e. of three tablets, while the latter are diptychs, are made of wood with inner sides covered with black wax and sunk below the surface. The rim or border of each tablet is pierced with holes for binding purposes. Across the middle of the second page of the second tablet, i.e. the fourth of the triptych, a groove is cut parallel to the shorter edge. At the ends of the groove holes are pierced, through which triple strings were drawn which were fastened in the groove. The third tablet was not fastened, in order that an abstract of the deed, which in Dacian tablets appeared on the fifth and a part of the fourth page, but in the Pompeian triptychs only on the fifth, are plain wooden surfaces, so that the names of the witnesses which are written in both cases on the fourth page are cut in the wooden surface of the Pompeian triptychs.

These tablets are inscribed in cursive letters and contain business documents of various kinds.

Devotiones.

We may also class with these private documents the devotiones or defixiones which contain phrases of ill wishing directed against personal enemies or those guilty of some offence. They consist of formulaic expressions consigning the one disliked to some sinister deity to whom the defixio is addressed. Most of these devotiones are written in a rude cursive style on tablets of lead or bronze which were placed in sanctuaries or tombs.

A few of them are in monumental form, as e.g. one¹ found in Spain addressed to Dea Ataecina, Dea Ataecina Turibrig(ensis), Proserpina, per tuam maiestatem te rogo oro obsecro, uti vindices quot mihi furti factum est.

WALL INSCRIPTIONS

Inscriptiones Parietariae

It is difficult to classify either as tituli or instrumenta the inscriptions which appear upon walls of buildings such as those of Pompeii and, in less number, those of Rome; for in reality they partake of the nature of both, so diverse is their character and purpose.

The inscriptions which are painted or scratched with a graphium upon the clay walls of the houses of Pompeii are edited by C. Zangemeister in C. I. L. vol. IV. and Ephem. Ep. I. 49, 177 ff.

The earliest of these Pompeian inscriptions belonging to the pre-Augustan period are those painted in red on the tufa walls of the houses, and consist mainly of recommendations for election of candidates for municipal offices.

Some of these are advertisements of various kinds, e.g. for a vase that has been stolen (No. 64), and again others give lists of officers, as the magistri vici et compiti (No. 60, 707/47).

The painted inscriptions of a later date (Nos. 84–1176) contain information of a similar character to those just mentioned.

A large number of these wall inscriptions are announcements of gladiatorial games (Nos. 1176–1204). They are introduced at times by some formula as pro salute domus Augustae, giving the alleged cause for the holding of the contests. This statement is followed by the name of the man to whom the familia gladiatoria belongs, the number of pairs matched, the place, time, other events, and additional attractions, as sparsiones, vela, etc.

CONSULAR DIPTYCHS¹

(Diptycha Consularia)

In the later empire it became the custom for consuls when entering upon their official duties to present to senators and other prominent persons, carved ivory tablets. These contained representations of the spectacles which marked their entrance to office, together with the names and portraits of the consuls. They were in all probability a sort of invitation to the initiatory festivals. The oldest of these diptychs dates 406 A.D. and the latest 541.

CHAPTER IX

ABBREVIATIONS

Restoration of Defective Inscriptions.

An account of the science of Latin Epigraphy would be incomplete if no attention were paid to the renewal of inscriptions which remain to us in imperfect form, for it is a fact readily understood that epigraphic material consists, in a very large degree, of fragments which would be of little service and value were it not possible for scholars to make restorations more or less satisfactory, and which in many cases have been shown, by subsequent discoveries, to be correct.

It would be manifestly impossible to suggest a method of treatment which would be useful in every case, since this depends almost absolutely upon the character of the individual inscription itself. Nevertheless, certain general principles may be stated which will be of assistance in this most important and most interesting side of epigraphic study. It is a cardinal principle that nothing associated in any way with a fragmentary inscription is so insignificant as to be unworthy of consideration in the task of supplying portions that are lost. It is, therefore, imperative that the most exact copy attainable should be within reach of the student.¹ This has resulted in the use of the so-called "paper squeezes," which are made by moistening sheets of stout white paper and pressing them into the indentations of an inscription by means of a brush with short stiff bristles. Reproductions of inscriptions of this form have been found very satisfactory in their exactness. In the case of small articles, wax impressions are more convenient.

The study of an inscription must involve both an internal and external consideration of all that is associated with the same. It must include an examination of the method of engraving, the forms of the letters and words, and of the character of the subject matter, but it must also be turned to the circumstances of the discovery, the location, and the association with other inscriptions.

The form of an incomplete letter, supplemented by a knowledge of what the normal letter in its complete shape would be, often determines the word which has disappeared. A knowledge of the numerous ligatures is very useful, particularly in the inscriptions found in Africa. In supplementing defective words, much attention should be given to the subject of abbreviations, for it must be remembered that certain words are regularly given in abbreviated form, but others very rarely.

The most common injuries exhibited by stones are such as destroy the beginning or end of the lines. It is, therefore, necessary to determine the original length of the line, so as to calculate the number of letters required to make it complete. This knowledge may be obtained from the general outline of the inscription, and from a comparison of the lengths of the remaining lines. We may say, in a general way, that a number of the lines in an inscription are of the same length. The first and last lines are regularly shorter than the others, because of the character of their subject matter, but they are proportionate in length to the other lines, and their middle points correspond with the middle points of the others. By knowledge thus obtained, the determination of the number of letters to be supplied may be accomplished with a fair degree of exactness.

The next important step is the consideration of the class of inscriptions to which the one in question belongs. This is necessary in order that a knowledge of the formulae likely to occur may be obtained, and comparison with other inscriptions made possible.

Other important data are, the natural succession of honores in the various cursus honorum, the imperial names and titles, and the customary order of the same, the history of the legions, their enrollment, location, and length of service.

The following example, originally given by Renier¹ as illustrating the scientific restoration of a defective inscription is also used in like manner by Cagnat² who regards it as a perfect model of its kind.

R · EQVIT · ROM	IVT · XVIR
LITIB · IVDIC · QVAES	R · PROVINCIAE
RETAE · ET · CYRENAR	MP · VESPASIANI
AESARIS · AVG · LEG · X · FRETEN	DONIS · MILI
B · IMP · VESPASIANO · CAESAR	T · CAESARE · AVG · F
ELLO · IVDAICO · CORONA · MVRALI · VALLARI · AVREA · HASTIS · PVRIS
EXILLIS · DVOBVS · TR · PL · PR · LEG · PROVINC · PONTI · ET · BITHYNIAE
AECINIA · A · F · LARGA · VXOR · ET
RCIA · A · F · PRISCILLA · FILIA · FECERVNT

It is evident that the inscription is honorary in character and that it has been set up perhaps at his tomb by the wife and daughter of the person whose name has disappeared. The honores are given in the ascending order.

Before the quaestorship which appears in the second line we would look for the military service and the vigintivirate. The latter may be readily supplied thus, XVIR *st*LITIB · IVDIC; the former is shown by IVT which is part of the name Ad IVT rix. There were two legions thus named, Prima Adiutrix and Secunda Adiutrix. Although it is uncertain which legion is here indicated, Renier has shown from the inscription itself that the person referred to was made a quaestor under Vespasian and since he was tribunus militum about two years before this time, and the legion II Adiutrix was formed under Vespasian, it is probable that the first legion is the one named. Following the usual form we may supply then, trib. mil. leg. I AdIVT. The honorary title which was often given to those who had not yet attained the quaestorship readily suggests itself for the first part of this line, so that we read: *sevi*R · EQVIT · ROM. The quaestorship was either of the city, which would give simply QVAEST., or provincial, which would give QVAEST. pr. pr. = quaestori pro praetore. In the former case the following function would naturally be leg(ato) pr. pr(aetore), but for this there is evidently no room; hence the line may be completed thus: QVAEST pr. pr. After the quaestorship a person might become legatus of a proconsul in a senatorial province of the praetorian grade, or hold the next magistracy, the tribunate of the plebs or the aedileship. In this case, however, the function following the quaestorship is evidently that of legatus of a legion, so that we may supply legatus IMP · VESPASIANI CAESARIS · AVG · LEG X · FRETENSIS. The words donis militaribus would naturally be preceded by donato, hence read donato DONIS MILITARIBUS. The next line refers to the two emperors who conducted the Jewish war, and we may read aB · IMP · VESPASIANO CAESARE Aug et T · CAESARE · AVG · F BELLO · IVDAICO.

At the beginning of the seventh line the number of the vexilla has disappeared, but according to the rules¹ controlling military decorations two vexilla would be assigned to a man of quaestorian grade. Inasmuch as the legati of praetorian grade alone have the right to three vexilla , three hastae purae , and three coronae , it is evident that duab(us) is needed here. The cursus honorum is now complete with the remaining functions tribunus plebis , praetor , legatus provinciae Ponti et Bithyniae .

The first word of the next line is the nomen of the wife who has thus honored her husband. The remnant aecinia would suggest CAECINIA, but GRAECINIA is possible. The nomen Graecinia, taken from Graecinus, is hardly admissible for the wife of a senator in the time of Vespasian. Still further, the father, a Graecinius or Caecina, is named A(ulus), as A · filia shows, but we do not know of a Graecinius with the praenomen A(ulus), and it must be remembered that in a family of rank the range of praenomina and cognomina was limited to a certain number. We do not know of a cognomen Largus with a Graecinius , hence we naturally select CAECINIA. We know also of two consuls, A. Caecina (13 A.D.) and A. Caecina Largus (42 A.D.), which fact confirms the selection.

The nomen of the daughter may be either PORCIA, MARCIA, or LARCIA. Aulus, however, is not found with Porcius , and is rare with Marcius , but is common with Larcus . We find still further in this family, if not a Priscillus , at least a Priscus , so that the name of the daughter is LARCIA PRISCILLA, and of her father, A. Larcus.

Renier has pointed out that the legatus of the legion X Fretensis at the time of the capture of Jerusalem is spoken of in Josephus (Bel. Iud. , VI. 4) as A. Larcus Lepidus. From this we can conclude that the inscription is in honor of this man, and the first line must contain his name. Between the nomen and cognomen we would expect the indication of descent and the tribus . The first of these is uncertain, since we do not know the praenomen of the father, although we may conjecture that it is the same as that of the son. The inscription was found at Nettuno, hence we would expect Quirina , a tribus which actually appears in an inscription² of an A. Larcus Priscus, legatus of Numidia, found recently at the same place and referring probably to the father of the person honored in the inscription before us.

Dating of Inscriptions.

The determination of the date or period of inscriptions demands in many cases the consideration and study of inscriptions from every point of view.

Constant reference has therefore been made in what precedes to the various indications of date which the occurrence of certain usages belonging to well-defined periods provides.

The various suggestions leading to the determination of date may be classified as obtained either from an external or formal consideration of an inscription or from an internal or material view of the same.

The first of these implies: 1) A study of the object upon which the inscription appears, its size, ornamentation, circumstances of discovery, such as the depth beneath the surface and proximity to other inscriptions. Such data may be useful in identifying in its date the inscription in question with others which admit of assignment to certain periods; 2) a consideration of the inscription itself, the nature of the engraving, the morphology of the letters, the orthography and the grammatical formation and interrelation of the words.

The second class of suggestions leading to the determination of date is concerned with the subject matter of the inscriptions.

We have already seen on page 123 how inscriptions of the imperial period may be dated from the titles and salutations of the emperor. If an inscription contains the names of consuls, it is possible in most cases to assign a date by reference to the Fasti Consulares. It is necessary to be cautious in thus depending on consular names, since those who acted as substitutes, consules suffecti, as well as those who received the consularia ornamenta, are frequently named as consuls. It must be remembered also that the title cos., followed by a numeral of iteration, accompanied the name of the emperor even when he was not actually holding office. Augustus was consul for the second time in 748/6, and was continually designated thus until 18 A.D., when he became consul for the third time. Any inscription containing simply the name of Augustus with cos. II may be assigned to any year between 748/6 and 18 A.D.

Names of distinguished personages and officials are often of much importance in this respect. Such are the names of the high officers at Rome and in the provinces, also of associates and friends of the emperor. The date of the official career of prominent men may often be learned from historical sources, and the period of inscriptions may thus be determined.

A very important source of chronological information is found in the history of the various legions, which may be compiled from historical writings and from a comparison with dated inscriptions, and particularly from the military diplomas which contain certain exact dates.

The following tables will be of use in determining the date of inscriptions.

TABLE OF ARCHAISMS

ai AND ae; ae is found replacing ai in some words in S. C. de Bacchanalibus (186 B.C.), alongside of the earlier spelling. It is the established form for the Lex Bantina (133-118), the Lex Repetundarum of 123-122 B.C. The transition form, aei, appears about the close of the second century B.C. The archaic spelling was restored in the reign of Claudius.

oi FOR oe AND ū; about 200 B.C. ū begins to replace oi and oe. ū is found in the Scipio epitaph of the beginning of the second century B.C. and in the Mummian inscription of 146 B.C. oi and oe continue to be used, especially in official inscriptions, even to the Ciceronian period.

ou AND ū; ū replaces ou about 100 B.C. It appears for ou in Lucius in the Scipio epitaph, dating not later than 200 B.C. Both are seen in Lex Bantina (133-118 B.C.), Lex Repetundarum (123-122 B.C.), but ou is disregarded entirely in Lex Cornelia (81 B.C.).

ei AND i; ei represents in the inscriptions either original ei, as in deico, or stands for the long i. The first is found in the early inscriptions, and appears in the S. C. de Bacch. (186 B.C.). The spurious diphthong ei is found in audeire in Lex Repetundarum of 123-122 B.C., and in ameicitiam of Lex Agraria of 111 B.C.

ASPIRATION OF CONSONANTS; see page 29.

FINAL s AND m; the letters s and m are frequently omitted in early inscriptions, but this omission ceases about 130 B.C.

FINAL d; this final letter of the ablative case is written in the S. C. de Bacch. (186 B.C.), but is not found in the decree of Aemilius Paulus of 189 B.C. It may be said to have disappeared from use a little after 200 B.C.

xs FOR SIMPLE x; this spelling does not occur before its appearance in the S. C. de Bacch. (186 B.C.). It then is found particularly in inscriptions of 130-120 B.C., and again in the Augustan period, and later.

DOUBLE CONSONANTS; see page 29.

DOUBLE VOWELS; see page 30.

-us AND -om; these forms were reduced to -us and -um except after u and v in the nominative and accusative cases of o-stems about 234 B.C.

-ēs, -eis, -is; these endings mark the nominative case plural of o-stems of the close of the second century B.C., and of the beginning of the first.

-us, GENITIVE; the -us ending of consonant stems is found in early inscriptions, as in the S. C. de Bacch. (186 B.C.), also in the Lex Agraria (111 B.C.) and the Epistula ad Tiburtes (100 B.C.), but ceases about 100 B.C.

Abbreviations (Notae, later Sigla).

It has already been seen from what has preceded that initial letters and various other abbreviations of words enter very largely into the language of the inscriptions, and that consequently a familiarity with the most common of these forms is essential to facility in reading. The student is referred to the very complete table given on p. 417 ff., which has been obtained from the Cours d'Épigraphie Latine of Professor René Cagnat.

Certain general principles¹ will be found of advantage in the interpretation of abbreviations.

1. Words written in abbreviated form consist either of the initial letter (si(n)g(u)la) or of a continuous group of letters more or less restricted in number. In the latter case the final letter of the abbreviation is the first consonant of a syllable, but this is not an exact rule. T = Titus; TIB = Tiberius; CLAVD, CLAV, CLA = Claudia; QVIR, QVI, Q = Quirina.

2. If a word is composed of several members, the above rule applies either to the word treated as a whole or to each of the component parts regarded as individual words. Thus signifer may be abbreviated synthetically SIG or SIGN, or analytically SIGF for signum and fer, so BENEFIC, BENEF, B, or again B · F = beneficiarius, DVMTAX or D · T = dum taxat, Q · Q · V = quoquoversus, P · Q = populusque.

This in theory is the system of abbreviations up to the end of the third century A.D.

When a disregard of these principles first made itself felt in the formation of abbreviations cannot be exactly determined, but it is probable that ignorance or a misunderstanding of the second rule, combined with a lack of knowledge of the component parts of words as determining the abbreviated forms, led to the violation of the principle of continuity of the letters, so that we find PD = pedes, MN = minus, PBL = publicus, LG = legio, VT = vixit, MM = memoriae, DPS = depositus, etc.

3. Again, we find in the inscriptions a peculiar form of abbreviation¹ occasioned by the repetition of the terminating consonant. This probably arose from the collocation of several praenomina, as in the designations of the patrons of liberti. This system appeared in Rome about the beginning of the Christian era, and was limited in the first century to the initial letters of praenomina. COSS for consules appears for the first time in two Christian inscriptions of the year 107 and 111.

a) This form indicates two, three or four individuals, the exact number being defined by the number of repeated letters. AVGG = duo Augusti, CCC = Gaii tres, DDDD · NNNN = domini nostri quatuor, VI · VIR · AVGG = seviri Augustales duo, FLL · P · P = flamines perpetuo duo.

b) The doubling of the last letter, however, may denote simply the plural number. PROCC = procuratores, PONTIFF = pontifices, CAESS = Caesares, HERR = heredes.

In some instances other letters have been doubled, and the following forms are the result:

NNOBB = nobilissimi duo, AAVVRR = Aurelii, EEQQRR = equites Romani.

It is necessary to mention here also certain special signs which are used to mark abbreviations and to distinguish them from other letters in the inscriptions.²

1) A line of differentiation is placed over the letter or group of letters³; e.g. AVG = Augustus, $\bar{D} \cdot \bar{N}$ = dominus noster, \bar{N} = natione, QQ = quinquennalis, V · C = vir clarissimus, COS = consul.

Sometimes the line crosses the letter; e.g. B = beneficiarius, Θ = dicit, or dies, or domo, M = menses, Θ = obit or obitu, N = nummum.

³ This custom becomes prevalent from the beginning of the second century.

2) The bar may be replaced by an apex or circumflex, a custom common from the third century on; e.g. $\acute{D} \cdot \acute{M} = diis\ manibus$, $\acute{F}\acute{F} = felix\ fidelis$, $\tilde{I} \cdot \tilde{O} \cdot \tilde{M} = Iovi\ Optimo\ Maximo$, $AE\tilde{D} = aedilis$, $CO\acute{H} \cdot PR = cohors\ praetoria$.

3) Some letters serving as abbreviations are reversed; e.g. $\oslash = Gaia$, standing for mulier, $\P = puella$, $\oslash = caput(?)$, or conductor, or contra, or corona(?).
